Coates Opera-House, Kansas City....	100,000
Abercrombie, N. D.	90,000

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—An explosion, supposedly of red cedar sawdust, mixed with air, in the big William Wicke company's cigar box factory, at the southwest corner of the short riverside block, on the east side of First avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-second streets, upset the neighborhood a little after 2 o'clock this afternoon, but although two dozen persons were more or less hurt, the event as a popular sensation was made insignificant by the fire that followed in the ruins in the evening, by the light of which a newspaper could be read at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, at least a mile away.

At 7:00 o'clock, when it was supposed that the afternoon fire had spent itself, there was a sudden collapse of a part of the damaged walls. Flames burst forth afresh and then the cigar box factory burned like a tinder box. No fire since the Windsor disaster spread so rapidly. Thirty-five minutes after the fire started Chief Croker himself, who had reached the scene, turned in the ominous "double nine," which brought into service every fire engine between Grand and Fifty-ninth streets.

Thousands Drawn to the Scene.

The blaze drew a crowd of thousands to the scene and 800 policemen, under Chief Devery, guarded the fire lines and kept the crowd back.

So rapidly did the flames spread that a score of firemen, who had gone into the factory, narrowly escaped with their lives. They dashed out of the burning building just as the walls crumbled into the streets.

All around the blazing factory were thickly inhabited tenements. The inmates were panic-stricken. They fled in disorder into the street. Many of them brought their belongings with them.

The police forced more than a hundred families living in the tenements on the west side of First avenue, between Thirty-second and Thirtieth streets, to leave their homes.

Fire Makes Grand Spectacle.

In the meantime the fire had become so fierce that from the office buildings around Printing-House square it appeared that all of the city above Union square was on fire.

A change of wind enabled the firemen to limit the fire to two blocks, and the buildings on these were soon totally wrecked. They were three business buildings, a foundry, lumber yard, and eight tenement-houses, besides the Wicke cigar box factory. The loss is placed at $1,500,000 at the outside.

Arthur Herbst of Chicago, a guest of the Waldorf-Astoria, was clubbed by an officer and had to be attended by Dr. Hawley of Bellevue. Herbst saw the fire from the Waldorf-Astoria and rushed over to see it. He says a policeman on Thirty-first street, near the fire, struck him and knocked him down. He was found lying in the snow almost unconscious. Policeman Farley of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station heard Herbst's story and reported it.

COATES THEATER BURNS DOWN.

Biggest Opera-House in Kansas City Wrecked by Fire Just After Audience Departs.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 31.—Fire late tonight wrecked the Coates Opera-House, the principal theater of Kansas City, situated at Tenth street and Broadway, and occupying a detached building. Walker Whiteside and his company were playing "Heart and Sword" in the house and had just concluded the evening performance when the fire was discovered.

The company lost its wardrobes and scenery, the players being obliged to flee from their dressing-rooms.

The firemen abandoned the theater and directed the chief attention to the Coates Hotel, diagonally across the street, and the largest hotel in the city. The guests were notified of their danger and some left the house, but it was not damaged. No one was injured.

The building was valued at between $125,000 and $150,000, and was insured for much less.

Bernhardt and Coquelin were to have played in the theater next Monday night. Hundreds of people stood in line all night to be ready when the box office opened this morning and the house was "sold out" in a few minutes.

HALF A TOWN IS WIPED OUT.

Business Section of Fort Abercrombie, North Dakota, Burned at Loss of Nearly $100,000.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 31.—The business portion of Fort Abercrombie, thirty miles south of Fargo, was destroyed tonight by fire, which is reported to have been started by an overturned lamp in a machinery-house. Both the telegraph and telephone wires are grounded, but messages at midnight from adjoining towns state that the fire was controlled after eleven business houses had been destroyed. The loss is placed at from $90,000 to $100,000, with less than $40,000 insurance.

ARMED ROBBERS RAID A BAKERY.

Jacob Volz, Proprietor, and a Woman Held Up at 258 West Van Buren Street.

MADE TO HOLD UP HANDS.

Thugs Make Their Escape After Securing $65 Contained in Two Pocketbooks.

HODGKINS IN THIEF CHASE.

The "Famous" bakery, 258 West Van Buren street, owned by Volz & Webb, was invaded at 9 o'clock by armed robbers, who compelled Jacob Volz to stand with his back to the wall while they emptied two large pocketbooks containing $65, a part of which was silver. Miss Johanna Ayasse, who was in the rear room, entered the store and was compelled by the robbers to elevate her hands while they escaped. In order to hold up her hands Miss Ayasse was compelled to drop a flatiron she had been using.

Mr. Volz, who was on duty in the store when the robbers entered, says he believes they had been watching him from across the street, as they appeared just as he was transferring the bills from the change drawer to the pocketbooks in the alarm drawer.

One of the robbers was tall, slender, and wore a mustache; the other was short, stout, and smooth faced. As they entered the store the short man stepped in front of the counter, presented a revolver, and ordered Mr. Volz to throw up his hands. The tall man went behind the counter and pushing Mr. Volz away from the alarm drawer, seized it by the handle and jerked it so hard that it fell out on the floor and scattered a handful of silver money.

Robbers Attract Girl.

Miss Ayasse heard the noise and called from her work, telling Mr. Volz he was awkward to drop the money drawer. Receiving no reply, she thoughtlessly entered the room, holding the flatiron in her hand.

The short robber turned his revolver toward the young woman and demanded that she throw up her hands. As she did so the tall robber, who had secured the money, ran out the door, leaving it open. His partner followed him, walking backward and keeping his revolver leveled at the baker and the young woman.

G. D. Stout of 209 Sangamon street saw the robbers as they ran toward Halsted street beneath the structure of the Metropolitan Elevated railroad. The robbery was reported at the Desplaines Street Station, and an hour later two men were arrested at Halsted street, near Harrison, as suspects. One of them, a tall man with a brown mustache, Mr. Volz said resembled one of the robbers.

Capture Englewood Burglars.

Growing out of the robbery of the house of Colonel Jefferson Hodgkins, President of the Brownell Improvement company and member of the South Park board, the Englewood police yesterday captured a number of burglars who have been looting Englewood residences, and recovered a large amount of stolen property.

Colonel Hodgkins discovered a burglar in his house, 7148 Princeton avenue, early in the morning, but after a chase through the halls and chambers of the residence the fellow escaped. Then, notifying the Englewood Police Station, he was told that a burglar had just been captured a block from his house. The stolen property was identified by Mr. Hodgkins by telephone, and the man was taken to the station. Later in the day seven other arrests were made and five wagon loads of stolen goods recovered.

To Colonel Hodgkins' prompt report and identification of the stolen property is ascribed the success of the detectives in capturing the burglars.

Men Under Arrest.

The men under arrest, who are charged with being burglars or in league with the gang, are:

Broons, Christopher, Halsted and Sixty-first streets, expressman.
Davis, J. M., Halsted and Forty-ninth streets, no occupation.
Elzenstein, Samuel, 363 Clark stret, pawnbroker.
Laughlin, M. A., 4648 Twenty-second street, no occupation.
Levine, Maurice, 365 Clark street, pawnbroker.
Lynch, Fred, no occupation or permanent place of residence.
Thompson, P., Clark and Harrison streets, no occupation.
Washington, John, colored, no permanent place of residence.

Broons is said to have made a business of carting stolen property from Englewood down-town, where it was sold in the pawnshops. The police declare that the gang was well organized, and had been operating on the South Side of the city for two years.

Steal Silk, Drive Away.

Robbers, riding in a buggy, visited Klein's dry goods store at Eighteenth and Halsted streets at 8:30 o'clock last night, and, after stealing three bolts of silk from the piles of dry goods displayed on the sidewalk, made their escape, although pursued by Police Sergeant Danner of the Canalport Avenue Station and several employés of the store. Several shots were fired after the fugitives, and the police say one of the robbers returned the fire.

Complainant Suffers Arrest.

T. O. Curnick, 726 Washtenaw avenue, complained to the Desplaines street police last night that he had been robbed in a poker game at 209 Jackson boulevard. He went to the place with the police and was arrested with nine others. The name of the alleged keeper is Frederick Rose.

Old Woman Seeks New Jersey Governor, Wishing to Be Executed in Place of Hill.

She declared she was Mrs. Sarah Story, 65 years old, a Spiritualist, from Camden. She stated her life was nearly over, and if it was the demand of law and justice that a life must be given for the murder of Mrs. Hill she was willing to die and let Hill live.

She claimed Hill did not deserve death, and that he was insane when he committed the crime.

GIVE UP BOOKS OR QUIT.

COUNTY MERIT BOARD RECEIVES AN ULTIMATUM.

President Hanberg Declares That Unless Records of the Office Are Before Grand Jury at 9 A. M. Today Morrison, Lovejoy, and Lantz Will Be Discharged — Secretary Cannot Be Found and Is Said to Have Left Town.

Unless the County Civil Service Commissioners produce the records of their office, for which the grand jury is waiting, by 9 o'clock this morning President Hanberg of the County board will remove the entire commission. Unless Secretary George W. Lovejoy of the commission is apprehended or appears voluntarily by that time and opens the vault in which these records are stored the sweeping out of the present merit board is certain, as Lovejoy is asserted to be the only member who knows the combination. President Hanberg asserts that his ultimatum will be carried out to the letter.

In the meantime the Citizens' association's charges that the members of the merit board are guilty of malfeasance in office are pending presentation before the grand jury. When President Hanberg again asserted yesterday that he could not produce the records, subpœnas were issued for President James J. Morrison, Secretary Lovejoy, and Walter A. Lantz, the Democratic member who holds on though his term expired on Dec. 1, citing them to bring in the records and books. Deputy Sheriffs at once started to locate the missing commissioners.

Morrison Found at Dunning.

Morrison was found at Dunning, where he is said to have been held since Tuesday by the smallpox quarantine. He will appear at the State's Attorney's office this morning, he says, but insists that he cannot produce the records, as Lovejoy alone can open the vault. Lovejoy had not been found last night, and friends asserted that he had left town. Walter A. Lantz could not be found, and it was said he also had departed.

"If those records are not produced by 9 o'clock in the morning," said President Hanberg last night, "I shall remove the entire commission and appoint their successors at once. The new commission can blow open the vault doors with dynamite, if necessary, to get the records. The grand jury could do this on an order from the court.

"I can get those records only through the Civil Service commission under existing conditions," he continued. "I have no right to force the vault doors open. I have tried in every way to get my hands on Lovejoy, but we have been unable to locate him. I wish to aid in every way in the investigation of alleged irregularities on the part of the board."

Will Tell All He Knows.

President Morrison was one of those who wanted to find Lovejoy last night.

"We were conducting an examination at Dunning when the quarantine regulations were established," he said. "Lovejoy hurried away but the doctors detained me, as they feared I might carry contagion to my family.

"I knew nothing about the matter until I read THE TRIBUNE this morning. I shall appear before the grand jury in the morning and tell everything I know."

Secretary Hoyt King of the Citizens' association asserts that if the records are not secured county employés will be cited before the grand jury today and oral evidence offered against the merit board in the effort to have its members indicted for malfeasance in office.

Witnesses Are Summoned.

To this end subpœnas were issued last night for Harry Alloway, County Hospital fireman; Charles McLean, Frank Kochanski, August Wilhelm, and Arthur Marr. These men are to be questioned as to the manner in which they secured their positions to ascertain if the allegations of the Citizens' association that the examinations of the commission are not "open, competitive, and free" are true.

"Lovejoy and Lantz need not think they will dodge answering the grand jury by running away," said he. "There will be other grand juries if all our evidence does not get before the present body."

"For five years," said President George E. Cole of the association, "these men have throttled the county civil service law. We are determined to show that these laws are on the statute books to be respected."

L. D. Langworthy is mentioned as a probable appointee should the present board be removed. Robert Redfield is strongly backed for Lantz's place, as reform organizations oppose P. H. Keenan, who is backed by the Hopkins-Gahan wing of the Democracy.

THREE ROADS IN BIG DEAL.

Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, and the Rock Island Said to Be Near Merging Arrangement.

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—An important deal is said to be in progress between the Southern Pacific, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, and the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroads, by which the Rock Island will be acquired by a syndicate, which will be composed of the strong bankers who have long been interested in the Atchison and the Southern Pacific.

D. O. Mills, who occupies a position between the Rock Island and the Atchison, having holdings in both properties, is opposed to the policy of the executive officials of the Rock Island of unsettling the railway situation, so the first matter to be settled will be the heading off of the proposed extension of the Rock Island to reach El Paso.

FIND "ELOISE T." IN CUDAHY CASE.

Letter to Wife of Omaha Packer Found in Possession of Cincinnati Woman.

CONTAINS MANY THREATS

Missive Revealed Through Arrest of Dr. Ada Horman on Charge of Attempted Extortion.

FEDERAL OFFICERS AT WORK

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The arrest of Dr. Ada Sheehan Horman, her husband, and her son, Clyde Sheehan, here today on a charge of trying to secure money by extortion and threats, has led to the discovery of a letter in Mrs. Horman's room which is said to be in the same handwriting as the "Eloise T." letters sent to Mrs. Cudahy in Omaha offering to reveal the kidnaper of Eddie Cudahy for money.

The letter found today reads as follows:

"Cincinnati, O., Dec. 29, 1900.—Mrs. A. E. Cudahy, Omaha, Neb.—Dear Madam: I am going to write to you as woman to woman. First, you saw our hand; second, you will be warned this evening of what is in store if we are not satisfied that we are safe.

"Now, I wrote to your husband on Sunday last and stated our terms as to what we wanted, or what I wanted. First, if you agree to the terms named in that letter and this one I can give you my word that your children will be safe for all time to come. And I hope and trust we may come to terms and settle this matter once and for all.

"Now, as I told Mr. Cudahy in my letter to him, for a monetary consideration, named herein later, we will put you in possession of absolute proof that will convict the abductors of your son and will secure the safety of your loved daughter. You can never get these proofs any other way. They are letters that passed between the principals of this affair relative to it, and other proofs that will surprise you.

Sums of Money Demanded.

"Now, my terms, as I told Mr. Cudahy, are $5,000, as follows: $1,000 in $100 bills, $1,000 in $50, $2,000 in $20, $1,000 in $10; this to be sent by express to a well-known businessman whom I will designate. Also, will send you an order to send him, he to deliver the money without any question upon presentation of duplicate order. Then I want fifty-six hours to arrange things and change the bills. At the end of that time an A. D. T. messenger will deliver you all the proof you require.

"Second, no detectives or police to either follow or watch this messenger under any circumstances, for, although you might get him, you would get no information, for he knows nothing about anything.

Makes Final Threat.

"Now this is all and your last. Choose what you wish, we have kept faith with you so far and will so long as you keep it with us. So decide at once and let me know as directed, for although it may take years to accomplish what we say, it will come when you least expect it, perhaps harder than you expect. Accept my offer or let it alone if you value your children's safety. Accept and not one of the gang dare touch a hair of their heads; refuse and I shall withdraw my protection and harm may come now or years from now.

"Mrs. Cudahy, you will find it safer to trust us than the police, for you have seen we kept our word, and cover up our tracks securely. ELOISE V. TARRELLS."

Arrest for Another Offense.

The Hormans were arrested today by Postoffice Inspectors on the charge of attempting to extort money from Howard Douglass, a local attorney, and from Dr. C. D. Crank of Mount Auburn.

The trap was laid with marked postage stamps, a Postal Inspector replacing stamps in Horman's desk with a like number privately marked.

The sum of $7,000 was demanded of Douglass, on penalty of having family skeletons exposed. Mrs. Douglass was asked for $1,000 and Dr. D. C. Crank for a like sum.

Mrs. Horman has had quite a spectacular career as a faith healer and an advocate of unique ideas.

The prisoners were released on bail and further investigations are being made.

BOY IS HANGED ON WINDMILL.

Ashford Lad's Scarf Catches in Machine and He Is Choked to Death.

Campbellsport, Wis., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Barthol Hall was accidentally hanged on the shaft of a windmill on the farm of his father in the Town of Ashford. The boy mounted a ladder to oil the gearing of the machine. He wore a scarf. There was a high wind blowing and the loose ends of the scarf, which was tied about his neck, were caught in the gearing. The wind, carrying the wheel around, dragged the boy off the ladder and he was suspended by the neck twenty-five feet above the earth. William Hall, the boy's father, was near, but before he could reach him the gearing constantly drawing the scarf tighter about the neck of the boy, had choked him to death.

TO SLASH RUBBER PRICES.

TRUST WILL ANNOUNCE EIGHTEEN PER CENT CUT TODAY.

Independent Concerns Expected to Meet the Reduction, Which They Say Is Inspired by Wall Street Stock Manipulators — Declare Old Stock Worth $7,000,000 Will Be Unloaded on the Market—Complain of Circular's Terms.

The United States Rubber company, the "trust," will put in effect this morning a cut of 18 per cent on all its manufactured goods. It is declared the independent companies will meet the reduction. The circular announcing the trust's plan was issued on Wednesday, but was kept a secret in the hope of surprising the rival concerns. At the local offices of the trust yesterday the announcement of the reduction was neither affirmed nor denied, but rival houses were well acquainted with the plan.

Chicago agents of independent companies declared that the reduction was merely another attempt of the trust to force the independent manufacturers out of business or into a "sister" organization. They charge that the United States company will not unload newly manufactured goods upon the market, but will sell the accumulation of the last two years, valued at $7,000,000, which they allege has been stored away in the company's storehouses or with the jobbers. The outside manufacturers have mailed circulars to their trade and salesmen, notifying them of the alleged scheme and urging the trade to stand by them and assist in fighting the "trust."

Blames the Stock Manipulators.

John L. Peterman of the Milltown India Rubber company said:

"I am informed that the trust has the accumulation of at least two years' manufacturing on its hands. This stock is worth at least $7,000,000. It is, so I am informed, to be unloaded on the market to swamp the outside manufacturer who dares to fight. The cut will make the price of rubber boots and shoes 14 per cent lower than we are selling, but our people will meet every reduction."

A. D. Wentz, general sales agent for the Beacon Falls Rubber Shoe company, said:

"The cut will not be due to any reduction in the price of material or the cost of production. The outside manufacturer has had the best end of the trade for at least two years, and the people who purchase the goods of the 'trust' will secure only its accumulation for the last two years. This is merely another effort to force the independent manufacturer out of business or into the trust."

Complain of Circular's Terms.

The trust's circular is said to be responsible for considerable dissatisfaction, as it was accompanied by a set of blank forms on which is to be made a sworn statement of goods in unbroken cases, purchases from the company since April 1, 1900, and now in the hands of the company's customers. The contract with the trust under which the trade has been doing business specifically states that if a reduction is made between Dec. 1, 1900, and March 31, 1901, the purchasers shall be entitled to a corresponding reduction on goods actually on hand in his own store at the time of the reduction.

STEVE BRODIE, BRIDGE JUMPER, DIES IN TEXAS.

Well-Known New York Character Passes Away at San Antonio After Career Full of Adventure.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Steve Brodie died at 10:15 tonight. His remains will be shipped to New York for burial.

Steve Brodie jumped into public notice and from the Brooklyn bridge in 1885, but before that, with nothing but a large assortment of self-assurance, he had become known in New York. His career began as a newsboy. He then became a professional pedestrian, after holding a job as janitor. He saved $6,000 from his earnings as a pedestrian. Then he married the daughter of a wealthy Southern Colonel and lost her money in an attempt to amass a fortune on the racetrack.

After he jumped from the Brooklyn bridge he opened a saloon on the Bowery and went into New York politics.

In 1889 he attempted to deceive the public by declaring he had gone through Niagara rapids in a rubber suit, but was detected.

He went on the stage, showed in dime museums, and amassed a fortune from his many ventures. He has been in ill-health for several years, suffering with lung trouble.

FIRST RITES IN QUEEN'S FUNERAL

Body of Great Britain's Dead Ruler to Be Taken Across the Solent This Afternoon.

WARSHIPS NOW IN LINE.

Royal Remains to Pass Through an Avenue of Battleships to Portsmouth Harbor.

GREAT PAGEANT IN LONDON.

Funeral Procession Tomorrow to Be the Most Brilliant and Impressive Ever Seen in the Capital.

CROWDS POUR INTO THE CITY.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 1, 3 a. m.—This afternoon all that remains of Queen Victoria will be carried from the Isle of Wight to the harbor at Portsmouth with all the pomp and circumstance of military and naval pageantry.

The coffin containing the royal remains will repose in the crimson covered bier on the deck of the yacht Victoria and Albert during the night, and tomorrow will be borne through the streets of London, accompanied by the most imposing military demonstration ever witnessed in the city.

At 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon the coffin will be transported to Windsor, where in St. George's Chapel will be conducted a service as impressive as the rites of the Church of England and the orders of knighthood can make it.

Such, in brief, are the final arrangements for the funeral of the dead Queen. As far as possible all the plans are complete.

Military Feature Uppermost.

The military feature will everywhere predominate. The funeral cortége will approach the shores of England through an avenue of battleships, stretching ten miles across the Solent. From the moment the royal yacht starts from Cowes until it reaches its anchorage in the harbor at Portsmouth the minute guns of the fleet will thunder the sonorous tribute of the navy to the memory of the departed Queen. Through the streets of London the Queen's coffin will be borne on a gun carriage, escorted by troops and followed by battalions from nearly forty different regiments. Kings, Queens, Princes, Dukes, and Earls will ride in the procession, accompanied by military staffs, garbed in the brilliant panoply of war, while in the train of the dead monarch will follow Field Marshals, Generals, and commanders of the legions.

All London will pour forth into the streets to witness so imposing a pageant, and the crush promises to rival any ever witnessed at the capital.

Soldiers Pour into London.

For the funeral 33,000 soldiers will be under arms. Three thousand men will march in the procession, and the remainder will line the route. The detachments of troops in the procession will represent every branch of the army, navy, colonials, yeomanry, and volunteers. The military display, however, will not be spectacular. All the men will wear overcoats except the Irish footguards on duty at Buckingham Palace. Twenty thousand soldiers are pouring into London from the country. School buildings will be utilized as barracks.

An army of workmen today is preparing Victoria Station for the arrival of the funeral cortége. The placards have been torn down, the wood and iron work has been repainted and the stores in the vicinity display the royal monogram on a black and purple background. All the possible details of the ceremonies are being rehearsed.

McKinley's Floral Tribute.

The floral tributes would, if permitted, fill St. George's Chapel to the exclusion of spectators. They come from all over the world.

President McKinley's wreath for the Queen is among the finest received. It is a simple wreath, eight feet in diameter and two feet wide, all white. It is composed of lilies of the valley, white roses, camelias, lilacs, and arum lilies, which were specially selected because of their gigantic proportions. Covering one side is a magnificent spray of mauve orchids (cattleyas and dendrobiums), mauve Alexanders, etc. Depending from the wreath is a broad silk ribbon inscribed in silver lettering, "From the President of the United States." It took six workmen two days to make the wreath, which will be sent to Windsor by special messenger.

Mr. Choate, the American Ambassador, will send a cross seven feet high, composed of camelias, lilies of the valley, white roses, and white tulips. The card on the cross is inscribed "From the Ambassador of the United States."

Mrs. Garfield, widow of ex-President Garfield, will also send a wreath.

Program for Saturday.

The Earl Marshal (Duke of Norfolk) gave out the following program last evening, subject to a change of weather, which may necessitate some of the visiting royalties using carriages instead of riding, as indicated:

On Saturday, Feb. 2, a guard of honor will be mounted at the London stations, Victoria and Paddington, and at Buckingham Palace. At 9 o'clock precisely the royal coffin will be removed from Portsmouth to London, arriving at Victoria at 11 o'clock. On its arrival in London the royal coffin will be removed from the carriage by an officer and twelve men of the Grenadier Guards, placed on a gun carriage, and the crown and cushion will be laid thereon. List of Royal Mourners.

It is recalled that on the occasion of the funeral of Queen Elizabeth no foreigner followed the bier, with the exception of the French Ambassador, but on Monday all Europe will accompany the bier of the "mother of sovereigns" to the imperial mausoleum at Frogmore.

The following is the list of the royal mourners, with those deputed to attend them during their sojourn in England:

The Duke of Aosta, Major General Slade.

The Turkish Mission, Major Barnardistone.

No Newspapers Saturday.

The managers of the London afternoon papers have decided unanimously to suspend publication tomorrow (Saturday) so that those who are not able to witness the funeral scenes will have to wait until Sunday for the descriptions. Such a suspension, except on Good Friday, is almost without precedent. It will serve to emphasize the solemnity of a great occasion.

The naval display will be less striking than on the occasion of the diamond jubilee. It had been expected that more foreign men-of-war would be present. Moreover, several vessels of the channel squadron are now detained for repairs at their base port. Yet the spectacle will be extremely majestic. The Spanish warship, Emperador Carlos V., which was ordered to Portsmouth, has been obliged to return to Ferrol, her engines being disabled.

Day of Complete Mourning.

Tomorrow (Saturday) will be a day of complete national mourning, not only in London, but throughout the provinces and the colonies. There will be a general closing of shops and a suspension of business as well as the holding of memorial services.

Railroads at a Standstill.

The directors of the Northeastern railway system of England have ordered that at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow, the hour appointed for the funeral at Windsor, all trains shall be brought to a standstill and every servant of the company shall remain motionless for ten minutes.

Services at Windsor Private.

In the Windsor ceremony few beyond the actual members of the family will see much after the procession has entered St. George's Chapel, which will be divided by a carved screen, back of which the services will be conducted invisible to most of the non-royal invited guests on the other side.

It appears that after her death Queen Victoria was arrayed in her royal robes with all her foreign orders and decorations. Over these and across her breast were laid the ribbon and Order of the Garter. Her bridal veil was then placed over her head and face.

The inhabitants of Portsmouth are considerably disappointed at the decision to land the body at Gosport, which will rob the landing of everything of a public nature and make it a purely private and family matter. It is said that the King at first favored a public land at the dock yard, but he has been unnecessarily worried by the officious local civilian authorities, and, being weary after the continuous strain of his duties, he finally decided upon the more quiet Gosport landing.

Gorgeous Pavilion for Royalty.

The pavilion being erected at Victoria Station, London, is a beautiful structure, forty feet long, fifteen feet high, and eleven feet wide. It is exquisitely draped outside with purple cloth and white silk embroidery and inside with royal purple and white satin, the roof being striped alternately with silver and purple tapestry.

Panels representing the favorite homes of Victoria enrich the walls. A marble bust of the Queen on a massive pedestal holds the center of the pavilion. The carpet is scarlet colored and of the finest antique Persian. Clusters of electric lights resembling flaming candles are in the corners and suspended from the ceiling. The chairs are of the period of Louis XVI. and are covered with Aubusson tapestries.

Proofs of Mourning Abroad.

Innumerable proofs come from abroad of the mourning that will be observed tomorrow.

The flags on French warships will be half-masted. At Munich the theaters will be closed by royal command. In Athens all the gas lamps will be lighted and hung with crape. Similar tributes will be paid in many other foreign cities.

Not the Queen's Biographer.

Sir Theodore Martin writes to the Times this morning to deny the rumor that he has been invited to write Queen Victoria's biography.

"No such request is likely to be made to me," he says. "My age unfits me for such a heavy task, which would entail years of labor and study. It will be a noble task, but one not to be lightly entered upon, and for the worthy fulfillment of which the world will be content to wait."

MISS ASTOR AND HER PROSPECTIVE FIANCE.

Miss Pauline Astor. The Duke of Roxburghe.

William Waldorf Astor is said to look with favor upon the attentions being paid his daughter by the Duke of Roxburghe, and the announcement soon of the engagement of Miss Astor to the Duke is probable. The Duke is 25 years old, and is a grandson on his mother's side of the seventh Duke of Marlborough.

Warships in Readiness.

COWES, Jan. 31, 9 p. m.—A glittering crescent of light stretches this evening from Cowes to Portsmouth. It consists of ten miles of warships, the pick of the British, French, and German navies. These lie at anchor, ready to take their part in tomorrow's ceremonies, when the navy will pay a last magnificent tribute to the sovereign whose reign was marked by the greatest naval progress in the history of the nation.

It probably will be nearly 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when the Alberta, with the royal coffin, leaves Cowes. It will steam inside the single line and then enter the passage formed by the leviathans.

Weather May Be Bad.

The omens for fine weather tomorrow are not propitious, but the first of thousands of spectators are arriving this evening, together with soldiers in brilliant uniforms. The mile and a half of road outside the Town of East Cowes and separating Osborne from Trinitypier, is a typical country thoroughfare. The troops lining it will have difficult work.

The coffin, the military spectacle, and the other attendant features will inspire intense interest and emotion, but what creates greater expectancy is the announcement that Queen Alexandra and the Princesses of the royal blood will walk down the muddy road and through the narrow streets to the water's edge.

This part of the program thus far holds good, although should rain be falling when the procession starts from Osborne House, the royal ladies will scarcely persist in their determination.

Prince Henry Arrives.

Prince Henry of Prussia and his staff landed here at noon today. After an inspection of the guard of honor the Prince proceeded to Osborne House. Later in the day he returned to his flagship.

The squadron of German warships commanded by Prince Henry of Prussia, comprising the flagship Baden, the battleship Odin, and the cruisers Victoria Louise, Hagen, and Nymphe, and two torpedo boats, reached Spithead this morning and took up positions opposite Portsmouth, at the extreme eastward end of the line.

The German squadron will thus, with the British vessels opposite it—the Majestic, Prince George, Mars, and Hannibal—have the place of honor, and will be the last to see the Alberta, with the remains of the Queen, enter Portsmouth.

Next to the German warships comes the French battleship Dupuy de Lome, and then the Japanese battleship Hatsuse. The end of the line will be occupied by the Portuguese cruiser Don Carlos I. and the Spanish cruiser Emperador Carlos V.

Order for Today's Procession.

The following is the official order of the procession from Osborne to Cowes:

At 1:45 p. m. the coffin will be borne from Osborne House by her Majesty's Highlanders and will be placed on a gun carriage. The Queen's company of the Grenadier Guards with the Queen's colors will be drawn up facing the entrance, will present arms, and will then wheel about and open outwards, forming a double rank through which the gun carriage will pass. This escort will march on either side of the coffin, outside of the equerries.

The procession will then move off in the following order:

Mounted grooms.
The Deputy Assistant Adjutant General of the Southern District.
A detachment of the Hampshire Carbineers.
The Lieutenant Governor of the Isle of Wight and staff of the Southern District.
The staff of the Commander-in-Chief of Portsmouth.
The General commanding the Southern District.
The Naval Commander-in-Chief.
Massed bands and drums of the Royal Marine Artillery and of the Royal Marine Light Infantry, who will commence playing a funeral march as soon as they pass out of the Queen's gate.
The Queen's Highlanders.
The Queen's pipers.
The gun carriage, drawn by eight horses and preceded and followed by her late Majesty's equerries and aids-de-camp, escorted by the Queen's company of Grenadier Guards, with the coffin.
King Edward, Emperor William, the Duke of Connaught, the Crown Prince of Germany, Prince Henry of Prussia, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Prince Arthur of Connaught, Prince Charles of Denmark, Prince Louis of Battenberg, Queen Alexandra, the Duchess of York, the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, Princess Louise, Princess Beatrice, the Duchess of Connaught, the Duchess of Albany, Princess Victoria of Wales, Princess Charles of Denmark, and the households of the royal families.

CROKER PAYS THE TAXES.

Tammany Chief Helps Fill the British Treasury Rather than Answer Questions.

[Special Cable to the New York World and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Richard Croker arrived at Wantage on Wednesday and drove in a covered carriage to the Moat House, Letcomb. He returned to London today. He has paid his income tax assessment, abandoning his appeal in face of the inquisitorial character of the interrogatories addressed to him by the Assessment committee, false answers to which would render him liable to a heavy fine.

MISS GONNE COMES TO LECTURE

Irish Woman to Deliver Addresses in the United States on the Boer War.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

When she arrives in New York she and Major McBride, who commanded the Irish brigade in the Boer army, will proceed to deliver joint lectures throughout the United States on the subject of the Boer war and the necessity of keeping the Irish from enlisting in the British army.

CZECH INSULT TO QUEEN.

AUSTRIAN REICHSRATH SCENE OF ANTI-ENGLISH OUTBURST.

President of the Parliament, in Paying a Tribute to the Memory of the Dead British Ruler, Is Answered by Cheers for the Boers—Part of a Program of Obstruction to the Government — Pan-Germans Leave the Chamber—Press Is Indignant.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

VIENNA, Jan. 31.—At the first sitting of the Reichsrath today the President commenced a speech on Queen Victoria, in which he paid tributes to her memory. He was at once interrupted by shouts from the Radicals of "Long live the Boers!" and "Hurrah for the Boers!" Herr Wolff, the notorious obstructionist, shouted: "Down with the miserable British robbers!" There were counter shouts of "Shame!" and a great tumult ensued.

Press Is Indignant.

All the sober organs of the press indignantly protest against the gross violation of every standard of propriety by the Reichsrath. It was not only that a distressing occasion was chosen to manifest sympathy for the Boers but some of the demonstrators interjected insulting remarks concerning Queen Victoria.

The demonstration, however, is well understood to have been part of the campaign of obstruction, which the anti-government parties are determined to renew. The Czech Nationalists, Socialists, and Pan-Germans all shared in the demonstration, but they did not confine their uncouth behavior to expressions against Great Britain.

The Czechs opened the ball by insulting shouts, daring the government to utter a word against the Czechs in the speech from the throne, which will be delivered on Feb. 4.

Insult to the Emperor.

When the President began his address the Czechs called him an ass and other names. This preceded the Anglophobe outbreak. Subsequently the Pan-Germans ostentatiously left the chamber when the President called for the customary cheers for the Emperor.

The Moderates and educated members of the House, many of whom sympathize with the Boers, rose from their seats as a mark of respect to Queen Victoria upon the conclusion of the President's address.

MUNICIPAL RULE FOR LUZON.

Philippine Commission Passes Law for Government of Cities—Provincial Status to Be Fixed Next.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

MANILA, Jan. 31.—After two weeks' public discussion Professor Worcester's bill for the organization of municipal governments was unanimously passed by the Philippine commission, and became operative today. It grants pueblos, excepting in Manila, corporate life through self-governing, self-sustaining municipalities.

Tomorrow the commission will discuss the bill for provincial governments, which makes them corporate bodies, under a Governor elected by the people, and a Secretary, Treasurer, and Supervisor to be appointed by the commission, and to serve until March, 1902, when these officers and an attorney will be selected according to civil service rules.

Major Forbush reports that during December the Ninth Cavalry made twenty-five expeditions in Albay, killing forty-eight rebels and capturing forty-five rifles, in addition to destroying large quantities of supplies. Eight hundred refugees have returned to Matnog, in the Province of Albay.

Two hundred and fifty insurgents have taken the oath of allegiance in the Camarines.

Captain Cameron and Lieutenant Quinlan, with two columns of 100 native cavalry, attacked the insurgent commander Geronimo near Montalbon, sixteen miles from Manila, killing twenty of his men and capturing thirty-six rifles. Lieutenant Quinlan is pursuing the remainder of the band to the southward.

DUKE HENRY AT THE HAGUE.

Future Husband of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland Makes State Entry into the Capital.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 31.—Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, whom Queen Wilhelmina will marry, made his formal entry into the capital at 8 o'clock this evening, wearing the uniform of a Dutch General and Dutch decorations. He was received at the railway station by a guard of honor and with great ceremony.

The Premier welcomed him on behalf of the Cabinet as "the betrothed of our beloved Queen and a Dutch subject."

Enormous crowds displayed the wildest enthusiasm, and the troops were scarcely able to control the people who massed around the palace where another guard of honor was drawn up.

VENEZUELA REVOLT NEAR END.

United States Minister Loomis at Caracas Reports Victory Over the Insurgents.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—A report from Minister Loomis at Caracas, dated today, indicates that the revolution is near an end in the opinion of the Venezuelan government, in view of a decisive victory gained over the revolutionists near Carunpano. Another battle is reported to have occurred recently near La Cuevas, in which both sides lost several hundred men.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curaçoa, Jan. 31.—Guerrilla warfare continues in the eastern district of Venezuela, but the reports of the victory of the government troops near Carupano, in the State of Bermudez, are amply confirmed. The papers also report that 230 government troops and a large number of insurgents were killed in the battle near Las Cuevas, and it is rumored that the government troops comitted great atrocities.

FAILS TO CORNER DE WET.

GEN. KNOX ENGAGES THE BOER LEADER SEVERAL HOURS.

Burgher Force Leaves Five Dead on the Field—Cross the Bloemfontein-Ladybrand Line, Avoiding a British Force Under Bruce Hamilton—French Engages 2,000 of the Enemy, Who Leave Four Killed and Nine Wounded—Losses on British Side.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 1, 3 a. m.—The War office has received the following dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, yesterday:

"Knox engaged De Wet south of Welcome [Weklom?] on Jan. 29, and there was continuous fighting for some hours. Pilcher buried five Boers and took three prisoners. Our losses were one officer and one man killed and thirteen men wounded.

"Last evening De Wet crossed the Bloemfontein-Ladybrand line, near Israelspoort. Bruce Hamilton, who was at the waterworks, was unable to get in touch with him.

"French engaged 2,000 Boers in the Wilge Valley. The enemy had four killed and nine wounded. Our casualties were one killed and seven wounded."

De Wet Menaces Cape Colony.

General Kitchener's characteristically curt admission that General De Wet has eluded General Bruce Hamilton increases the fears that the Boer leader has entered or is about to enter the Cape Colony. A telegram from Cape Town says that unofficial corroboration of yesterday's report that he is now in the colony have been received, and estimates his force at 1,500 men, with two guns. The news is regarded here as discouraging, if no worse.

Says Kaiser May Mediate.

The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News mentions a rumor that Emperor William is willing to mediate between Great Britain and the South African Republics.

Boers Damage Mine Property.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

PRETORIA, Jan. 30.—After General French left The Springs, near Johannesburg, yesterday 500 Boers crossed from Nigel and did some damage to mine property at Elandsfontein. From there they proceeded toward Rietfontein, and in passing threatened the East Rand mines. The British garrison repulsed them and captured Commandant Marais, who had been wounded. Some other prisoners were also taken. An armored train also fired on the Boers with pompoms from Rietfontein station, causing further loss to the burghers.

Another commando is reported to have gone westward along the Gats Band, southeast of Johannesburg, in the Potchefstroom district.

The books of the Register of Deeds here show that ex-President Kruger after the relief of Ladysmith transferred his property to his heirs, none of whom is now fighting, they all having either surrendered or been taken prisoners.

De Wet Shoots Peace Envoy.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 31.—The commissioner at Kroonstad reports that Andries Wessels, one of the peace envoys, was shot at Klipfontein on Jan. 28 by orders of General De Wet.

Morgan Daal, who was another of the two Boer peace envoys, and who accompanied Andries Wessels, was shot near Lindley on Jan. 10.

Skirmish Near Benoni.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 30.—Four or five hundred Boers recently evaded the British patrols, reached Benoni, and attempted to destroy the mines. Some fighting resulted and the Boers were beaten off, carrying away most of their wounded and leaving two wounded behind them. The British captured three prisoners. One Briton was wounded. Commandant Marais was also wounded during the attack.

MAKE GEN. GOMEZ THE ISSUE.

Delegate to Cuban Convention Divided Over Proposal to Bar Him from the Presidency.

[Special Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

HAVANA, Jan. 31.—Today the twelfth section, dealing with the Presidency, was discussed. The delegates held a private session previously to decide whether a foreigner could be President They sat for two hours.

A vote resulted in a tie—14 to 14. The supporters of General Gomez then entered the convention room and sent for Señor Gener, who is a partisan of the old revolutionary leader. The anti-Gomez delegates refused to appear, however, knowing that they would be defeated. The meeting broke up for want of a quorum.

A majority of the delegates are against General Gomez, but are afraid to oppose him. Some say this is owing to the fact that the people want General Gomez, while others say it is due to fear of Gomez himself, who is regarded by many as a lawless man of strong and dangerous passions. Old Cubans say that he would not be bound by any constitution. Those against General Gomez imagine that they would be killed politically if Gomez should be elected.

The third clause was amended so as to provide that the Senators must be native-born Cubans. The eleventh section was approved with few changes.

GUNBOAT IN A FIERCE GALE.

Venezuelan Warship, Formerly George Gould's Yacht, Has a Narrow Escape at Sea.

SAN JUAN DE PORTO RICO, Jan. 31.—The Venezuelan gunboat Restaurador, formerly the Atalanta, George Gould's yacht, which left New York on Jan. 24 for La Guayra, Venezuela, arrived here today.

The commander, Captain Jeremiah Merithew, reports that the gunboat struck a fearful gale off Bermuda last Sunday, which continued for three days. Coal and water were exhausted and the mahogany deckwork was burned as fuel.

Finally the bunker floors were burned, but this scarcely served to keep up steam, and the last available fuel had gone into the furnace, when the Restaurador sighted El Morro. Captain Merithew had to burn his last barrel of pork to get the gunboat into port.

SOUTHERN MAY ACQUIRE MONON.

Morgan Deal Said to Contemplate Merging of the Two Systems.

BELLEVUE BOARD BLAMED

Grand Jury Report Scores Hospital Officials for Neglect of Duty.

GENERAL NEW YORK NEWS.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Jan. 31.

Monon to Become Part of Southern.

There is good authority for the statement that the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railroad (the Monon system) is to become a part of the Southern railway system. It is for the most part in the territory now controlled by the Southern.

J. Pierpont Morgan has owned the Monon for some time, and rumor has transferred it from time to time to the Big Four, to the Lake Shore, and to the Southern. The relations between the Monon and the Southern have been close, and recently the merging of the Monon into the Southern system has been regarded as a matter of course.

It is intimated from official sources that no immediate changes will be made in the organization or policy of the Monon system. After the Mobile and Ohio is actually absorbed by the Southern system the permanent adjustment of the Monon's relations to that system is likely to be taken up.

Officers of the Mobile and Ohio said today holders of a majority of the securities of the company had agreed to the proposition made by the Southern railway company. A large amount of the general 4 per cent bonds and the stock of the company have been deposited with J. P. Morgan & Co.

Grand Jury Scores Bellevue Officials.

The grand jury's presentment concerning conditions at Bellevue Hospital was handed up to Judge Cowing today. The presentment stated that Superintendent William B. O'Rourke, Assistant Superintendent Michael J. Ricard, and Dr. John W. Moore, who for six weeks prior to Jan. 1 was assistant physician in charge of the pavilion for the insane, were grossly incompetent and should be removed by the Commissioner of Charities.

Commissioner Keller is not criticised, but on the contrary, the jury pointed out that his prerogatives and those of the Superintendent have been gradually encroached upon by the Medical board, which is declared to be directly and absolutely responsible for the administration of Bellevue. Politics, not fitness, the jury declares, secures appointments to the hospital staff.

The presentment says: "Our investigation, covering the year 1900, showed that out of 700 insane patients sent from Bellevue to Manhattan Hospital in that year, upward of 250 appeared from the records of Manhattan Hospital to have received contusions upon different parts of the body, and the photographs taken showed that the faces of many of these 250 patients had severe bruises."

The so-called Maximilian gems were sold at public auction in the federal building today and brought a sum of $2,235. Special Treasury Agent Theobald seized these stones in the possession of two Mexicans, Preza and Marcuci by name, who were trying to dispose of them without payment of duty.

Committee of Fifteen Seeks Evidence.

The Committee of Fifteen has divided the Borough of Manhattan into more than forty districts. A corps of volunteers, enlisted in the cause of purifying the city of existing evils, will be assigned to each district. It will be their duty to study and record all violations of law which they discover. Reports from the various districts will be made to the Committee of Fifteen.

The Committee of Fifteen is thus carrying out Bishop Potter's plans for a large organized vigilance committee, to comprise the rank and file of the army that is to contend with vice and crime. It is expected that the work of the vigilant investigators will be productive of the sort of legal proof against lawbreakers which the Tammany Anti-Vice committee has as yet been unable to furnish to the District Attorney.

But the collection of legal evidence is not the primary object of the vigilance movement. The jury to which its case will be presented will be the voters, who will be positively informed as never before of vice as it exists under a Tammany government.

Decide Third Rail System Is a Success.

A test which finally settled the practicability of the Murphy third rail system was made at Baltimore today, and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad officials have agreed that the inventor has fulfilled his contract. The system will be completed on the Belt line railroad next Monday or Tuesday.

The final test was made in the presence of a number of railroad financiers and electrical experts. A train of twenty-eight loaded coal cars, together with a heavy dead engine and caboose, were hauled from the Camden Station yards through the tunnel to Mount Royal Station, up a steep grade, without any difficulty. The biggest steam engine could not do this. Steam locomotives were tried, and two were often stalled at the difficult curves on the grade.

With the third rail system a current of 900 amperes was used, while with the overhead system, about to be discarded, a current of from 1,200 to 1,500 amperes was necessary.

Passenger Hustled Off Ocean Liner.

Eugene Roumegoux, impresario and former director of grand opera in Bordeaux, Toulouse, Caracas, and Martinique, was to have sailed for France this morning on the French liner La Gascogne. Roumegoux was on deck bidding farewell to an operatic friend when the signal was given to clear the ship of visitors.

An instant later M. Roumegoux was rapidly but unwilling moving down the gangway to the dock, propelled by two seamen. At the same moment valises, steamer rugs, canes, and umbrellas were hurled over the rail.

M. Roumegoux lingered only long enough to collect his scattered wardrobe and then made for the office of Lawyer Oride Robellard. Later in the day Mr. Robellard said M. Roumegoux would at once begin action for $25,000. Roumegoux claims he bought a ticket for La Gascogne when it sailed on Jan. 3, but was unable to go then and telegraphed the French line if the ticket would be good later. They answered it would except on L'Aquitaine. His ticket was O. K.'d in the French line office this morning. Roumegoux went aboard. Later an official told Roumegoux he could not sail and had him put off.

Bride Waits for Husband and Draft.

Mrs. Timothy J. Brennan, a bride of five weeks, is wondering whether she has been deserted by her husband or whether he has met with some accident which has prevented him from returning to her. She is prostrated at her home, 43 East Forty-first street, anxiously awaiting some news in regard to his whereabouts.

Mrs. Brennan declares that when her husband left he went to Philadelphia to cash a draft for $150,000, and that the last trace she has obtained of him was when he left the bank with $60,000 in cash and another draft on a bank in Havana for the remaining $90,000.

Mrs. Brennan had only been married to her husband a little over two weeks when he vanished. The marriage was the result of a courtship of only four weeks, and it was planned that both Mr. and Mrs. Brennan should sail for Havana the day after that on which the husband disappeared.

Mackay Dinner to Cost $10,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay will give one of the largest private dinners New York society has ever known, at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow night. There will be 170 guests at table, and 100 more have been invited to the dance that follows the dinner. The evening's entertaining will cost close to $10,000.

The dinner is one of a series given by the younger society matrons. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.'s was the first. The affair will require the entire second floor of the Waldorf-Astoria. The guests will dine at one long table, which will run the entire length of the beautiful Astor gallery. The decorations will eclipse even the orchids and lilies of the valley at the famous Bradley-Martin farewell dinner two years ago. Dancing will be in the grand ballroom, while the Myrtle and East rooms will be used for lounging places and smoking.

"Silent" Smith to Give $15,000 Dinner Dance.

James Henry Smith, who inherited $50,000,000 from his uncle, George Smith, a little over a year ago, has planned a $15,000 dinner dance to which 150 of New York's innermost society circle have been bidden. Invitations were sent out today.

Since he has come into his inheritance Mr. Smith has been the most-sought-after man in New York socially. Of reserved, almost austere disposition, he never cared to knock at society's portals before. His nickname, "Silent" Smith, suited him. But this winter the new multi-millionaire suddenly entered the social life of New York and the "400" at once gave him every opportunity to do it. It is said that for one evening this winter Mr. Smith received seventy invitations to dinner.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. are attending to all the details of the dinner for Mr. Smith.

When discovered the people on the wreck were waving and gesticulating violently and at times hoarse shouts could be heard, until finally cries of "Help! We are sinking!" could be distinguished.

Big Increase in City Pay-Roll.

The supplement to the city record, published today, gives a revised list of city employés, with their salaries. The list contains about 45,000 names, over 1,000 more than in the roster published six months ago. The city and county salary roll is increased over $2,000,000. This is an increase of over 4 per cent on the total city salary roll in six months. The heaviest increase is made in the Department of Education. This approximates $1,700,000.

WORKING ON MURDER MYSTERY.

Wife of "Jim" Redmond Gives St. Joseph Police Information That Sets Whole Detective Force at Work.

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The wife of "Jim" Redmond, a police character, today gave the officers an account of a murder which she said occurred in a saloon at the corner of Sixth and Charles streets on Christmas evening, and the body, she says, was dumped in a manhole of the Charles street sewer. The victim was a stranger, the object of whose murder was robbery. The description she gives of the victim tallies with the description of Cyrus Lancaster, a stockman of Rosendale, Mo., who disappeared from this city on Christmas eve, having come here on a short business trip. The whole detective force of the city is working on the case. The sewer is being inspected tonight, with the hope of finding some trace of the body. Mrs. Redmond has given the police a good description of the murderers, and arrests are hourly expected. She has given the police her reasons for not having before made known the crime, and they are accepted.

APPORTIONMENT STRUGGLE IS ON.

Illinois Legislature Ready to Take Up Task of Making New Districts.

REPORT DUE NEXT WEEK.

Party Machinery to Be Used to Put the Bills Through Both Branches.

ROUTINE WORK IN HOUSE.

SPRINGFIELD BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.

The interminable wrangle incident to apportioning the State into Congressional and Senatorial districts has already commenced. The subcommittees charged with the duty of preparing these bills expect to report by the middle of next week. Then will begin a series of committee meetings in which bills will be agreed on. These bills will be submitted to a joint caucus of the Republican members of the House and Senate.

The machinery of the party, national as well as State, will, if need be, be brought into play to put these bills through. It is believed both measures will be sent to the Assembly together. They will go through the House first and thence over to the Senate. It is thought they will not be amended in any particular after they are agreed on in committee.

The trouble over Senatorial apportionment is not so much over territory as it is to take care of the holdover Senators, who cannot be deprived of their privileges. Three of these are particularly perplexing. Reference is made to Coleman of the Thirty-eighth District, Koch of the Forty-second, and Watson of the Forty-sixth. The districts must be framed so that the rights of these men will be preserved.

Sangamon Making Trouble.

Sangamon County is making a lot of trouble. Christian is ready to go in with Sangamon, but Sangamon does not like Christian, and wants to go in a district with Logan or Macon. Some of the southern Illinoisans desire to make a Republican district out of Washington, Monroe, Randolph, Perry, and Jackson. This district would have 115,000 population, while the ratio is 94,540. Senator Fowler of the Forty-fourth holds over and must be cared for. If Johnson, Hardin, Pope, Saline, Hamilton, and Massac are put together it would throw Chapman and Fowler in the same district, and Fowler would hold over.

Representative Milnor wants a district composed of Madison, Bond, and Montgomery. This district would be 16,000 over the ratio.

These are but a few of the troubles the committees have encountered. Some of the Senators are pleading for their old districts. Others, whose districts are close, insist on having additional Republican counties thrown in to help them through. Some of Governor Yates' friends want to hook Morgan and Sangamon up together.

Governor Yates Anxious.

Governor Yates will do anything and everything in his power to get these apportionment bills through at the earliest possible minute. He is determined to bring about this result because he realizes, as does every Republican, the manifest unfairness of the existing apportionment. Speaker Sherman is just as strenuous in a demand for new apportionments as Governor Yates.

When once the bills are indorsed by a Republican caucus, the grind will begin. Until the bills are out of the House and in the Senate Speaker Sherman will name no House committees. The work of framing them will be carried on night and day next week until they are completed.

In House and Senate.

Among the more important bills introduced in the Senate this morning were the following:

By Senator Hall—Providing that mercantile associations shall be assessed by the local Assessor in the same manner that individuals are assessed. Also a measure providing that every corporation hereafter organized under the laws of this State shall have power to create two or more kinds of stock of such classes, with such designations, preferences, and voting powers of restrictions or qualifications thereof as shall be stated and expressed in the application for a license to organize; and the power to increase or decrease the stock, as is provided by law, shall apply to all or any of the classes of stock. Such preferred stock may be made subject to redemption at not less than par at a fixed time and price.

By Senator Stubblefield—A bill prohibiting the sale of cigarets and cigaret paper in the State.

Nohe's Anti-Pass Bill.

The more important bills introduced in the House were as follows:

By Mr. Nohe—Prohibiting members of the Legislature from accepting free transportation from railroads for themselves or others under penalty of fine or imprisonment in the penitentiary. The bill was read a first time and made a special order for second reading on next Wednesday. Also a bill appropriating $61,193 to the Illinois Industrial Home for the Blind, at Chicago, for ordinary expenses and improvements for two years.

By Mr. Beitler—Increasing the salary of the Judges of the Circuit and Superior Courts and of the State's Attorney of Cook County to $12,000 per annum.

By Mr. Doyle—Amending the law in relation to negotiable instruments by making general election day a legal holiday and Saturday afternoon of each week a legal half holiday.

By Mr. Hunter of Winnebago—Appropriating $126,000 for new buildings at the State fair grounds.

By Mr. Walter—Providing for the proper ventilation and sanitary condition of bakeries and confectionery stores. The bill requires that rooms used for bakeries shall have ceilings at least eight feet above the floor; that the floors shall be of cement or of wood saturated with linseed oil; that no domestic animals other than cats shall be permitted in bakeries, and the rooms shall be inspected by the State Factory Inspector.

By Mr. Rankin—Appropriating $95,000 to cover a deficiency in the appropriation for the Illinois National Guard on account of extraordinary service of the State troops at Pana.

Speaker Names a Committee.

Speaker Sherman announced the appointment of the following committee on the Rights of the Minority: F. J. Sullivan, Farrell, Mitchell, Crafts, D. E. Sullivan, Wilson, Hunt, Jandus, Tippitt, Donoghue, Hefferman, Johnston, Purdunn, Warder, Gray, and Craig.

The House adopted the rule requiring that all bills proposing amendments to any statute of the State shall, by underscoring, disclose the proposed amendments.

A great number of bills, making appropriations for the State institutions, are coming in. The trustees of the insane asylum near Peoria want $904,674.92 for completing the institution. Nearly $65,000 of this amount is asked for the purpose of carrying out the contract given to Edward Gleason & Son.

Present Chicago Resolutions.

In the Senate President Northcott presented a set of resolutions adopted by ythe Union League club of Chicago indorsing an appropriation to establish a State Board of Control for State charitable institutions.

McEniry Contest Is Up.

The House Committee on Elections met this afternoon and took up the contest of McEniry against Andrews of the Thirty-third District. It grows out of a Democratic dispute as to which Senatorial committee had the right to name candidates for members of the Legislature.

According to the statement made by Mr. McEniry, the twelve delegates from Henry County appear to have tried to control the thirteen delegates from Rock Island, and the convention was rent in twain, as it were. The Democrats in Rock Island and Henry have been fighting over this question ever since the nominations were made. A further hearing of the contest was postponed until next Tuesday.

Committee on Elections.

Contrary to expectation, there was no eruption in the Senate this morning over the proposed report from the Senate Committee on Elections. The report was not made, and probably never will be. The committee will reassemble some day next week, and the indications are a majority of the committee will name the subcommittee to consider the contest as between Alden, Democrat, and Bollinger, Republican.

A big fight was expected over the matter, but it did not come. The Democrats intended to stand by Mr. Busse in the premises, and in this connection Senator Mahoney, the Democratic leader, declared that had Senator Riley offered his report, it would have been rejected, and the rejection would have been followed by a resolution deposing the chairman, Mr. Riley.

It looked for a time as if the clash was imminent, but Lieutenant Governor Northcott gave the leaders some good advice to avoid a contest on the floor of the Senate. This had the desired effect, and peace reigned once more.

Yates and the Office-Seekers.

Governor Yates said today that practically all of the members of the State boards and heads of departments appointed by Governor Tanner had tendered their resignations, but he did not wish to make the list public at this time. There is no abatement in the number of applicants for office who crowd into the executive department every day.

TO CHANGE CORPORATION LAW.

Illinois Manufacturers' Association Wants Provision for Issue of Different Kinds of Stock.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association has prepared a bill, which was introduced in the Legislature yesterday, which changes the corporation law so as to enable corporations to issue different classes of stocks. The association, which is composed almost entirely of corporations, saw the necessity for a change of this kind, and instructed its general counsel, Levy Mayer, to prepare a bill along these lines.

The act as drawn up provides that corporations shall have power to create two or more kinds of stock of such classes and with such designations, preferences, and voting powers or restrictions or qualifications as shall be stated in the charter, and to increase or decrease the same. The preferred stocks may be made subject to redemption at not less than par at a fixed time and price. It is also provided that corporations heretofore organized under the laws of the State may, by amending their charters, acquire the rights granted by the present bill.

PEDDLERS IN FATAL QUARREL.

James Kenny Shoots Patrick J. Kennedy and Makes His Escape—Woman Is the Cause.

During a quarrel over a woman James Kenny, a peddler, shot and probably fatally injured Patrick J. Kennedy, another peddler, in a room in the Albion Hotel, 100 South Halsted street, at 8:45 o'clock last evening. Kenny escaped. Kennedy was taken to the County Hospital.

Mrs. Ida Sullivan, 117 South Green street, over whose affections the men fought, met Kennedy by appointment about 8 o'clock. They were on their way to a restaurant when he suggested that they stop at the hotel to see a friend of his. Both went to the room which is occupied by William Daily. Daily was sitting on a chair near a bed where Kenny and "Punch" Clarke were lying. A fight followed, during which the shot was fired.

Kenny ran from the room with his companion and escaped. He is said to live near Halsted and Forty-seventh streets and is married. Mrs. Sullivan has a husband in Milwaukee.

Dr. F. H. Davis Not Bitten by Dog.

Dr. F. H. Davis, who was reported to have been bitten by a dog in Berwyn on Wednesday was not injured. Dr. Davis encountered the dog on the street, but escaped from it. Alma Lee and Chief of the Fire Department P. V. Fairvalley of Berwyn, who were bitten, visited the Pasteur Institute yesterday and had their wounds cauterized.

HOW RIVER PURIFIES ITSELF.

Health Department Purposes a Map to Controvert the Claims of St. Louis.

That the waters of the Drainage Canal and the Illinois River, into which the sanitary channel discharges, undergo self-purification from sewage pollution within a flow of little more than fifty miles from Chicago has been shown in the chemical tests made by the City Health department, which now has put the fact into map form. Chicago's sewage is carried 318 miles before the waters of the Drainage Canal are emptied into the Mississippi River at that stream's junction with the Illinois River at Grafton. Hence it is held that this controverts the claim of St. Louis that the opening of the Drainage Canal and the disposal of Chicago's sewage by this route pollutes the water supply of that city, secured from intakes at the Chain of Rocks, miles below Grafton.

In the map the drawing of the Illinois River is exaggerated in width to show the polluted and self-purified stretches of the stream as determined by the increase or decrease of bacteria. The following table shows the collecting stations on the Desplaines and Illinois Rivers between Bridgeport and Grafton, their distances from Bridgeport, the decreases and increases found in bacteria by "colony counts," the parts of chlorine found, and the number of determinations made in each case.

Stations.	Miles from Bridgeport.	Chlorine, parts per million.	Bacteria, by colony counts.	No. of determinations made.
Bridgeport	....	119.2	1,245,000	19
Lockport	29	117.4	650,000	30
Joliet	33	104.8	486,000	28
Morris	57	68.1	439,000	26
Ottawa	81	58.5	27,400	26
La Salle	95	46.1	16,300	31
Henry	123	44.2	11,200	29
Averyville	159	40.9	3,660	30
Wesley City	165	40.9	758,000	22
Pekin	175	38.4	492,600	29
Havana	199	36.2	16,800	26
Beardstown	231	29.3	14,000	26
Kampsville	283	22.9	4,955	19
Grafton	318	18.3	10,200	28

The result is held to show that between Morris and Ottawa, a distance of twenty-four miles, the Illinois River becomes nearly free from the great mass of sewage bacteria with which it was laden. In fact, the bacterial contents of the Illinois at Ottawa is not greatly in excess of that of the local tributary streams.

The heavy increase at Wesley City is due to the sewage coming in from the City of Peoria, including the waste from its distilleries, glucose factories, and extensive stockyards. Self-purification again results from this point, and is aided by the drainage canal flow.

FIGHT OVER NEWSBOY'S ARREST.

City Railway Seeks to Test the Anti-Scalping Act to Prevent Sale of Transfers.

The arrest of a newsboy for selling a transfer by officers of the Chicago City railway company at Root and Halsted streets late yesterday afternoon under a heretofore unused statute was the means of precipitating a small-sized riot in which an angry crowd threatened vengeance upon the special officers of the company.

Thomas Joyce was among the throng of newsboys who were around the corner, and he was caught by Special Officers R. W. Holland and J. B. Arnold of the street car company selling a transfer to a man for a cent. Holland promptly placed the boy under arrest and started to take him to the Stock Yards Police Station amid the jeers of his friends. The crowd of packingtown workmen, when they learned of his arrest, displayed their sympathy with the boy by surrounding the officer and his prisoner, threatening to force the release of the boy.

Perry Stevens attempted to rescue the boy and was arrested. The act under which the street railway officials hope for conviction is what is known as the "anti-scalping act."

FOR ATTACKING A FOREWOMAN.

Maggie Bazan, Discharged Fairbank Employe, Held for Striking Miss Laura Rodman.

Miss Laura Rodman, forewoman in the Fairbank Canning company, was attacked by a recently discharged employé, aided by several other women, on Tuesday evening and knocked down. Maggie Bazan was arrested. She is said to have been one of the ringleaders in the Nelson Morris Packing company strike a year ago. The case will be heard by Justice Fitzgerald today.

M. BUNAU-VARILLA TO LECTURE ON CANALS.

M. PHILIPPE BUNAU-VARILLA.

M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, the French engineer, will speak in Central Music Hall this evening on the comparative merits of the Nicaragua and Panama Canal routes, from the standpoint of an engineer. M. Bunau-Varilla's connection with the Panama Canal, of which he was at one time the engineer-in-chief, makes him qualified to discuss the topic. He is one of the leading civil engineers of France, and has had a career full of industry and honor. He was a student at the Ecole Polytechnique and upon his graduation in 1880 was among the first thirty in the class of 230 cadets who were given the grade of Engineer of the State of France. He became identified with the Panama Canal in 1884 as engineer in charge of one of the three sections of the canal. Within a year he was director general of the enterprise, a position which he held for six months, when an attack of yellow fever forced him to go back to France. He was a prominent factor in the building of the Congo railway, and is connected with several railroads in Spain where engineering problems were especially difficult. In 1887 the French government made him a Knight of the Legion of Honor. His brother is one of the editors and proprietors of Le Matin.

POLICEMAN MARTINI DWARFS ST. LOUIS' "BIG" PATROLMAN.

Chief Kipley's Man, Admirers Believe, Could Play with the Missouri City Giant as He Does with Slot Machines.

St. Louis' big policeman is overshadowed, Chief Kipley declares, by a Chicago patrolman, Edward Martini. Martini, who is detailed on slot machines, can pick up two 500-pound machines, his admirers say, and carry them off on his shoulder, frequently taking the flooring along with the machines. He has threatened even to carry away the saloon itself with the obdurate saloonkeeper. He was taken to the offices of the Civil Service commission yesterday and weighed and measured. The comparative size of the two men is:

	Weight.	Height.
Chicago	317 pounds	6.3
St. Louis	298 pounds	6.2½

Martini's chest measures forty-five inches, with an expansion of eight inches. He has been detailed to remove slot machines from saloons and other places, having been selected on account of his size. Martini's companion policeman on the detail is but little smaller. Before their appointment the removing of slot machines usually included a fight between the policeman and the saloonkeeper, the mobbing of the policeman, the turning in of a riot alarm, the bringing of a wagon-load of patrolmen to the saloon, and the arrest of half a neighborhood. Now when the new slot machine detail appears the saloonkeeper helps lift out the machine and asks if the policemen "won't take something."

The measurement, records, and photographs of Martini will be sent to St. Louis to enter into competition with the records of the biggest policemen in the country.

EX-ALDERMAN DARCY HELD ON A "BLIND PIG" CHARGE.

Hyde Park Protective Association Swears Out Warrants Against Druggist Whose Store Is Near Station.

Dr. Hugh T. Darcy, proprietor of the Hyde Park Pharmacy, 109 Fifty-third street, ex-Alderman of the old Thirty-third Ward, was arrested last night by Constable Michael Handley, on eleven warrants, sworn out by George Haunstein, charging him with selling liquor without a license. Haunstein is an agent of the Hyde Park Protective association. In the complaints he alleges that the physician sold or caused to be sold sundry drinks of whisky in his drug store, which is only a few feet from the Hyde Park Police Station and the office of Inspector Hunt.

Darcy was placed under arrest at 11 o'clock last night by the constable and brought before Justice Ford, where the bonds were fixed at $200 in each case. They were signed by the physician and C. Aurend. The hearing of the cases was set for Feb. 9.

"I am entirely innocent of the charges," Darcy declared last night. "I have been away from the city for the last five weeks, during which period the infractions of the law probably were committed, if they did take place."

GREEK ARRESTED FOR MURDER COMMITTED IN NATIVE LAND.

Demetrius Karidis, Accused of Killing His Cousin Last October, Tries to Stab Detectives Who Capture Him.

Demetrius Karidis, a native of Bosena, Greece, charged with the murder of his cousin, Xenophon Karidis, in the Grecian town last October, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeants Cudmore and McWeeney of the Central Station in a house at Polk and Halsted streets. The Greek fought the detectives, and in the course of the struggle drew a stiletto, with which he attempted to stab them. They finally overpowered him.

Constantine Karidis, a cousin of the prisoner, and a brother of the Greek said to have been murdered, gave the information to the police that led to the arrest.

According to the story of Constantine Karidis, the alleged murder was the result of a feud in the Karidis family, who were peasants, living in the vicinity of Bosena, Greece. The Greek Consul was informed of the arrest.

SEEKS SOCIETY OF EVERY JANITOR TO BOOM TRADE.

Second-Hand Dealer Sees Great Commercial Possibilities in Their Friendship—Talks of Starting Club.

Janitors of office and apartment buildings are in demand for their social qualities. Janitors have been in demand before, usually because some tenant wanted to express himself forcibly about the lack of heat or the abundance of grime on windows. The desire to meet janitors in social intercourse, and to establish a line of friendly communication with them, has been evinced by an enterprising Chicago second-hand dealer.

"The secret of second-hand business is buying right," he explained yesterday. "I want to meet and know every janitor I can, because they have exceptional opportunities of which I can take advantage. By cultivating the janitors they will remember me, and when anything in my line crops out they will telephone me. Then I do the rest. I propose, if enough of them respond, to let them have my top floor for a hall. If my idea pans out, we may have a janitors' club soon in full operation."

Alderman Keeney Voted Right.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Municipal Voters' league desires to correct an error in its recent report, where it was stated that Alderman Albert F. Keeney of the Twenty-seventh Ward "voted against reputable committees in 1899." The official record discloses the fact that Alderman Keeney voted in 1899 for the decent committees and against the Powers slate. It is due to him to say that the Executive committee regrets that this mistake was committed.

ELECTION OFFICE STRIKE THREAT.

Salaries of 100 Clerks Cut from $4 to $3 and They May Refuse to Work.

BOARD FACES A CRISIS.

Campaign Assessment to Be Levied on City Hall Men Unprotected by Merit Law.

TO GIVE HALF MONTH'S PAY.

A reduction of the salaries of 100 clerks on the Election Commissioners' office from $4 to $3 a day may cause a strike among the men today. Should this happen, the holding of the spring election may be made difficult, if not impossible.

Even under most favorable conditions every moment of time must be utilized between now and the primary days in transferring the 400,000 names of voters from old precincts to those in the new ones provided by the redistricting ordinance.

The announcement of the reduction in salaries was made just before the close of working hours yesterday.

Observing the effect of the announcement, Major Coughlin, in charge of the working department, said to the men: "I shall consider that those of you who are not present in the morning are on strike. I hope you will not take such action, as it would greatly embarrass the work of the board."

Much Strike Talk Heard.

There was a great deal of strike talk among the men as they put up their pens and donned their overcoats. They have been working early and late, before and often after regular working hours, and their compensation—$4 per day—was unceremoniously cut to $3 without any preparatory announcement.

Chief Clerk Isaac Powell, who has been in control for a long time, is ill at home, threatened with pneumonia.

The cut was taken by many of the men as coming direct from their respective Aldermen, and many threats of reprisals were made. If the 100 men should decide to quit work there is grave doubt whether all the work which remains to be done before the election can be accomplished.

Must Pay to Help Mayor.

Notice that the beneficiaries under the present city administration should contribute toward its continuance in power went out from the City Hall yesterday. Men who draw salaries but are not protected by the civil service law were told they must give up half of their pay for next month, and some "business interests" which are directly affected by the attitude of the police toward them were informed they would be expected to make contributions to the campaign fund.

The employés who received notice of assessments yesterday were the police magistrates, police court clerks and bailiffs, and the various bridgetenders. These people are all outside of the civil service law and are not protected by the clause in it which prohibits the collection of campaign money from city employés. The assessment made on them was 50 per cent of a month's salary, in the aggregate a considerable fund. Up to date there have been no complaints of any assessment on the employés under civil service, although it is looked for later. There also has been, according to report, an assessment ordered on various places whose business has been increased by the midnight closing of saloons.

Fisher Answers the Mayor.

Secretary Fisher of the Municipal Voters' league says Mayor Harrison is not candid in his criticism of the recent report of the league. "It was not the attitude of the league toward the organization of the Council last spring which caused the Mayor's attack," said Mr. Fisher yesterday. "It was some other feature in the report he did not like, and he used the organization of the Council as an excuse for the attack. The league certainly denounced the partisan organization of the Council in as strong terms as were called for, but it would not condemn an Alderman like Jackson simply because he voted for that organization."

Fowler States His Policy.

Alderman Frank T. Fowler, in outlining his course if he were elected Mayor, yesterday made the following statement:

"If I receive the nomination and am elected Mayor of the City of Chicago, one of my first official acts will be to thoroughly clean, revise, and renovate the Police department, from Chief down, keeping in mind, however, the letter and spirit of the Civil Service law, which is now so grossly violated to the detriment of the whole city."

FIGHT ON SCHOOL STORES.

SLOT MACHINES, AS WELL AS "GUMBACCO," MUST GO.

Mayor Harrison Joins the Board of Education in Its Endeavor to Prevent Dealers from Handling Goods Which Are Detrimental to Health and Morals of the Pupils—Graduation Exercises in Public Buildings Ruled Out.

A crusade against penny-in-the-slot machines, "gumbacco," and other detrimental goods found in small stores near schoolhouses has been begun by Mayor Harrison and the Board of Education. The Mayor has ordered an investigation by the police, and yesterday he addressed a letter to Superintendent Bodine of the Compulsory Education department asking him to keep strict surveillance on the small stores near schools. The Mayor has found that penny-in-the-slot machines have been in use in eighteen stores.

The slot machines, while most of them return candy or gum for each penny received, are held to be vicious, because they inspire a gambling instinct and lead children to "play" other slot machines which do not return an equivalent for their money.

The names of stores in which the police report they have found slot machines follow:

John Pospisl, 677 Throop street, near Longfellow School.
M. F. Volvoda, 703 Throop street, near Kosminski School.
M. K. Pichous, 589 Twelfth street, near Jirka School.
Cooper School book store, 635 Nineteenth street, near Cooper School.
Clark School book store, 587 Ashland avenue, near Clark School.
J. Crocker, 519 Washburne avenue, near Gladstone School.
McLaren School book store, 209 Laflin street, near McLaren School.
Garfield School book store, 223 Monroe street, near Garfield School.
A. Motlovitz, 171 Sangamon street.
Washburne School book store, 212 Fourteenth street, near Washburne School.
214 Fourteenth street, near Washburne School.
Roger School book store, 567 Thirteenth street, near Roger School.
Polk Street School book store, 220 Polk street, near Polk Street School.
Mrs. Campbell, 92 Hermitage avenue, near Brown School.
Martin Webb, 1094 Twenty-first place, near Pickard School.
J. Gengler, 216 Oakley avenue, near Pickard School.
F. Stoeffhaus, 972 Twenty-first street, near Froebel School.
P. Burtank, 913 Thirty-first street, near German School.

The high school plan to hold graduation exercises in Central Music Hall, Handel Hall, and other public buildings, was defeated yesterday when the School Management committee decided that diplomas should be awarded in the different schools. The reasons given were that many parents find the expenses of public graduation a great hardship.

KEMPER PLACE HAS A CHAMPION.

Building of a Shed in Violation of Ordinance Causes Complications with Grammar and Heidelmeier.

William Wiggerhaus, 48 Kemper place, who is not a member of Weber & Fields' company, has made charges against Inspector Max Heidelmeier for abiding and abetting the construction of a shed "on the furnt of kemper place." The Civil Service commission will investigate. The alleged violation of the law proceeded in spite of the positive assertions of the Mayor's private secretary, Edward Lahiff, to Mr. Wiggerhaus that the shed would be torn down.

The story of Mr. Wiggerhaus' repeated efforts to secure justice from "Ensparator Heidelmeier" is told by himself in his written complaint, as follows:

I saw Mr. Heidelmeier by myself and he said what do I know from buildings and that I should make that I come away. The shed will be finished—he will look himself after it. So I went to the Alderman Herrman he stop the carpenters. After this in the month of January on Jan. 23, 1901, their arrest a man he was building again under the hands of the Policeman Fried Moritz. This policeman he was rough and said if I once call more the parrol he arrest myself also he was rough to Mrs. Wiggerhaus that she stand at the door of her house. And he said that he would arrest her what she has to stand there that he should go and tend to your business. I like to see this shed is broken down and to discharge this too police their names are in here.

STEEL PLATE TO MARK PAVING.

Alderman Fowler's Novel Plan to Distinguish Improvements Is Indorsed by Council Committee.

At the intersection of newly paved streets in future will be placed a plate of burnished steel. This plate will state the name of the street, the date of the completion of the paving, the date of the expiration of the contractor's guaranty, the name of the contractor, and the words "Report defects or needed improvements to the Commissioner of Public Works, City Hall." This was the scheme approved yesterday by the Special Assessment committee. The plan originated with Alderman Fowler.

The plates are to be no smaller than 6x15 inches nor larger than 10x24 inches. One is to be put at each corner, either in the side or on the top of the curb. The cost, it is estimated, will not be over five cents per lot abutting on the street.

CHICAGO BOY TRIES TO EMULATE PAT CROWE.

DETECTIVE THOMPSON
CHARLES CEDERBLAD
Warning
We want $200
for the liberty
Barnard or he will be put to Death (Do this and all will be well)
Come to Roscoe
and Racine Aves

The adventures of "Diamond Dick," Frank Merriwell, and other heroes of a series of five-cent fiction had lost their fascination for 15-year-old Charles Cederblad as he huddled in the corner of his cell yesterday and furtively returned the gaze of the curious detectives who had entered the Central Station cellrooms to inspect the youthful emulator of the deeds of Pat Crowe. The boy's plan to secure $2,000, "mostly in bills," from the father of the missing Arthur Barnard, teller of the Dowie Bank, had gone awry, and he penitently promised his inquisitors that he would be good if they would let him go. Barnard's father received the following letter, written on sheets torn from a note book: "WARNING — We want $2,000 for the liberty of Barnard or he will be put to DEATH. Do this and all will be well. Come to Roscoe and Racine Aves. and the C. M. & St. P. tracks on the 30th of this week at 7:30 sharp. Will meet you at the lamppost. Put the money in a strong bag. We want 1, 5, 10, and 20 bills or $5 gold pieces. We do not want all gold like when we took the C. boy. Do not let anyone but yourself see this or it will be DEATH to Barnard." The letter was signed "Capt. of the Gang." It was delivered to Chief of Detectives Colleran, who detailed Detectives Thompson, Burns, and Morrissey to investigate the affair. Thompson secured a false second-hand beard, formerly worn by a department store Santa Claus. A money bag was easily got, but an attempt to have it filled at detective headquarters proved futile, and a tin cup used to feed the prisoners was inserted and carefully wrapped, after which the trio went to the meeting place. Before the corner was reached the whiskers were adjusted on Thompson, and he advanced to the corner, where he met the boy. The youth said he was a messenger, and that the gang was in a saloon at Belmont avenue and Clark street. After waiting three hours the boy confessed. At the station he said the idea had been suggested to him by reading of the Cudahy case. The boy lives at 911 Clifton avenue. His mother is a widow. Captain Colleran will ask that he be dismissed with a lecture.

OAK PARK PLANS TRACTION FIGHT.

Citizens Organize to Force Concessions from Street Car Companies.

DRAW UP THEIR DEMANDS

Will Insist on More Coaches, New Lines, and the Paving of Streets.

ATTACK CICERO OFFICIALS.

Oak Park residents declared war last night on the traction interests which are responsible for the poor street car service between Cicero and Chicago. At a mass-meeting of 100 citizens, held at the Euclid Avenue Methodist Church, the Property-Owners' League of Central Park was organized and plans outlined to force the Lake Street Elevated railroad company and the Union Traction company to live up to the provision of their franchises and grant, in addition, several concessions wanted by patrons of the surface and suburban lines.

The demands which will be pressed are:

More cars on the main branch of the Lake Street Elevated line in South boulevard.

Restoration of the former service on the Randolph street branch of the Lake Street Elevated from Lombard to Harlem avenues.

Building of a line in Harlem avenue, between South boulevard and Randolph street, to complete the loop of the Lake Street Elevated.

Restoration of the service on the old Northern Pacific line, in Randolph street, from Lombard avenue to Chicago.

More cars on the La Grange branch of the Lake Street Elevated.

Restoration of the service on the Twenty-second street line, owned by the Union Traction company, from the Metropolitan Elevated Terminus at Forty-eighth street.

Better service on the Chicago avenue, Lake street, Madison street, and Twelfth street lines, which are owned by the Union Traction company.

Completion of the paving in South boulevard and other streets as prescribed in the franchises.

Flings at Cicero Officials.

The meeting was productive of scathing denunciation of the traction companies for refusing to consider the traveling public of that section. The discussion was marked by flings at the Cicero officials, who have permitted the corporations, it was charged, to ride roughshod over the voters' interests.

Josiah Cratty, who was instrumental in the organization of the league, rated President Jones of the Cicero Town board for issuing to the Lake street company the permit to construct the line in South boulevard which was opened last week. For the most part the faulty street car service was blamed on the previous Town board.

Trustees Talk of Reprisals.

Several of the town trustees were present and contributed their views. Trustee P. D. Dutton said that the board would be asked at its next meeting to repeal the franchise for the Twenty-second street line unless the Union Traction company should agree to restore the former service. Trustee Attridge suggested that the Lake Street company be forced to restore the former service on the line of the old Northern Pacific railway in Randolph street. A clause in the franchise of that company, granted years ago, specified that all trains should run into the Grand Central Depot in Fifth avenue. When the Yerkes interests leased the roadway cars were run only every hour and then only as far as Western avenue and Twelfth street. This practice is continued at present merely as a measure to hold the franchise.

The Executive committee of the league will confer with a committee from the Town board as to the best method of obtaining the demands from the traction companies. The officers elected were:

President—Dwight Jackson.
Vice President—B. L. Bevington.
Secretary and Treasurer—William R. Vosburg.
Executive committee—D. L. Hall, James H. Gormley, H. A. Taylor, A. J. Flitcraft, the Rev. J. C. Youker, and R. S. Worthington.

SHARES IN CARNEGIE PROFITS.

John Molamphy, an Employe of the Big Steel Company, Made a Stockholder.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—John Molamphy, an employé of the Carnegie Steel company at Homestead, where he is master of transportation and labor, has been made a stockholder in the Carnegie Steel company.

It has been the custom to give deserving employés an interest, and this was the reason for favoring Mr. Molamphy. A block of $5,000,000 of stock was preserved during the recent reorganization for employé partners. It is understood that 150,000 of this has been placed in Mr. Molamphy's name, to be paid for out of its earnings. It is virtually a present to Mr. Molamphy and is given him as an incentive to greater effort.

All the stock sold to employés, of whom many became millionaires, was given in the same manner. Mr. Molamphy is well known in Knights of Columbus and Catholic Mutual Benefit association circles. He is the national First Vice President of the C. M. B. A.

TALKS OF CHANGES AT YALE.

President Hadley Discusses the Proposed Alterations to Be Made in the Curriculum.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—President Hadley of Yale University this afternoon, in discussing the changes in Yale's curriculum, that will go into effect at the beginning of the next academic year and which gives opportunity to a keen student to make the course through Yale in three years, instead of four, as is the case now, said:

"The changes made were not radical and sudden. All were along the lines marked out last year. They were changes of degree, not of kind. In the sophomore year one or two electives were added to the list which were allowed the student last year. freshman year was not changed.

"The dropping of one study in junior year was all that remained from required work in that year. All the changes were a continuation of the plan the faculty has worked up for two years."

WOULD HONOR YALE'S MEMORY.

Henry E. Mason of Chicago Suggests a Memorial Window for the Founder of the University.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Henry E. Mason, Yale '98, of Chicago, writes to Yale officials that he is opposed to the proposition to bring Elihu Yale's remains from Wrexham, England, and place them on the Yale campus. He says:

"I suggest that a memorial window be erected in the chancel of the church at Wrexham, north Wales, by Yale University, in memory of Elihu Yale.

"There are two objections to removing the tomb of Elihu Yale to New Haven: First—Elihu Yale undoubtedly selected Wrexham Church, the place where his family had worshiped for generations, for the place of his burial; and, second, the authorities of the Church of England would not consent to the removal."

VANDERLIP NOT MOVED BY THREAT

Assistant Secretary of Treasury Will Insist on Obedience to Regulations.

SECRET SERVICE AT WORK

Army Reorganization Bill Ready to Go to President for His Approval.

NEWS OF NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.

Threat Does Not Frighten Secretary Vanderlip.

Assistant Secretary Vanderlip has been threatened with assassination by some unknown person supposed to be one of the government clerks, one of their friends, or a crank. The threat came in the shape of an anonymous letter in which the author said Mr. Vanderlip would meet the fate of Auditor Morris, who was murdered a short time ago by an aggrieved clerk, unless Mr. Vanderlip ceased his "persecution" of the employés of the Treasury department. The letter has been placed in the hands of Chief Wilkie of the Secret Service, who will make an investigation and seek to arrest the offending party. The "persecution" complained of in this letter is an effort on the part of Mr. Vanderlip to compel the employés of the Treasury department to report for duty promptly and to remain until 4 o'clock, the end of the official day.

Some time ago Mr. Vanderlip introduced in the department what was known as the clock system, by which the clerks were required to register the time they reached the department and when they left. Congress refused to make an appropriation for this system and forbade the use of it.

Then Secretary Vanderlip instructed the chiefs of the different bureaus to report the names of the employés who arrived at the office later than 9 o'clock. This system did not work satisfactorily, and recently orders were given to the watchmen to take the names of all clerks entering the department after 9 o'clock, the hour they should arrive. The first morning this order went into effect, which was several weeks ago, 160 clerks were late, and were duly reported. Today, however, the number was reduced to ten.

Notwithstanding the threatening letter, the order to report clerks who are late in arriving at the office went into effect. Mr. Vanderlip said tonight he was not at all alarmed over the threats, and proposed to continue his efforts to force the well-paid employés to perform their duties.

Invitations for the diplomatic dinner at the Executive Mansion have not been issued yet, but, unless something happens to prevent, cards will be sent out directly after the ceremonies attending the burial of the Queen. No official notifications to this effect will be given out at present, as the act would seem discourteous at this season of mourning.

Army Bill Is Passed by Both Houses.

By a vote of 33 to 25 the Senate late this afternoon agreed to the conference report on the army reorganization bill. This completes the passage of the measure through Congress, and it was sent to the White House this evening. It becomes a law practically at once, and the hybrid army, part regulars and part volunteers, will give place to a solid force of 100,000 regulars, fully equipped and with a staff organization which under pressure could readily look after the needs of twice that number of men. The figures given on the vote do not indicate in any way the strength of the bill in the Senate, because quite a number of Republicans voted against the measure on a technicality. There was a question as to whether the conference committee had exceeded its power because it brought in a compromise on two or three sections which involved some new legislation.

For this reason several Republicans voted against the conference report who were thoroughly in sympathy with the proposition to reorganize the army.

It was found necessary to take a record vote, but this was not considered as any test of the army reorganization bill itself.

Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Hill entertained at dinner this evening Senator Platt of New York, Senator and Mrs. Platt of Connecticut, Senator and Mrs. Fairbanks, Solicitor General and Mrs. Richards, Miss Wilson, Representative and Mrs. Payne, Controller and Mrs. Dawes, Patent Commissioner and Mrs. Duell, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh.

Compromise Has Been Reached on Subsidy Bill.

Certain steps were taken today in the Senate which it is said will result in the early passage of the ship subsidy bill. This condition of affairs has brought about through something of a surrender on the part of the friends of the shipping bill. Some time ago they were implored by prominent Republicans to cut down the amount of the subsidy, both on the annual payments and in the length of time the contracts were to run. The friends of the measure held out for a long while, but within the last few days they capitulated and agreed that certain amendments prepared by Senator Aldrich should be accepted by them without opposition. Knowing this agreement to have been made, Senator Frye had no hesitation in withdrawing the subsidy bill today to permit the Senate to come to an agreement on the army reorganization.

When the measure was finally out of the way Senator Frye called up the shipping bill again, and allowed Senator Aldrich to amend it by cutting down the time the subsidy is to run from twenty years to fifteen years. This, of course, is a reduction of 25 per cent in the total charge on the Treasury, cutting down the amount from $180,000,000 to $135,000,000, thereby saving for the government by a little amendment the sum of $45,000,000, or more than the cost of the drainage canal.

Senator Aldrich had another amendment which was also accepted by the friends of the bill. This puts a stop to the unusual speed subsidies at eighteen knots per hour, thus reducing, and, in fact, almost destroying the special privileges of the ocean grayhounds built by the International Navigation company, which are constructed for a speed of at least twenty-one knots.

Senator Burrows has an amendment also to be accepted, specifically prohibiting the payment of a subsidy to tank steamers. Some other concessions have been made by Senator Frye and his associates, as a result of which President Griscom of the American line, who is still the principal beneficiary, said he hoped to have the bill passed early next week.

Coincident with the better outlook for the shipping bill the talk of an extra session in the Senate practically disappeared.

President and Mrs. McKinley had as guests at lunch today Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Plunkett of North Adams, Mass. President and Mrs. McKinley visited them at their home while on their summer trip. Mr. Plunkett is well known in Massachusetts politics, having been a member of the State legislature and taken an active part in all matters of state.

General Miles' Golf Playing Is Criticised.

One day recently General Miles stripped off his gaudy uniform, repaired to the links at Chevy Chase, donned the proper costume, and started to play a game of golf. The only spectator was a ragged colored urchin who had not attracted the attention of the commanding General of the army until the latter, after missing a ball three successive times, heard a voice say: "Come, come, old man, that will never do." To say that General Miles was astonished would be putting it mildly. And the contemptuous look he gave the ragged urchin was enough to make the stoutest heart quail. The colored boy was not disturbed apparently, for he remained to see the game finished. It was evident General Miles did not relish the remark of the boy, particularly as he does not relish being called an old man, priding himself on being in perfect health and as vigorous as a man many years his junior.

Secretary and Mrs. Root gave a dinner tonight at which the guests were Justice and Mrs. White, Justice and Mrs. Gray, Senator and Mrs. McMillan, Senator and Mrs. Hanna, Senator and Miss Kean, Representative and Mrs. Hitt, Commander and Mrs. Cowles, General and Miss Ernst, Baron Gevers, Baron Hermann, Miss Lay, and Miss Root.

Senator Jones Abandons Idea of Subsidy Caucus.

Senator Jones, chairman of the Democratic National committee, said today that he did not propose to call a caucus as against the subsidy because he did not consider it a party measure. There were, he said, half a dozen Democrats who would vote for the ship subsidy, and he could not see how it was right to crack the party whip to prevent them from doing so. This is a curious state of affairs in view of the fact that the Republican National committee has declared this bill to be a party measure and is today spending money contributed by enthusiastic Republicans to create sentiment in its behalf throughout the country.

Lorimer Makes Last Stand for Pneumatic Tubes.

Representative Lorimer returned to Washington for the express purpose of assisting in the passage of the postal appropriation bill and endeavoring to secure an appropriation for the establishment of the pneumatic tube service in Chicago and St. Louis. He immediately enlisted the services of Representative Joy of St. Louis, and the two canvassed the House for an appropriation of $265,000 for the installation of the pneumatic tube service system in Chicago and St. Louis. Mr. Lorimer has drafted an amendment which embodies his views on this subject, and which he will offer in the House tomorrow. Notwithstanding the work of Mr. Lorimer and his colleague from St. Louis there seems to be little prospect for securing an appropriation.

As has already been pointed out in these dispatches, the contracts for the pneumatic tube service in New York and Philadelphia expire on July 1, and any legislation on this subject will be new legislation, in the parliamentary sense, and a point of order raised against the amendment proposed by Mr. Lorimer wil knock out the appropriation. There is scarcely any doubt that Mr. Loud, chairman of the Postal committee having charge of this measure, will raise the point of order against the amendment and that the proposition will be lost.

The chairman of the committee is personally opposed to the pneumatic tube system, and as a member of the joint committee of the Senate and House which investigated the postal system he recommended the abolishment of the tube system. Therefore, it is certain he will not permit the appropriation bill to be used for the purpose of establishing this system in Chicago or anywhere else.

Will Regulate Produce Sent to Foreign Lands.

For some time past Secretary Wilson has complained bitterly because the foreign markets, especially in the East, for American butter and dairy products, have been practically ruined because of the inferior quality of goods sent abroad. The Secretary was unable to do anything in the matter in the way of inspection and marking the packages so as to show exactly what they contained. In the agricultural appropriation bill now being considered by the House is a provision which will give the Secretary control of matters of this kind, and if the Secretary's judgment is correct this proposed legislation will result in the building up of a market for American dairy products, not only in Europe but in Asia as well.

This provision gives the Secretary authority to construe the law for the inspection of live cattle and the products thereof, to include dairy products intended for exportation.

He may apply, under rules and regulations prescribed by him, the provision of the law for inspection and certification appropriate for ascertaining the purity and quality of these products and cause them to be marked or labeled so as to secure their identity and make known in the markets of foreign countries to which they may be sent from the United States their purity, quality, and grade.

Congressman Mann Opposes Revenue Retired List.

In discussing the bill which proposes to place the officers of the internal revenue cutter service on the retired list, Representative Mann said, "There is just as much sense in placing Congressmen who fail to secure a nomination or a reëlection upon the retired list at three-fourths pay as there is in retiring the officers of the revenue cutter service. Then, too, there are many worthy persons who have worked faithfully all their lives and who are now old and infirm who are as much entitled to a privilege of this kind as are the officers of the revenue cutter service. In my district there are many worthy men who have worked all their lives for $1.50 a day and raised families for the benefit of the nation, and who are as much entitled to assistance of this kind from the government as any class of people I know of. Before the revenue officers are given the privilege of retiring on three-quarters pay I would rather see these worthy persons given $2.50 a day and placed on what might be termed the retired list."

Ex-Representative Connolly Is Cullom's Choice.

Senator Cullom has recommended ex-Representative Connolly of Springfield as the successor of the late Judge Allen on the district bench of the Southern Illinois District. Senator Mason did not join the senior Senator in this indorsement, but, notwithstanding this and the opposition from other quarters, it is believed Mr. Connolly will secure the appointment. The junior Senator and also Representatives Cannon and Warner have indorsed Judge Francis Wright of Urbana, Champaign County, for the place. Judge Wright is now on the Appellate bench of the Third Illinois District.

Secretary Gage to Find Temporary Home in Hotel.

Secretary and Mrs. Gage expect to find temporary shelter at the Cairo between their leaving their present home and taking over the house which they have recently leased. The latter residence will be occupied by the Attorney General and family until April 1, and, unfortunately for the Secretary of the Treasury, the lease of the house he is occupying expires in the month of February. The owner of the residence wishes his house for himself during inauguration and he would not extend the time of occupancy even for a Cabinet officer.

T. P. HODNETT, FATHER BUTLER'S SUCCESSOR.

Official announcement of the selection of the Rev. Thomas Pope Hodnett of St. Malachy's Church for the pastorate of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, North Park avenue and Schiller street, left vacant by the death of his cousin, the Rev. Patrick T. Butler, one week ago, will be made by Archbishop Feehan today. Father Hodnett was born in Glin, Limerick County, Ireland, in 1845, and after a preparatory course entered St. Munchin's Jesuit College, after which he was assigned to a place in the Irish College, Paris. From 1863 to 1866 he was a student at the Seminary of St. Mary, and was ordained in 1867, coming to this country a few months later. During the years between 1868 and 1882 Father Hodnett filled pastorates in St. Thomas' Church, Potosi, Wis.; St. Clement's Church, Lancaster, Wis.; St. Patrick's Church, Lincoln, Ill.; and St. Patrick's Church, Dixon, Ill. In 1882 he was selected by the Archbishop to establish the new parish of St. Malachy's, comprising the former parishes of St. Jarlath's and St. Columbkills. Plans for the present church building were drawn at once, but permission for the erection of a temporary place of worship for the parishioners was refused by the city building authorities. Father Hodnett called together 250 of his friends and members of the parish and on July 3, 1882, a frame structure, 75x44 feet, and one story in height, was erected in seven hours, in which services were held the following day. Through the energy of the priest, the work on the present edifice was hurried and practically completed before the first snow-fall. During his work Father Hodnett has built or paid for five churches and three parish schools, and was instrumental in the founding of the University of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart in Watertown, Wis.

DROP CASE AGAINST M'CALLA.

Captain of Newark Is Vindicated, Court, Headed by Admiral Remey, Deciding Colwell Is Wrong.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—The case against Captain McCalla of the Newark has been dropped. A cablegram received at the Navy department today from Admiral Remey announces that the court of inquiry has concluded its work, and recommends that there be no further proceedings, thus ending the case. A disagreement between Captain McCalla and Commander Colwell, his executive officer, resulted in the latter's charging the Captain with maintaining lax discipline aboard ship, and with erratic conduct generally. The court has vindicated Captain McCalla, and Admiral Remey transferred Commander Colwell from the Newark to the Cavite naval station.

WORK ON INAUGURAL PLANS.

Committee in Charge Promises Brilliant Display for Washington Ceremonies on March 4.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—The committee in charge of preparations for President McKinley's second inauguration is making progress and the event promises to eclipse any preceding inaugurations in display and completeness. The Marine Band will supply the promenade music for the ball, while a selected orchestra of 125 pieces will play the dance music under the direction of Professor W. A. Haley. The Marine Band also has been engaged for a series of five concerts, to be held in the hall of the Pension Building on the 5th and 6th of March, to afford an opportunity to those who cannot attend the inaugural ball to view the decorations, which will be left in place until after the concert.

Passing Appropriation Bills.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—The House today passed the fortifications appropriation bill and made fair progress with the postoffice appropriation bill.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARY PALMER BANKS, Waltham, Mass., died last night of old age. She was the widow of General Nathaniel P. Banks. She was born in Charlestown, Mass., on Oct. 26, 1819, and was prominent in religious circles for many years. When General Banks was Governor of Massachusetts she led the ball given in the Prince of Wales' honor, despite the protests of Boston's social set, who raised a stir because she was a factory girl before her marriage. The Prince, who is now King of England, danced with her.

CHARLES RUDOLPH, well known in Chicago as an architect, died yesterday at Wauwatosa. He was 47 years old. He was born in St. Louis and received his education in Chicago. He spent four years in Europe studying architecture. He was for several years architect for the School board. The funeral will be held at 3 o'clock today in the chapel at Graceland.

FREDERICK PORTER THAYER, formerly a Chicago business-man, is dead in Glasgow, Scotland. He was for many years at the head of the furniture firm of F. Porter Thayer & Co., which consolidated with the Tobey Furniture company.

PETER JACKSON, Muscatine, Ia., retired banker and prominent pioneer, died yesterray, aged 84. Mr. Jackson was a native of Scotland. He lived there sixty-three years.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

La Tosca.

Presented at the Illinois Theater by Mme. Bernhardt, M. Coquelin, and Their Company. The Cast:

Floria Tosca	Mme. Sarah Bernhardt
Baron Scarpia	M. Coquelin
Mario Caveradossi	M. Deneubourg
Cesare Angelotti	M. Sheler
Marquis Attavanti	M. H. Deschamps
Viscomte de Trevillac	M. Fusch
The Sacrestan	M. Ramy
Queen Marie Caroline	Mme. Mea
The Princess Orionia	Mme. Boulanger
Lucianna	Mme. Cellarius
Gennarino	Mme. Simonson

"La Tosca," in union with Mme. Bernhardt and M. Coquelin, drew to the Illinois Theater last night the largest audience the French visitors have faced since their engagement began. Almost every seat in the lower portion of the house was occupied and the balconies were well filled.

The secret of the popularity of the veteran play undoubtedly lay in the rôle it offered Mme. Bernhardt, but those who attended were given added reason for enjoyment by the manner in which Scarpia was enacted by M. Coquelin. In the appearance of the comedian in this rôle of a cunning, dastardly villian was also the particular novelty of the performance, aside from Mme. Bernhardt's new and gorgeous gowns. With the decoration of other costumes just as marvelous the actress has pictured the wild, fierce passion of La Tosca every time she has come to Chicago in twenty years. But a Scarpia like that of M. Coquelin never before has been advanced.

It seemed beforehand that the comedian in the player must crop out inharmoniously at some moment when he was planning or carrying out his dark deeds. Not once, however, did he so clumsily betray the strangeness of his situation, though the lightness of his proper craft altogether changed the color of the character. Most actors have emphasized the brutal side of Scarpia. M. Coquelin did not. Neither did he rant, or glower, or stamp. He disclosed a polished, urbane, and, it seemed, a thoroughly Italian personage—a worthy who spoke low and unctuously, who smiled and bowed to his victim while he inflicted his tortures upon her.

It may be contended that the keynote of the real Scarpia should have a harsher sound, and that the Baron was more a beast than a court gentleman, but in any event the actor's performance satisfied while it was being witnessed. Its brilliant technique alone was sufficient to make it admirable.

As for Mme. Bernhardt, she reveled in the play. The piece was built for her and she never has grown away from it. In her hands its theatric artifices had for the space an ample excuse, that of allowing her to use her physical powers to the utmost. That the great effects were those of melodrama and not of tragedy remained as ever a cause for regret, but, after all, the effects themselves were worth while. At least they were when wrought by Mme. Bernhardt.

In the torture act she fascinated her audience, and in spell-bound silence its members watched her wonderful display of anguish. With her it seemed no simulation of emotion but its reality. At the conclusion of the scene, when she came forward to bow in response to the curtain call, tears were streaming down her cheeks. In this and subsequent trying scenes it was impossible to believe that her years are what all the world knows them to be. The drain in bodily vigor alone would seem to be too great for her to endure. It told to some extent, for at the end of the performance her look and manner was that of exhaustion, but no other actress would be apt to follow in her footsteps and reach that end.

She wore three different gowns, each as dazzling as its companion. The third was donned between the second and third acts, at a time when, according to the story, she was seeking with fury in her heart a lover she deemed recreant. But the women in the audience probably agreed that a new toilet was better than perfect stage realism.

Gabrilowitsch Recital.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch gave his first piano recital here last evening in Central Music Hall before an audience that occupied most of the parquet and a goodly portion of the parquet circle, and placed a sparse fringe of hearers about the edge of the balconies. Enthusiasm was at no time in evidence during the evening, but there was an abundance of persistent applause from certain individuals scattered about the house, which told of something suspiciously suggestive of a claque. Our concert-rooms possess enough of evils. Let no one attempt to introduce this supreme one.

As for the young Russian pianist, it is told of him that Hans Richter wrote to a fellow-conductor: "Let Gabrilowitsch play the Tschaikowski Concerto." The advice was a kindliness to the young performer, for it is in the B flat minor concerto of Tschaikowski that he appears to best advantage. Those who heard him play it with the Chicago Orchestra heard him do the best piece of work he does at present, for nothing he offered last evening equaled it in merit, and his program was one sufficiently varied to permit him to prove his powers. The Bach-Tausig D minor Toccata and Fugue, the Schumann Carneval, Chopin's nocturnes in D flat major and B major (the second one), second etude in C major, E minor prelude, and the A flat major polonaise; an original Gavotte, the Glinka-Balakireff "L'Alouette," and the Eighth Hungarian Rhapsody of Liszt—these are numbers that enable a player to show what he can do. They served last night to enable Mr. Gabrilowitsch to show that he possesses all the vices as well as some of the virtues of the Leschetizky school of piano players. A fluent, reliable technic, abundance of strength, ample bravour, generally clear pedaling, and a fondness for dynamic variety which prevents monotony—these are the virtues the young player has added to the temperament and intelligence with which nature has endowed him.

The less pleasant things he has acquired are those which nearly every young player brings with him from the Vienna school—a tone large and sonorous but frequently hard, a knack of hitting the pedal with the foot so that a clicking sound is heard, and an emotionality that becomes either boisterousness or sentimentality.

These merits and faults were in evidence in nearly all the playing heard last night. The Toccata and Fugue were delivered with power, clearness, and breadth, but the Schumann Carneval was uneven in worth and lacked the qualities which lend that composition unity, making it seem a homogeneous work rather than a collection of musical bits. Best done of the parts were the Papillons, the Lettres dansantes, Reconnaissance, and the Valse Allemande. Of the Chopin group the Etude and Prelude were most satisfactory. The "L'Alouette" was given with admirable technical finish, and the player's own Gavotte was excellently performed. This last composition has much about it that interests and attracts. The first section contains harshnesses that are a bit startling, and there are one or two spots that are commonplace, but the Musettelike trio is distinctly original, and speaks well for Mr. Gabrilowitsch's powers of musical invention.

A second recital is announced for tomorrow afternoon in Central Music Hall.

London Season for Miss Nielsen.

Arrangements were concluded yesterday whereby Manager Frank Perley of the Alice Nielsen Opera company is to assume the lease of the Shaftesbury Theater, London, on April 8. Miss Nielsen and her company are to sail for England on March 20. Mr. Perley on Tuesday signed a contract giving him the English rights to "The Serenade," which in this country is the property of the Bostonians. Miss Nielsen will employ that opera in conjunction with the two she now has, "The Singing Girl" and "The Fortune Teller."

Concerts Today.

The third program in the Beethoven cycle by the Chicago Orchestra will be played this afternoon and tomorrow evening at the Auditorium. Especial interest will attach to the appearance as soloist of Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield-Zeisler, a pianist who has not been heard with the orchestra in some five years. She will play the "Emperor" concerto, a work which she has not before played here. The orchestral selections will be the Symphonies No. 6 (Pastoral) and No. 7.

Tonight, in University Hall, Bertha M. Kaderly, mezzo-soprano, assisted by Theodore Spiering and W. C. E. Seeboeck, will offer an attractive program.

CITY TO SUE DELINQUENTS

DETERMINED TO FORCE PAYMENT OF TARDY TAXES.

Aldermen Badenoch, Maypole, and Powers May Be Defendants, but It Is Found Many Supposed Debtors Have Settled Their Obligations—Lists Omitted Amounts Received During December—D. W. Mills Has Paid, but All Record Is Missing.

The town and county Collectors having failed to secure payment on delinquent taxes the city will attempt the task. When Corporation Counsel Walker begins suit to get the money due from taxes he will have cases against three Aldermen—Badenoch, Maypole, and Powers—and it has been suggested that the city "hold up" their salaries. The Aldermen affirm that they do not owe the taxes to their knowledge, but the County Collector's books are against them.

The city's desire to begin action on unpaid taxes was responsible for the digging up of the delinquent list. It came to the Controller undated and without the collections made during December. For this reason there were a number of politicians entered as delinquent who had receipts for their taxes. Robert E. Burke produced a receipt for the amount he was reported to owe, and City Clerk Loeffler obtained a statement from the county officials that his taxes had been paid.

Find Many Have Paid.

D. W. Mills paid his taxes in April and there was no explanation of why the amount had not been reported collected. Alderman John Coughlin produced his receipts and Congressman-elect McAndrews did likewise. Lockwood Honoré paid yesterday, saying he had no knowledge that he was delinquent. The assessment on the estate of Henrietta Snell was paid last week.

The lists were complete to Nov. 30, but the city officials supposed they included the December collections. In the case of D. W. Mills, however, the taxes were paid before the entries were closed and no report of the collection was found. An investigation will be made to find if other citizens have made payments with which they have not been credited.

For the reason that the failure to collect so large an amount in taxes, amounting to over $471,000, works a hardship on the city, the Corporation Counsel will begin suit to secure payment wherever possible. The county officials declared that 90 per cent of the unpaid taxes are owed by persons who have moved from the city. The city officials hold that this percentage is too high and that a considerable amount can be collected.

It has been discovered, also, that in many cases the persons listed as delinquents have not known that they were charged with unpaid taxes. To the list of delinquents the name of William Legner, drainage trustee, was added yesterday, the amount being $28.94.

Rules in Favor of Veterans.

A decision of the Corporation Counsel holds that old soldiers must be given preference on the civil service eligible lists of promotional examinations as well as in original examinations. Another decision holds that the civil service rules do not apply to holdovers and that the commission has no jurisdiction over them.

DENOUNCES YELLOW JOURNAL.

Address of Lafayette Young Before Illinois Press Association—Visit the Stock-Yards.

The feature of yesterday's session of the Illinois Press association was the address of former Congressman Lafayette Young, publisher and editor of the Iowa State Capital, Des Moines. He paid special attention to yellow journalism and advertising agencies, scoring both as enemies to the public welfare. He paid a compliment to the newspapers of Chicago, while reflecting somewhat on the general morality of the city, saying he marveled that the majority of the papers were so morally pure when the city itself is so wicked. He said it was a question whether the yellow journal had come to stay, whether the people preferred a newspaper or a hand bill.

"Before I would publish a paper of the yellow journal pattern," he said, "I would go out of this hall today and be a tramp begging from door to door for food. I hope never to see the day when yellow papers succeed."

The advertising agencies, he said, plundered indiscriminately, and were the greatest obstacles in blocking the success of the country newspapers. He suggested that the editors establish an agency of their own on a coöperative basis and place their own men in control.

An effort will be made at the sessions today to take the next annual meeting of the association to Cairo. For many years the sessions have been held at Chicago, generally at the Lexington. Many of the members from the southern part of the State are desirous of having one meeting nearer home, and this will probably be granted.

WANT MORE PRAYER, LESS TALK.

Chicago University Students Desire Radical Change in the Weekly Chapel Services.

More religion and less lecture in the chapel service is the demand of the students at the University of Chicago. The recent conferences and the meetings of John R. Mott have caused a religious awakening, and the result is a demand that more time be devoted to the daily service. The university weekly says:

"Every student, no matter of what denomination, no matter how agnostical or atheistical, will be raised to a higher moral plane by attending once each week chapel exercises of an entirely religious nature."

The chapel exercise at present consists of a short prayer, a chant by the choir, the dean's announcements for the week, and an address by some professor on any topic he may select.

Officials at the university were interested yesterday in the report that Yale has adopted the three-year plan for undergraduate students. The system was practically in use at the university since its establishment.

The University Glee, Mandolin, and Banjo clubs gave their initial concert last night at the Windsor Park Congregational Church, Seventy-seventh street and Marquette avenue.

DIVERS FOR NEW RIVER SCHEME

Plan to Improve Washington Street Tunnel by Removing Brick Work Obstruction.

To afford relief at the Washington street tunnel Engineer Randolph of the Sanitary District has proposed that divers remove part of the brick work protections which obstruct the channel. Acting Commissioner of Public Works Blocki and City Engineer Ericson have agreed to the plan, and it will be laid before the Drainage board tomorrow.

The removal of the brick work will not deepen the channel, but it will increase its width and will make it easier for boats to get through the draw. It is proposed to take out the obstruction only in the west draw, as that is used by the larger vessels.

Strong opposition has been presented by the Citizens' Expert commission to the determination of the Engineering committee of the Drainage board to award contracts for the immediate construction of new bascule bridges at Canal street, Ashland avenue, and Main street. As a result it is expected that when this matter is considered at the special meeting of the board tomorrow afternoon this plan will be changed.

INDIANA PRESS NOT FOR SUBSIDY.

Editors in State Think Plan to Help Merchant Marine Ill-Advised.

ONLY ONE SUPPORTS IT.

Opposed on Theory That It Is Encouraging a Few at Expense of Many.

PARTY LINES DISREGARDED.

Opposed to ship subsidy..........................11
In favor of ship subsidy..........................1

Indiana editors in reply to inquiries from THE TRIBUNE express themselves as opposed to the ship subsidy bill in the proportion given above. Eleven out of a dozen leading newspapers in the State declare flatly against it and only one indorses the plan.

The chief reason urged in opposition is that the method of encouraging a merchant marine is unfair, as it favors a few at the expense of those not profiting by it. It is also pointed out that American trade is spreading at an amazing rate without subsidies and will continue to do so until the point is reached where American shipping can compete with the world without asking other industries to contribute to its support. No urgent need for the measure can be seen and the Indiana newspapers heard from object to the hasty application of so large a sum of money where the necessity is not self evident.

Sentiment Is Against Bill.

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am opposed to the present passage of the ship subsidy bill. The people are not familiar with its provisions, and question its alleged merits. The Republican party cannot afford to shoulder the responsibility of its passage. Delay will do no harm. Further investigation may change public sentiment, which is now against the bill.
D. SURFACE,
Editor Palladium, Rep.

Is an Illegitimate Burden.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Regard ship subsidy bill as an illegitimate burden on the legitimate interests of the nation. Such a law is at variance with principles of government founded on justice and equality, and can only succeed by and with the consent of a Congress influenced by a combination of selfish interests.
A. J. MOYNIHAN,
Editor Journal-Gazette, Dem.

Cannot Tax Country Rich.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Indiana is tired of subsidy, county, State, and national. The ship subsidy is most obnoxious of all, and is wrong in principle and in politics. The proposition is to hire men to turn from more profitable to less profitable industries and to pay them with public money. You may diverge men from one industry to another, and shift capital from one class to another, but there is no way of making a country rich by taxing it.
CHARLES R. WILLIAMS,
Editor News, Ind.

Danger to Entire Nation.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Government bounties have always been regarded by our people as the worst form of protection, warranted only by extraordinary needs of, or benefits to, the country at large. The ship subsidy so eagerly pushed by Senator Mark Hanna and other capitalists, who will be its chief beneficiaries, cannot be justified on either ground. The way the American sailor is cynically sacrificed in the measure stamps its fraudulent and greedy character. The dangers of the measure are so serious and menacing as to arrest the attention of every patriotic citizen. They are:

1. The entering wedge for greater raids upon the Treasury.
2. A gigantic shipping trust which could place the whole country under tribute.
3. The creating of ship building and steel trusts which would absorb the entire bounty without return to the country and without advancing the professed objects of the bill in the least.

SAMUEL E. MORSS,
Editor Sentinel, Dem.

Will Foster No Enterprise.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Apart from any general view of the viciousness of that principle which lies in government subsidization of particular competitive enterprises the shipping subsidy bill ought not to become a law. It will not foster American shipping beyond putting nearly $200,000,000 into the coffers of a few enormous seaboard interests already prepared to rob the government of most of the bounty. The great midcontinent agricultural and manufacturing interests will bear an undue portion of the burdens such a law will impose without sharing in any possible benefits.
H. M. WILLIAMS,
Editor of the Sentinel, Dem.

No Defense for Measure.

Wabash, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Plain Dealer is unalterably opposed to the subsidy measure, believing that as American manufacturers and American financiers are dominating the world's commerce and money markets under present conditions, trade expansion will progress uninterruptedly without the bonus from the federal treasury. The principle of the taxation of the whole public for the enrichment of a few wealthy vessel-owners is wrong.
CHARLES R. HAAS,
Editor Plain Dealer, Rep.

Indefensible and Wrong.

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The subsidy bill is indefensible and wrong in principle. Is a bad precedent in paternalism; unwarranted by commercial or economic conditions; the worst means to a good end; is suicidal as a Republican measure; and confirms the charge of party for classes against the people. The party is not pledged to it nor under obligations to any one to pass it. The people are against it, and it should be defeated.
J. B. GORDON,
Editor Item, Rep.

Levies Tribute from Masses.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The ship subsidy bill is one of numerous Republican measures that have for their ultimate object the levying of a tribute on the masses for the benefit of the money power.
FRANK SNIVELY,
Editor Leader, Dem.

Trade Comes Without Bonus.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Chronicle opposes the ship subsidy bill. Our growth in trade has come without bonus. Expansion will continue without gifts to a few. We grew naturally from within, and the subsidy hurried development of our great system. Indiana's interests are the interests of a large part of the union. Subsidies fail elsewhere, they will not avail in American shipping.
GEORGE STOUT,
Editor Chronicle, Rep.

Only a Job to Tax People.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I consider the ship subsidy bill an iniquitous job to tax people for the benefit of a few corporations. It will not benefit ship building, which is developing now as rapidly as adverse interests will let it, and it will not reduce charges to shippers or open new markets.
JOHN H. HOLLIDAY,
Editor Press, Ind.

No Need for Forcing.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The Express doubts the necessity of a subsidy for building up the American merchant marine. It can but hasten an inevitable movement, by only a few years, of capital and enterprise towards ocean shipping. Capital is accumulating rapidly and the rate of interest declining in this country. In the past American capital has found investments which paid larger dividends than those which satisfy the British steamship company, but the time is not far distant when our capitalists will be willing to compete with the foreign shipping company for its moderate dividends. At present we do not feel like coaxing our enormously rich men and corporations into investing their accumulating surpluses in ships, but would prefer that a Rockefeller and a Carnegie, for instance, should throw in some of their millions into ocean transportation, even at the risk of cutting down their subscriptions to universities and libraries.
GEORGE M. ALLEN,
Editor Express, Rep.

Thinks It Promotes a Good End.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—While the country's present industrial productiveness has been stimulated by protective duties the merchant marine has practically stood still. I think American exports should be carried in American bottoms for American profit, and favor subsidy as promising effective plan for promoting that end.

Editor Morning News, Rep.

THE KANSAS LODORE; OR, HOW LIQUID AND OTHER THINGS FELL WHEN MRS. NATION SWUNG HER AX.

How does Mrs. Nation
Break up a beer store?
And scatter the liquids
All over the floor?
How shatter the mirrors,
And hack up the bar?
How smash all the glasses
In waging her war?
How spill all the bitters,
How waste all the punch?
How rupture the case goods?
How wreck the free lunch,
And pitch all the lemons
Out into the street?
And dash all the sugar
In dust at her feet?
And break all the strainers,
And bend all the spoons?
And lose all the jiggers
In all the saloons?
And bust the big icebox?
And shiver the kegs?
And crack all the bottles
As if they were eggs?
How pour out the whisky,
The beer, and the gin?
And rid a whole town
Of elixir of sin?

Well, according to reports in the daily press from various points in Kansas, the modus operandi is somewhat as follows:

Her hatchet she seizes,
And looks for a "place."
There's ruin in her features
And wrath in her face.
Helter-skelter,
Hurry-skurry.
Her eyes are all sparkling,
Her face it is darkling,
Till in this rapid race
On which she is bent,
She reaches the "place"
Her anger to vent.
The bar-wrecker strong
Then plunges along,
Striking and raging,
A temperance war waging
The bottles and glasses among.
Slinging and flinging,
Writhing and wringing,
Turning and twisting
Around and around
With endless rebound!
Smiting and fighting.
A sight she delights in,
Confounding, astounding,
Deafening the barkeeper's ear with sound.
And shocking and rocking,
And crocking and knocking,
And dripping and slipping,
And hitting and splitting,
And bending and rending,
And smashing and mashing,
And lashing and hashing,
And gashing and crashing,
And slashing and plashing,
And quashing and squashing,
And swashing and thrashing,
And whizzing and sizzing,
And breaking and shaking,
And flaking and raking,
And scattering and smattering,
And rattling and battling,
And roaring and pouring,
And throwing and flowing,
And roaming and foaming,
And hopping and dropping,
And working and jerking,
And struggling and guggling,
And heaving and cleaving,
And quivering and shivering,
And hurrying and scurrying,
And thundering and floundering.

And falling and brawling and sprawling,
And driving and riving and striving,
And sounding and bounding and rounding,
And bubbling and doubling and troubling,
And clattering and battering and shattering,
And grumbling and rumbling and tumbling,

Advancing and prancing and glancing and dancing,
Recoiling, turmoiling, and toiling and boiling,
Playing and spraying and flaying and praying,
And gleaming and streaming and steaming and beaming,
And rushing and flushing and crushing and gushing,
And flapping and rapping and clapping and slapping,
And curling and whirling and twirling and hurling,
And thumping and plumping and bumping and jumping,
And dashing and flashing and splashing and clashing,
And so she goes on till the barroom is bested,
The liquors all gone, and she gets arrested,
All at once and all's o'er
With a mighty uproar.
And this way Mrs. Nation breaks up the beer store.

SEWALL ATTACKS GOV. CANDLER

Bath, Me., Shipping Man Defends Ship Subsidy After Maritime Congress Indorses Government Aid.

Brunswick, Ga., Jan. 31.—The National Maritime Congress concluded its business this afternoon with the indorsement of government aid to American shipping.

Harold M. Sewall of Bath, Me., son of the late Arthur Sewall, made a reply to an interview credited to Governor Candler, in which he was quoted as saying that the shipping bill was "one of the most iniquitous, corrupt, and infamous measures which Republicans ever tried to foist on the American public." Mr. Sewall said:

"We are painted as partners in crime by the Governor of Georgia, whose guests we are. I could not leave here without denouncing the statements of the Governor as malignant and libelous."

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 31.—Governor Candler tonight denied he had been correctly quoted regarding the ship subsidy bill. In reference to Mr. Sewall he said: "If Mr. Sewall is quoted correctly, his utterances are in his own words malignant and libelous and beneath my notice."

CHANGES IN THE WAR REVENUE ACT

Senate Committee on Finance Reports on a Number of Amendments.

TAX ON STOCK BROKERS.

New Provisions Relating to Stamps on Board of Trade Transactions.

ANNUAL LICENSE TO BE PAID

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The Senate Committee on Finance today reported a number of amendments to the war revenue reduction act. Briefly summarized, these amendments provide for a stamp tax of one cent on each $100 represented in Board of Trade or Stock Exchange transactions, and also a stamp tax of two cents on each $100 on the face value of all stocks, bonds, or other securities covered by all such transactions.

In addition, each person or firm doing business on boards of trade or stock exchanges must pay an annual special tax of $50, and a like sum for each branch office.

Text of New Provisions.

The following is the text of an entirely new section added to the war revenue act:

"Section —. That from and after the passage of this act every person, association, copartnership, or corporation who or which shall in his, its, or their own behalf or as agent engage in the business of making or offering to make contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions respecting the purchase or sale, or purchase and sale, of any grain, provisions, raw or unmanufactured, stock, bonds, or other securities wherein both parties thereto or such person, association, copartnership, or corporation above named contemplate or intend that such contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions shall be or may be closed, adjusted, or settled according or with reference to the public market quotations of prices made on any Board of Trade or exchange upon which the commodities or securities referred to in said contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions are dealt in, and without a bona-fide transaction on such Board of Trade or exchange, or wherein both parties, or such person, association, copartnership, or corporation above named, shall contemplate or intend that such contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions shall be or may be deemed closed or terminated when the public market quotations of prices made on such Board of Trade or exchange for the articles as securities named in such contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions shall reach a certain figure, and every person, association, copartnership, and corporation who or which shall, in his or its own behalf or as agent, conduct what is commonly known as a 'bucket shop' shall pay a stamp tax of one cent on each $100 in value of the merchandise covered or pretended to be covered, and also a tax of two cents on each $100 on the face value of all stocks, bonds, or other securities covered or pretended to be covered by each and all of such contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions.

States May Also Tax.

"Provided, however, that the payment of any tax imposed by this section shall not be held or construed to exempt any such person, association, copartnership, or corporation from any penalty or punishment provided by the laws of any State for carrying on such business or the making of such contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions within such State, or in any manner to authorize the commencement or continuance of such business or the making of any such contracts, agreements, trades, or transactions contrary to the laws of such State, or in any place prohibited by municipal law; nor shall the payment of any such tax be held to prohibit any State from placing a duty or tax on the same trade or business for State or other purposes.

Special Annual Tax.

"And every such person, association, copartnership, or corporation, as aforesaid, shall pay an annual special tax of $50, and for each branch office, wherever established, an annual special tax in addition of $50, which said tax shall be paid within thirty days after the passage of this act by every person, association, copartnership, or corporation now engaged in such business, and from and after the passage of this act by every such person, association, copartnership, or corporation proposing to engage in the business aforesaid before commencing such business."

Provision is made compelling all persons or associations doing business under this section to file a notice under oath with a collector, giving the names of persons or members and officers of the corporation, their residence, and place where the business is carried on.

"Books must be kept by such firms showing all transactions subject to inspection by collectors. Penalties are provided making it a misdemeanor if any of the provisions of the act is not carried out; fines of $500 to $1,000 and imprisonment of three months to two years being the penalty."

Rebate on Tobacco Tax.

A rebate provision relating to tobacco is added, as follows:

"That on all original and unbroken factory packages of smoking and manufactured tobacco and snuff and cigars held by manufacturers or dealers at the time such discount or reduction of tax shall go into effect upon which the tax has been paid, there shall be allowed a drawback or rebate of the full amount of such discount or reduction of tax, but the same shall not apply in any case where the claim has not been presented within sixty days following the date of reduction; and such rebate to manufacturers may be paid in stamps at the reduced rate; and no claim shall be allowed or drawback paid for a less amount than $10.

"It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to adopt such rules and regulations and to prescribe and furnish such blanks and forms as may be necessary to carry this section into effect."

May Appoint Inspectors.

Another new section is added as follows:

"That from and after the passage of this act the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to appoint a competent person, whose special duty it shall be to conduct such investigations as may be necessary to secure the efficient enforcement of the tax imposed upon legacies and distributive shares of personal property by section 29 of said act, approved on June 13, 1898, and he may also appoint such additional clerks or agents as may be necessary for the collection of said taxes."

On Bills of Lading.

The existing laws relating to the tax on bills of exchange is amended so as to read as follows:

"Bills of exchange (foreign) or letters of credit (including orders by telegraph or otherwise for the payment of money issued by express or other companies or any person or persons) drawn in but payable out of the United States, if drawn singly or otherwise than a set of three or more, according to the custom of merchants and bankers, shall pay for a sum not exceeding $100 two cents, and for each $100 or fractional part thereof in excess of $100 two cents; if drawn in sets of two or more: For every bill of each set, where the sum made payable shall not exceed $100 or the equivalent thereof, in any foreign currency in which said bill may be expressed, according to the standard of value fixed by the United States, one cent; and for each $100 or fractional part thereof in excess of $100, one cent."

BARRICADE SALOONS TO KEEP OUT MRS. NATION.

Kansas Saloon Wrecker, Ejected from One Place, and Finding Others Fortified, Pleads with Owners to Let Her In Topeka, Kas., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon wrecker, armed with a new hatchet, started on a crusade against the Topeka saloons at 8:30 this morning. She called on five of the best places. The Apex was first visited, but no damage was done. Mrs. Nation was put out of the place. She said she did not want to be destructive, but merely wanted to lecture. A crowd of several hundred people followed her down the street. The police tried to arrest her, but the crowd interfered, preventing it.

Mrs. Nation wore an old gray shawl and carried a handbag. When she appeared at the saloons the owners stood back of the barricaded doors and waited an attack. She begged them to let her in, that she might talk to them, promising not to harm anything. But they were afraid of her and would not open the doors. Nothing daunted, she talked at them.

"I'm sorry for you, boys," she said. "You look so much ashamed of yourselves. I'm not mad at you, boys, even when I come around with my hatchet. I'm treating you just as I would treat one of my own boys if I found him with something that would do him harm.

"But, boys, you mustn't stay in this business any longer. I give you fair warning. Close up and get out of this business. You are harming yourselves and other boys and I won't let you do that. If you don't get out of this, boys, I'll be around in a few days and break up your wicked little shops for you."

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A. C. Rankin of Chicago, who has been to Topeka, Kas., where he visited Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon wrecker, was in Kansas City tonight and stated that Mrs. Nation, accompanied by her husband and half a dozen temperance enthusiasts, would visit Chicago the latter part of next week.

"Mrs. Nation has received a great many invitations to visit Eastern cities," said Mr. Rankin, "and she has decided to make this trip for several purposes. First, she wants to let the people outside of Kansas know that she and her followers are not a lot of crazy women; second, she wishes to present the situation as it actually exists before the people of other parts of the country; third, she wants to quicken temperance sentiment in other States; fourth, she wants to raise funds for carrying on her work in Kansas. She will address several mass-meetings in Chicago. She has not yet decided upon the exact date when she will start."

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1901.

A Sensible Suggestion. The Bostonians are raising a fund for a memorial tribute to the late ex-Governor Wolcott, and meanwhile are discussing what form the tribute shall take. It was assumed at the outset that a statue would be erected, that being the general outcome of memorial tributes, but of late many of the principal donors to the fund have favored the establishment of a Wolcott professorship at Harvard College, holding at the same time that a portrait of the Governor placed in the Statehouse gallery would be enough to satisfy the demand for something in the nature of a monument. The suggestion is an eminently sensible one. The ex-Governor was, during his lifetime, a most useful man. Why not preserve his memory in a useful manner? Statues are never useful. It might almost be said they are never good.

Relief for Drug Clerks. Whether or not eight hours should be the legal day's work, surely a fifteen-hour day is too long, and the drug clerks are justified in seeking a shortening of their hours of labor. They ask that the number of hours be limited to seventy a week, and that they shall have at least one day off in each two weeks. These demands are reasonable. The drug clerk works hard, his pay is meager, especially considering that he must attend college to learn his profession, and in some places he is compelled to sleep in the store so as to answer calls by night as well as by day. Their own interests are so paramount in the minds of the advocates of the bill that in their argument they neglect an important point in favor of shorter hours for the drug clerks. This is that the tired and sleepy drug clerk who has worked fifteen hours and is awakened after a doze of an hour to compound a prescription is not in full possession of his faculties and may make a mistake in the filling of a blindly written prescription. This is a matter that means the jeopardizing of lives by an economy that is dangerous to the public health.

The Country Editors in Chicago. The 200 members of the Illinois Press association, now holding their annual meeting in Chicago, belong to what is in many respects the most influential body of men in the State. They are the owners and editors of daily and weekly newspapers throughout Illinois, they represent all phases of political opinion, and many of them personally hold positions of prominence in public life. As members of the same craft, they recognize common interests to be fostered and common dangers to be avoided. They meet now on a business basis, leaving the editorial differences of political campaigns outside the convention hall. As men of prominence in their respective communities they discuss not only questions directly affecting the newspaper business but matters of public policy not directly political which may affect the people in various portions of the State. Their discussions of and recommendations concerning public questions are more important and have more influence on the final decision than is perhaps generally realized. The members of the association are naturally proud of what they have accomplished during the thirty years of its existence. They point to the fact that the standard of character and attainments in the fraternity has been greatly raised; that the conduct of newspapers has been put on a business basis; that many former abuses have been abolished, while at the same time the influence of the papers which they control was never greater or more salutary than it is at present.

THE CARNEGIE BENEFACTIONS.

The total of Mr. Andrew Carnegie's gifts to educational institutions and libraries, as well as in miscellaneous directions, amounts to $13,540,965, and he has a million dollars more of library applications under consideration. Standing by itself this is a magnificent showing and it argues a commendable spirit of generosity on Mr. Carnegie's part. There are few who have even come near it.

The conditions which Mr. Carnegie has imposed upon himself, while they do not in any way disparage his philanthropy, nevertheless give it a kind of hopeless aspect so far as his own future is concerned. Mr. Carnegie recently said in the most public manner that "to die rich is to die disgraced," and his contributions therefore must be looked upon as an effort on his part to save his good name from discredit at the last and himself from humiliation. Mr. Carnegie is now thought to be worth $200,000,000, though these figures may be exaggerated. Most fortunes usually are. But it is well known that his wealth is continually increasing. It gains on his gifts. This month, for instance, he has given away $675,000, which is larger than the average of any month in the past, but if he does not increase his donations in number and volume it will take him over 200 years to get rid of the $200,000,000 he has now. As he cannot live for that period, even by the use of salt, pepper, or any other of the numerous devices for securing longevity, he may live long enough to see himself die disgraced. Unquestionably it would be difficult for him to expedite the process much, for as nearly all his donations are devoted to the noble work of building up libraries it of necessity requires some time for investigation and decision just where to give and how much to give. It might be possible to do harm, indeed, by inconsiderate generosity.

In this emergency, and to save himself from the possibility of humiliation, which grows more and more imminent each year, he would do well to put himself in prompt communication with Dr. D. K. Pearsons. The doctor has devised a plan by which every dollar of his money will be distributed before he dies, and not a scrap of property will be left when he is gone. He probably would be willing to let Mr. Carnegie into his secret, and thus save him the posthumous disgrace he apparently dreads so much.

LEGISLATING OR LOBBYING—WHICH?

The functions of a Republican National committee are not defined by law. They are defined by long-established usage, which is as binding upon cautious and conscientious men as a law would be. When the delegates to a national convention select a National committee they do so in order that there shall be an organization to take charge of the ensuing campaign. When it is over the duties of the committee are at an end until the season arrives to determine the time and the place for the holding of the next national convention. No such convention has ever assigned other duties than these to the National committee selected by it. No committee before the present one has ever ventured to assume other functions than those laid down by unbroken precedents.

The Presidential campaign of 1900, successfully managed by the present National committee, is over. That committee is functus officio until the winter of 1903. But it refuses—or some of its members refuse—to recognize that fact and is actively engaged in an attempt to influence in a certain direction the legislation of Congress. It is not denied that the committee is busied in sending out to country newspapers, throughout the middle West, prepared editorials and plate news matter—the cost of getting up and distributing which is paid out of a campaign fund presumably contributed for entirely different purposes—advocating the passage of the ship subsidy bill. The committee is unwilling to follow public opinion on this subject. It seeks to create a public opinion in favor of this subsidy legislation and thereby influence the action of Congressmen.

This is a serious and startling departure from the party usages of nearly half a century. No one has even suggested in the past that the wisdom of the party as represented in both Houses of Congress was not competent to decide upon the action of the party concerning measures of legislation as they might arise. It has never occurred to any Republican that there was need of a supervising or advisory body to control or influence the action of the Republican Congressmen. Assuredly the delegates to the Republican National convention did not think they were creating such a body when they selected the present National committee. They had not the lack of confidence in the party representatives in Congress which would have been implied in the designation of the National committee as a Congressional "steering committee." Nor is THE TRIBUNE informed that this new policy of the National committee was determined upon or approved at any meeting of the full committee or of the Executive committee.

This innovation, for which some members of the National committee are responsible, should not be permitted to ripen into established custom. If permitted, there will be created within the party an oligarchy with powers greater than those which are given to the Representatives of the people in Congress duly elected according to law. The Republican Congressmen should be the first to resent an attempt to establish such an oligarchy. They will do so if they have proper self-respect. They cannot afford to ignore this effort now being made to bring unofficial, outside pressure to bear upon them by covert appeals to the country newspapers in their districts.

If this procedure on the part of the National committee is not an attempt to usurp the functions of the legislative department of the government it is one to usurp the functions of the lobby. It is difficult at this moment to say which it is. In either case there is a manifest and dangerous violation of the unwritten law of the party, which should meet with earnest, prompt, and effective rebuke.

POLITICAL ABUSES BY FRIARS.

In order to understand the present issue in the Philippines concerning the friars it is necessary to note that they exercised political functions and oppressed the people in doing so. It was not on account of their priestly offices, but because of administrative abuses that the people rose against them and expelled them. The intense opposition of the Filipinos to the return of the friars is based entirely upon the hatred caused by past wrongs at their hands and the fear of further tyranny of the same kind. As Judge Taft has explained, this feeling is so deeply rooted that no explanation of the changed conditions of government can alter it.

From the beginning the friars exercised a powerful and often a dominating influence in the civil government of the islands. In many districts they acted as government agents and magistrates, and were the sole representatives of the civil authority in dealing with petty offenders. This power was used in innumerable cases for purposes of extortion and of private revenge. As government agent it was within the arbitrary power of a friar to attach his signature to or withhold it from any municipal document. He could and often did give full vent to his animosity by secretly denouncing to the civil authorities as "inconvenient in the town" all those whom he wished to get rid of.

He had simply to send an official advice to the Governor of the province stating that he believed this or that native to be disloyal or immoral, when the native so named would suddenly find himself overpowered by a patrol of the civil guard, and escorted, with elbows tied together, from prison to prison, up to the capital town, and thence to Manila. Finally, without trial or sentence, he was banished to some distant island, his property confiscated, and his family reduced to beggary. John Foreman not only vouches for these facts in his book, "The Philippine Islands," but adds that the banishment in such cases was attended with cruelty, of which he was an eye witness.

It must also be understood that the friars paid no taxes whatever, while the meanest native on their vast estates was required to pay the cedula or poll tax, and in case of his inability to pay it he was compelled to work it out. A native who refused either to pay or to work was flogged, and the flogging was done by friars or was traceable to their orders. Instead of being treated as parishioners the natives were treated as vassals. The friars dominated the civil authorities so completely that they could compass the ruin of any man in the islands. Dr. Rizal's novel, "Noli Me Tangere," translated under the title of "An Eagle Flight," describes the situation with pathos, and the author's subsequent martyrdom is a historical proof of the truth of his indictment. In view of these administrative abuses it is not strange that the Filipinos dread to see the friars return to the places where they exercised such political oppression.

REFUSING TAINTED DONATIONS.

The authorities of the Norwegian Children's Home on Irving Park boulevard, including the matron and the pastor, Mr. Hetland, have refused to accept a gift of $100 because the money was raised by a concert where there was dancing and where liquor was sold. They admit that the institution is poor and that the children are greatly in deed of things which the money would buy, but they say they cannot approve of the method in which the money was secured, and hence cannot accept the donation.

Here is one case in which we have a categorical negative answer to the mooted ethical question involved. There has been a great deal of discussion in recent years as to the propriety of accepting donations whose source may be questionable. Some have held that a university or charitable institution should refuse money derived through methods or from sources which were not morally above criticism, but the cases in which such funds have been refused are extremely rare. Authorities of needy institutions are not wont to look too closely at such money to see if there is any sign of a taint upon it. They usually proceed on the theory that any money is good enough if put to the right use.

Mr. Hetland and his fellow-officials certainly have the courage of their convictions. Their action in refusing $100 in gold for the sake of a moral principle is creditable to their strength of character. Whether they have decided rightly or not is an interesting ethical problem. Its solution would also require a consideration of the duty of these authorities toward the children under their care. Is it better to let the children want for clothes and comforts than to accept money earned by the sale of liquor? The problem is one which even religious and ethical debating societies will not find easy to solve.

SALOON QUESTION IN CHICAGO.

In the current issue of the American Journal of Sociology, published by the University of Chicago, Mr. Roy L. Melendy concludes his series of papers on "The Saloon in Chicago," and presents conclusions which are of special interest at the present time, when the saloon question figures so largely before the public. He says in effect that the people will drink, and the way to get them away from the evil influences found in some saloons is to give them drinking places without these noxious surroundings. Beer is the almost universal beverage of the working people, and he quotes Louis Wreden, General Secretary of the Deutscher Orden der Harugari, as saying that he could not recall a single German family in which beer was not used. The laboring people of many nationalities feed beer to their children as others do milk. "You can depend on the beer, but you can't tell about the milk," one man remarked.

On the other hand, Mr. Melendy believes, "from prolonged observation and from conference with the keepers and patrons of saloons," that about 50 per cent of the men who go to the saloon go there primarily for drink. The other 50 per cent go there for other reasons, and the first 50 per cent cannot be reached by any substitutes, as was attempted by Bishop Fallows' home saloon.

Mr. Melendy's suggestion is that some of the causes of the saloon evil could be removed—by improvement in the methods of lodging the people, as by model tenement-houses; by increased facilities for obtaining cheap and wholesome food, as is provided in the coffee-houses of London; by a ministration by proper authorities to such necessities as public toilet conveniences, labor bureaus, public parks, etc.; by a more general recognition by the churches of their social mission; and by the extension of the movement already begun to furnish places for recreation and amusement and the means of social intercourse for the masses.

To state it still more briefly, Mr. Melendy believes that the liquor traffic may and undoubtedly will in time be regulated and controlled by legislation; it may be robbed of its social functions by substitution and of its monopoly in catering to certain necessities by their supply by proper authorities; yet beer drinking under these regulations and conditions will always be more or less common among the masses of the laboring people.

THE WIFE-BEATER QUESTION.

The conservative State of Delaware has kept in frequent use two ancient forms of punishment—the pillory and the whipping post. The first of these is humiliating, but not specially painful, for a culprit is no longer pelted by the bystanders as he was once. The last-mentioned form of punishment is painful—when the Sheriff lays on the whip unsparingly—as well as humiliating.

The Delaware Senate has passed a bill to abolish the pillory. The fear of it probably never deterred anybody from crime. A sentence to it for the regulation hour never reformed anybody. But the Senate is not willing to do away with the whipping post, which is in many ways so much more objectionable than the pillory. It has voted down a bill to stop the use of the whip, and has passed one to extend its employment. Wife-beaters are to be given twenty lashes. A bill is to be introduced in the Connecticut Legislature—and many citizens of that State favor its passage—to authorize the punishment by flogging of men who whip women.

The question "what shall we do with our wife-beaters" is a harder one to answer than "what shall we do with our ex-Presidents." There are many of the former. There are but two of the latter. The Delaware Legislature may have found an answer to the first of these questions. If so, it will be one which will not be quite satisfactory in Illinois, where the whipping post is looked on as a relic of barbarism. At the same time the people of this State will be compelled to admit that their method of dealing with wife-beaters is not altogether perfect.

If a man of means beats his wife she can get a divorce and alimony. If a wage-worker maltreats his wife she can have him arrested and fined. If, as is generally the case, he has not the money, he goes to the House of Correction. While he is locked up there, well fed and not overworked, his wife and children are often in dire distress. When women who have been badly beaten plead for the release of cruel husbands it is because they prefer brutality to starvation.

Illinois is far from having discovered the best way to deal with wife-beaters. This is a subject which might receive some of the attention Legislatures bestow on matters of much less importance or interest.

THE ZEAL OF NOHE.

Augustus W. Nohe, Representative from the Second District of Cook County, voted for the Allen law; and was not returned to the next General Assembly, which repealed it. Mr. Nohe is again in the House, and in a garb of "sheep's clothing." He has introduced a measure in behalf of the oppressed. It provides for reduced fares on the elevated lines of Chicago during the "rush" hours.

It is difficult to reconcile Mr. Nohe's high opinion of five-cent fares on June 4, 1897, and his opinion on the same subject on Jan. 29, 1901. On the former date he voted for the bill by which the Legislature proposed to compel the Chicago City Council unconditionally to establish a five-cent street railway fare for twenty years. On the latter date he proposed that the Legislature should reduce the fares on the elevated roads below five cents for the "rush" hours, although the service is better and the profits are less on those roads than on the surface lines.

A legislator who prostitutes his official trust for bribes is as truly a public traitor—though not so interesting a one—as is the man who, with more personal risk, abets his country's enemies. But the legislator why betrays virtue with a kiss, who brazenly exploits the real demand for reform, who would deceive public confidence by the pretense of noble sympathies, deserves punishment which the law is too clumsy to bestow and which is only possible by the lash of public contempt.

As for local passenger transportation in this city, not only Mr. Nohe but likewise Mr. Farnum from Cook County, who on Wednesday introduced a bill in the House to regulate fares and transfers on Chicago surface lines—and, indeed, the entire Legislature—are quite aware that the repeal of the Allen law left it as the settled policy of this State that the regulation of local passenger transportation is to reside with the local authorities. No legislation on this subject is therefore in point except enabling legislation.

THEN there is also the Pat Crowe deadlock.

IT may be considered certain that Cincinnati's agnostic Sunday school sends no money to the heathen.

"THE only way to dispose of the Senatorial deadlock in Nebraska," observes the Council Bluffs Nonpareil, "is to break it. It never can be worked out." This seems to suggest the use of Mr. Meiklejohn's name as a sledgehammer.

THE Boston Transcript jumps to the conclusion that the late decision of the United States Supreme Court closes the Chicago drainage canal. There is a severe jolt ahead of the esteemed Boston Transcript.

"Is this Mr. Keely, the inventor?" asked the new arrival in the world of spirits.

"It is."

"I am very happy to meet you. I was one of the few who believed in the reality of your wonderful motor, and now that there is no longer any reason for concealment through fear that some other man may rob you of the fruits of your years of toil, may I ask if you will unfold to me the real secret of its operation?"

"Certainly. There is no difficulty in understanding it when you apprehend the principles upon which it is based. In a few words and in simple language the motor was the application of harmonic vibrations to mechanical uses through the disintegration of the etheric forces inherent in the constitution of matter, this being effected by the depolarization of the undulatory dynamic impulses, or, to put it more plainly, the discerption and divellication of the effogistic genotomies recoiling upon the planipetalous fastigia at the moment when the etheric jaculations acquired sufficient velocity to effect molecular disintegration and render possible the application of polar sympathy."

About this time there came a smallpox scare in the land of Uz, and the physicians were sent around to vaccinate the people.

In due course they came to the house of Job.

Now Job was the most patient man in the whole settlement, and instead of pleading that he had troubles of his own—as indeed he had at that time—he gave orders that they be admitted.

"Job," they said, stepping up to his bedside, "we have come to vaccinate you."

Already?

It was the first pay-day in the office of the Commoner, and Editor Bryan was looking over the salary list, wrapping up little packages of silver coin, and marking them with the names of the employés to whom they severally belonged.

"Who is this?" he asked, as he came to the last name on the list.

"What!" faltered the editor, "is the devil to pay so soon?"

WITH THE
EDITORS

THE old traditional type of country editor has disappeared along with the tramp printer. As he existed in the popular mind he was always a creature made up of almost equal parts of fancy and fact. He was supposed to have eggs "laid on his table" in payment of subscriptions and to take lawn mowers and patent medicines in gross lots for advertising space. He was supposed to never refer to his loathsome contemporaries except as "worms," "wretches," and "unspeakable and unhung rascals." In the popular fancy he paid his printers and other employés in orders on the local grocery store, and he never had more than 50 cents in his pocket at a time. That never was more than a slanderous caricature of the country editor. But there remains no longer even a trace of his old characteristics. Today the country editor is, if not a capitalist, a man of substance and character, who does business on business principles and is often the most influential man in his county.

There are 200 country editors meeting this week at the Lexington Hotel. They are members of the Illinois State Press association. A majority of them own not only their papers but the buildings in which they are published as well. They have handsome homes, hold bank stock, and are counted among the substantial men of their respective communities. Some of them are gray haired and have seen long years in the harness. Their memory goes back to the pioneer days when the life of a country editor, like the lives of other early settlers, was comparatively rough. Others are young and ambitious. All of them are deeply interested in the work of their association, the object of which is to raise the standards and improve the conditions of the newspaper business.

The retiring President of the association is A. C. Bentley of Pittsfield, Pike County. Mr. Bentley stands several inches more than six feet in height, weighs over 300 pounds, wears a big, black slouch hat, and is as sturdy and robust a specimen as might be found in a long search. In addition to running a redhot, free silver, Bryan paper, Mr. Bentley has until recently been serving as secretary of the Democratic State Central committee. He is also a lawyer. Within the last three years Mr. Bentley has had an experience which would seem to indicate that the men who want "to lick the editor" are not all dead yet.

Pike County lies on the Mississippi River and along the river bottoms live a good many people who, under certain conditions, believe in taking the law into their own hands. Something was printed in Mr. Bentley's paper which greatly displeased some of the hot-headed gentry. They held a meeting and decided that they would "do" the editor. A committee of five husky men was selected to do the active work. They mounted their horses and drove into Pittsfield. It happened that Mr. Bentley was in the newspaper office when they arrived. He had gone across the street to his law office and they followed him. The moment the party pushed open the door and stood in a group in the center of the room he knew that they were looking for trouble. But he looked up across his table and greeted them politely.

"What can I do for you, gentlemen?" he said.

"If anything has been said which does you an injustice," went on Bentley, "I shall be glad to correct it for you."

The men from the river bottoms did not want a correction. They wanted blood. Bentley went on to show them the folly of "kicking up a row." They laughed at him. Then suddenly Bentley opened the drawer of his table. With one hand he took out of the drawer a big revolver and with the other an equally large bowie knife. With these weapons lying before him Mr. Bentley smiled again at the warlike party. They backed away toward the door.

"Don't you think, gentlemen," he went on in a honeyed voice, as he carelessly twirled his ugly weapons, "don't you think we can reach a compromise of some kind in this matter?"

Then he lifted up his huge bulk to its full height, and at the sight the five warriors fled rapidly down the stairs.

They still talk about "Bentley's compromise" down in Pike County.

J. M. Page, the slender, quiet, energetic man who has been secretary of the association for several years, is another member whose career has not been without its adventures. At present Mr. Page is secretary of the State and National Press association, is the manager of a Western gold mining company, owner and editor of the Jerseyville (Ill.) Democrat, Master in Chancery, superintendent of a Sunday school, and recording secretary of a number of organizations in his home town. And in spite of these multifarious duties the members of the association say that no man among them has so much leisure time on his hands.

When the war broke out Mr. Page was 16 years old, but he enlisted and served through to the end. Then he came back to Jerseyville and learned the carpenter's trade. At that time the town was overrun with tramps and the authorities were at their wit's end. One or two Town Marshals had been roughly handled by the tramps, and it was hard to get a man to fill the place. Finally, as the carpenter business happened to be slack, Mr. Page said he'd take a try at being Town Marshal if they'd give him a chance. One night shortly after he pinned the big nickel star on his coat a crowd of nearly 100 tramps took complete possession of a train on a railroad running through Jerseyville. They drove away the trainmen and proceeded to arrange matters to their own satisfaction. Finally one of the brakemen found the new Town Marshal.

"Come with me," said Page.

"We'll go in at the rear door of the hind car," said Page.

The car was half full of tramps, who were making themselves comfortable on the seats. Page had the brakeman lock the door behind him after they entered, and he carried a large revolver in each hand.

He drove the tramps in each car out of the door before him and then saw that it was locked before he went forward to the next car. In a few minutes he had the train cleared. Then he drew the tramps up in line before his formidable looking guns.

"This train is now going to pull out," he said. "I'll kill the first man who tries to interfere with it."

"DON'T YOU THINK WE CAN COMPROMISE THIS SOME WAY, GENTLEMEN?"

After the train had disappeared down the track he got behind the tramp army and gave them a brief invitation to move on.

"I want you men to take a quick stroll down the railroad track," he said. "I'll go with you the first mile or two, and if I see anybody looking back I'll take a shot at him."

Single handed Page escorted them out some distance from town and then came back to resume his less exciting duties. He made such an impression as Town Marshal that shortly after he was elected Mayor of the town, and, it is said, has never since held less than half a dozen important offices at the same time.

If the gossip of the members may be taken as a safe guide, General Smith D. Atkins of Freeport will succeed Mr. Bentley as President of the State's association. General Atkins, who has lived in the State ever since he was 10 years old, was Prosecuting Attorney of Stephenson County when the war broke out. He resigned his office and was the first private soldier to enlist in the county. He took part in several battles, finally coming back to the State to raise volunteers for the Ninety-Second Illinois Regiment, of which he was made Colonel. In 1863 he was made a Brigadier General, and, after the "march to the sea," in which he took part, was, by special order of President Lincoln, brevetted Major General. Since the war he has been editor of the Freeport Journal and has also served for nearly thirty years as postmaster of Freeport.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

AMERICAN SOCIETY AND MANNERS A CENTURY AGO.

"The Journals and Letters of Philip Vickers Fithian" Affords Attractive Glimpses of the Quaint Social Life of Days Gone By—People and Customs at Princeton College in 1770 Vividly Described—A Book of Peculiar Interest and Value.

JOURNALS and letters, as original sources of history, have a unique value. In seeking to reproduce in one's thought and imagination the spirit of any given time or period there is nothing else that can take the place of those first-hand individual documents.

A limited edition of 500 copies of the "Journals and Letters of Philip Vickers Fithian" has been edited by John Rogers Williams for the Princeton Historical society. The book is an octavo volume of 344 pages and forms a work that has an attraction and value all its own. Those whom it will interest at all it will interest greatly.

The author of the journal and letters was born in New Jersey in 1747, entered Princeton College in 1770, became private tutor at Nomini Hall in Virginia in 1773, was missionary in western Pennsylvania in 1774-'75, was Chaplain in the revolutionary war, and died near Fort Washington in 1776.

All the journals and letters in the book are given verbatim et literatim. The letters from college present, so far as they go, a most vivid picture of life and persons in Princeton. Among the men who at that time were students there were many whose names have become national and historic—James Madison, Henry Lee, Philip Freneau, Aaron Burr, Henry B. Livingstone, General John Beatty (whose sister became Fithian's wife), Andrew Hunter, Ashbel Green, John Duffield, and others.

The story of Fithian's life as tutor in the family of Robert Carter is told in these pages with charming frankness, and from the historical point of view is among the most useful pictures of the place and time. Here is a bit of the record:

> We go into Supper commonly about half after 8 or 9, and I usually go to Bed between 10 or 11. Altho' the family in which I live is certainly under as good political Regulations and every way as suitable and agreeable as I can expect or could desire; and though the Neighborhood is polite and the Country pleasant, yet I cannot help reflecting on my situation last winter, which was near the lovely Laura, for whom I cannot but have the truest and warmest esteem. Possibly, if Heaven shall preserve my life, I may again enjoy her good society.

A distinct picture of social conditions as they then existed is formed by the following:

> Mrs. Carter and the Young Ladies came home last night from the Ball and brought with them Mrs. Lane. They tell us that there were upwards of Seventy at the Ball; forty-one Ladies; that the company was genteel; and that Colonel Harry Lee from Dunfries, and his son Harry, who was with me at College, were also there. Mrs. Carter made this an argument, and it was a strong one, indeed, that today I must dress and go with her to the Ball. After considering for a while, I consented, and was dressed. We set away from Mr. Carter's at 2; Mrs. Carter and the Young Ladies in the Chariot, Mrs. Lane in a Chair, and myself on Horseback. As soon as I had handed the Ladies out I was saluted by Parson Smith; I was introduced into a small Room where a number of Gentlemen were playing cards (the first game I have seen since I left Home) to lay off my boots, riding coat, etc. Next, I was directed into the Dining-Room to see young Mr. Lee; he introduced me to his Father. With them I conversed till Dinner, which came in at half-past 4. The Ladies dined first, when some good order was preserved; when they rose, each nimblest Fellow dined first. The Dinner was as elegant as could be expected when so great an assembly were to be kept for so long a time. For Drink, there were several sorts of Wine, good Lemon Punch, Toddy, Cyder, Porter, etc. About 7, the Ladies and Gentlemen begun to dance in the Ball Room, first Minuets, one Round; second, Giggs; third, Reels; and last of All, Country Dances; tho' they struck several Marches occasionally. The Music was a French Horn and two Violins. The Ladies were Dressed Gay and Splendid, and when dancing their Skirts and Brocades rustled and trailed behind them. But all did not join in the Dance for there were parties in Rooms made up, some at Cards, some drinking for Pleasure, some toasting the Sons of America; some singing Liberty Songs, as they called them, in which six, eight, ten, or more would put their Heads near together and roar, and for the most part as unharmonious as affronted. Among the first of the vociferators was a young Scotch-Man, Mr. Jack Cunningham; he was nimis bibendo appotus; noisy, droll, waggish, yet civil in his way and wholly inoffensive. I was solicited to dance by several; Captain Chelton, Colonel Lee, Harry Lee, and others. But George Lee, with great Rudeness, as though half drunk, asked me why I would come to the Ball and not dance or play cards. I answered him shortly (for his Impudence moved my resentment) that my Invitation to the Ball would justify my Presence; and that he was ill-qualified to direct my Behaviour, who made so indifferent a Figure himself. Parson Smith's and Parson Gibbern's wives danced, but I saw neither of the Clergymen dance or game. At 11 Mrs. Carter called upon me to go. I listened with gladness to the summons.

It will be seen that the journal affords attractive glimpses of social conditions and customs that seem strangely quaint and odd to us of the present day. The time was once when old world manners still obtained, and simplicity and naiveté were curiously mixed with much of artificiality and formalism. Patriotism, too, was strong, however, as is shown by the story told of one of Fithian's classmates in Princeton, Israel Evans by name, who studied theology under Dr. Witherspoon. Evans was a chaplain in the army, and died in Concord, Mass. In his last illness he was visited by the Rev. Dr. McFarland, who prayed with him, asking "that at life's close he might sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of God." To this supplication the dying man added audibly: "And with George Washington, too."

WOE FOR N. W. U. YOUNG WOMEN.

May Lose All Their Social Liberty for Violating the Rules of the Hall.

The loss of all social privileges is the punishment said to be in store for many of the young women who live at Woman's Hall at Northwestern University, because they violated the rules which forbid them to leave the building in the evening or to stay out after 11 p. m. without permission. The trouble between Dean Martha Foote Crow and the young women culminated yesterday, when the latter were told that they would be given half an hour in which to acknowledge that they had broken the rules. The Dean had learned that seven cariages had returned after 11 p. m. from a dance at the Evanston Boat club the night before. The Dean also decreed that when a young man called he should send his card to her as well as to the young woman whom he wished to see. She commanded further that if the young woman was to be taken from the hall her escort should announce their destination and the length of the stay intended, on the card which he sent to the Dean.

"MIKE" AT PET DOG MEETING.

Auditorium Cat Makes a Mistake—Errs in the Character of the Assemblage and Quickly Retreats.

The Chicago Pet Dog association met yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium Hotel for the annual election of officers. In the midst of its deliberations the members, who are mostly women, were much suprised at the sudden entrance of "Mike," the Auditorium cat.

Mike came in at a time when the relative merits of the poodle and terrier were being discussed, and as if he scented the subject of the argument arched his back and fled precipitately.

Clerk Schaefer at the hotel says it is his opinion Mike made the same mistake that several people did. The officers of the Pet Dog society elected were as follows:

President—A. E. Dutton.
Vice President—Mrs. C. A. White.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. A. H. King.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. D. E. Gardner.
Treasurer—Fred Gilbert.
Board of Directors—Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Mrs. W. C. Thoomb, Mrs. George Whitney, Mrs. E. P. Bailey, and Mrs. C. A. White.

The Unqualified Success

as evidenced by the customs statistics of G. H. Mumm's Extra Dry—119,441 cases imported in 1900, or 79,293 more than any other brand—must be placed to the credit of its unsurpassed quality always to be relied upon.

"THE DIGGER," DESIGNED FOR CANAL BRIDGE.

"The Digger," a heroic figure in plaster by Charles J. Mulligan, is exhibited among the works of Chicago artists at the display which was opened at the Art Institute last night. It is the first of four plaster figures to be designed by Mr. Mulligan for a group representing "Labor."

When completed the group will decorate the finest of the bridges across the drainage canal, wherever that structure may be. The first of the figures will be the man with the shovel.

The figure is bold and striking amoung the surroundings, the walls being hung with the paintings of Chicago artists.

The reception at the Art Institute, with which the exhibits of Chicago artists, the Art Students' league and William de Leftwich Dodge were opened last night, was attended by a large number of persons, who found much to admire in the pictures that will occupy the south corridor for the next month. The awards to the Art Students' league were as follows:

Oil—First prize: "Grays," Julius B. Olsson, 19 Rue Daguerre, Paris. Honorable mention: "Road in the Woods," Allen Erskine Philbrick.

Water-color—First prize: "The Jars," Julius B. Olsson. Honorable mention: "Sketch in Illinois," Mrs. Flora I. Schoenfeld, 4006 Grand boulevard.

Pencil—First prize: "Portrait Sketch," Belle Silveira, 4341 Prairie avenue. Honorable mention: "The Skipper," Loring Gary Calkins, 1434 Sheridan road.

The Young Fortnight club prize was awarded to Pauline A. Dohn for an oil, entitled "Preparing the Fête."

AN ENGLISH WOMAN'S LOVE LETTERS.

LETTER LXXII.

Here in my pain, beloved, I remember keenly now the one or two occasions when as a small child I was consciously a cause of pain to others. What an irony of life that once of the two times when I remember to have been cruel, it was to Arthur, with his small, astonished baby face remaining a reproach to me ever after. I was hardly 5 then, and going up to the nursery from downstairs had my supper-cake in my hand, only a few mouthfuls left. He had been having his bath, and was sitting up on Nan-nan's knee being got into his bedclothes; when, spying me with my cake, he piped to have a share of it. I daresay it would not have been good for him, but of that I thought nothing at all; the cruel impulse took me to make one mouthful of all that was left. He watched it go without crying; but his eyes opened at me in a strange way, wondering at this sudden lesson of the hardness of a human heart. "All gone!" was what he said, turning his head from me up to Nan-nan, to see perhaps if she, too, had a like surprise for his wee intelligence. I think I have never forgiven myself that, though Arthur has no memory of it left in him; the judging remembrance of it would, I believe, win forgiveness to him for any wrong he might now do me, if that and not the contrary were his way with me; so unreasonably is my brain scarred where the thought of it still lies. God may forgive us our trespasses by marvelous slow ways; but we cannot always forgive them ourselves.

The other thing came out of a less personal greed, and was years later; Arthur and I were collecting eggs, and in the loft over one of the outhouses there was a swallow's nest too high up to be reached by any ladder we could get up there. I was intent on getting the eggs, and thought of no other thing that might chance; so I spread a soft fall below, and with a long pole broke the floor of the nest. Then with a sudden stir of horror I saw soft things falling along with the clay, tiny and feathery. Two were killed by the breakage that fell with them, but one was quite alive and unhurt. I gathered up the remnants of the nest and set it with the young one in it by the loft window where the parent birds might see, making clumsy strivings of pity to quiet my conscience. The parent birds did see, soon enough; they returned, first up to the rafters, then darting round and round and crying; then to where their little one lay helpless and exposed, hung over it with a nibbling movement of their beaks for a moment, making my miserable heart bound up with hope; then away, away, shrieking into the July sunshine. Once they came back, and shrieked at the horror of it all, and fled away not to return.

I remained for hours and did whatever silly pity could dictate; but of course the young one died; and I—cleared away all remains that nobody might see. And that I gave up egg-collecting after that was no penance, but choice. Since then the poignancy of my regret when I think of it has never softened. The question which pride of life and love of make-believe till then had not raised in me, "Am I a god to kill and to make alive?" was answered all at once by an emphatic "no," which I never afterwards forgot. But the grief remained all the same, that life, to teach me that blunt truth, should have had to make sacrifice in the mote-hung loft of three frail lives on a clay altar, and bring to nothing but pain and a last miserable dart away into the bright sunshine the spring work of two swift-winged intelligences. Is man, we are told to think, not worth many sparrows? O, beloved, sometimes I doubt it, and would in thought give my life that those swallows in their generations might live again.

Beloved, I am letting what I have tried to tell you of my childhood end in a sad way. For it is no use, no use; I have not today a glimmer of hope left that your eyes will ever rest on what I have been at such deep trouble to write.

If I were being punished for these two childish things I did, I should see a side of justice in it all. But it is for loving you I am being punished; and not God himself shall make me let you go! Beloved, beloved, all my days are at your feet, and among them days when you held me to your heart. Good-night; good-night always now!

LETTER LXXIII.

Dearest: I could never have made any appeal from you to anybody; all my appeal has been to you alone. I have wished to hear reason from no other lips but yours; and had you but really and deeply confided in me, I believe I could have submitted almost with a light heart to what you thought best; though in no way and by no stretch of the imagination can I see you coming to me for the last time and saying, as you only wrote, that it was best we should never see each other again.

You could not have said that with any sound of truth; and how can it look truer frozen into writing? I have kissed the words, because you wrote them; not believing them. It is a suspense of unbelief that you have left me in. O, still dearest! Yet never was sad heart truer to the fountain of all its joy than mine to yours. You had only to see me to know that.

Some day, I dream, we shall come suddenly together, and you will see, before a word, before I have time to gather my mind back to the bodily comfort of your presence, a face filled with thoughts of you that have never left it, and never been bitter—I believe never once bitter. For even when I think, and convince myself that you have wronged yourself—and so, me also—even then; O, then most of all, my heart seems to break with tenderness, and my spirit grow more famished than ever for the want of you. For if you have done right, wisely, then you have no longer any need of me; but if you have done wrong, then you must need me. O, dear heart, let that need overwhelm you like a sea, and bring you towards me on its strong tide! And come when you will I shall be waiting.

LETTER LXXIV.

Dearest and Dearest: So long as you are still this to my heart I trust to have strength to write it; though it is but a ghost of old happiness that comes to me in the act. I have no hope now left in me; but I love you not less, only more, if that be possible; or is it the same love with just a weaker body to contain it all? I find that to have definitely laid off all hope gives me a certain relief; for now that I am so hopeless it becomes less hard not to misjudge you—not to say and think impatiently about you things which would explain why I had to die like this.

Dearest, nothing but love shall explain anything of you to me. When I think of your dear face, it is only love that can give it its meaning. If love would teach me the meaning of this silence, I would accept all the rest, and not ask for any joy in life besides. For if I had the meaning, however dark, it would be by love speaking to me again at last; and I should have your hand holding mine in the darkness forever.

Your face, beloved, I can remember so well that it would be enough if I had your hand—the meaning, just the meaning, why I have to sit blind.

LETTER LXXV.

Dearest: There is always one possibility which I try to remember in all I write—even where there is no hope a thing remains possible—that your eye may some day come to rest upon what I leave here. And I would have nothing so dark as to make it seem that I were better dead than to have come to such a pass through loving you. If I felt that, dearest, I should not be writing my heart out to you, as I do; when I cease doing that I shall, indeed, have become dead and not want you any more, I suppose. How far I am from dying, then, now!

So be quite sure that if now, even now—for today of all days has seemed most dark—if now I were given my choice—to have known you or not to have known you—beloved, a thousand times I would claim to keep what I have, rather than have it taken away from me. I cannot forget that for a few months I was the happiest woman I ever knew; and that happiness is perhaps only by present conditions removed from me. If I have a soul, I believe good will come back to it; because I have done nothing to deserve this darkness unless by loving you; and if by loving you, I am glad that the darkness came.

Beloved, you have the yes and no to all this; I have not, and cannot have. Something that you have not chosen for me to know, you know; it should be a burden on your conscience, surely, not to have shared it with me. Maybe there is something I know that you do not. In the way of sorrow, I think and wish—yes. In the way of love, I wish to think—no.

Any more thinking wearies me. Perhaps we have loved too much, and have lost our way out of our poor five senses, without having strength to take over the new world which is waiting beyond them. Well, I would rather, beloved, suffer through loving too much, than through loving too little. It is a good fault as faults go. And it is my fault, beloved; so some day you may have to be tender to it.

THEFT OF NOTES IN 1897 TIES UP A WOMAN'S MONEY.

Miss Elsie Nemett Advertises for Securities Stolen from Monadnock Office—May Require a $2,000 Bond.

Notes and trust deeds stolen over three years ago from a private vault in the Monadnock Building and which never have been recovered, have held up an investment of $1,000 and may tie up for eight years more another $2,000. The papers are the property of Mrs. L. Nemett, 50 Wisconsin street. They were kept by her daughter, Miss Elsie Nemett, a stenographer, who kept them in a vault in her office, room 457. With them the thief secured $120.

In THE TRIBUNE yesterday was the following advertisement:

> LOST—$50 REWARD FOR RETURN OF PAPERS which disappeared from vault of Room 457, Monadnock Block, Sept. 21, 1897. No questions asked. Address L 534, Tribune office.

At the time of the theft Miss Nemett, who is now secretary to Federal Judge Jenkins, had negotiated a loan of $1,000 for her mother, taking as security two notes of $500 each, made out by John Grant Pease, a railroad clerk. The notes were secured by trust deeds on some real estate. They were due in January, 1899. On the morning of the robbery Miss Nemett left the office for an hour. When she returned the money and notes were gone. When the notes fell due two years ago the maker did not deny his debt, but wanted a bond, which, according to law, must be twice the amount involved, filed to protect him against loss. The bond would remain in force until ten years from the maturity of the notes and Mrs. Nemett did not care to tie up such a sum for that length of time.

Marquise de Fonfenoy Letter.

Copyright, 1901, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.

IT IS today that commence the obsequies of Queen Victoria, which, in point of pageantry, will surpass anything of the kind that has been seen within the memory of man. True, the state funerals of Kings George IV. and William IV. were grand affairs, but they were attended by no crowned heads, and so little were the royal dead mourned that there was no pretense made of grief, the most unseemly laughing and talking being, according to the memoirs of Charles Greville, carried on throughout the ceremonies.

For Queen Victoria, on the contrary, the grief is sincere, and, contrary to all precedent, it is the new King himself who will act as chief mourner, supported by the German Emperor and several other crowned heads.

The conveyance of the dead Queen this afternoon through a twelve-mile long avenue of the most magnificent British and foreign warships in the world will be something as unprecedented as it is unique, though singularly appropriate in the case of the funeral of the sovereign of the greatest maritime power in the world. And then tomorrow the journey of the remains from Portsmouth to London, the solemn procession of the corpse through London, along a route which, by reason of its length and the pace at which the cortége moves, will occupy at least three or four hours, winding up with the railway journey to Windsor and the funeral service in that superb church known as St. George's Chapel, will constitute obsequies of unrivaled grandeur, but frightfully exhausting to those called upon to take any leading part in the affair.

The funerals of old world sovereigns have an unenviable celebrity for proving fatal to those who are compelled to attend them. It is to be feared that the funeral of Queen Victoria will be followed in many instances by analogous consequences by reason of the fatigue, excitement, the absence of suitable refreshment, and, possibly, the condition of the weather.

I understand that the cortége, after leaving Piccadilly and entering Hyde Park in London, will pass along the magnificent, broad ride, famous throughout the civilised world as Rotten Row, a corruption of the French phrase "Route du Roi" (the road of the King). As I mentioned the other day in these letters, no one but the sovereign and the Duke of St. Albans is allowed to drive along this ride, which, save for these two exceptions, is restricted exclusively to equestrians. As long as Queen Victoria was alive the Prince of Wales could not dream of driving along Rotton Row, and even now that he himself as sovereign has acquired the privilege, his Queen is unable to share it unless she happens to be accompanying him. The Duke of St. Albans owes his share in the privilege to a warrant granted by King Charles II. to his famous ancestress, Nell Gwynne. Whenever Queen Victoria was in London she invariably made a point at least once or twice during her stay of driving along Rotten Row, and it is fitting that her remains should pass along the same so exclusively royal route.

The scene in St. George's Chapel will be one of much grandeur, and it will probably be the first occasion when the stalls of the Knights of the Garter will be occupied by a number of members of the order who are of sovereign rank, the banner of each knight hanging above his stall.

One of the strangest features of the ceremony in St. George's Chapel will be the appearance of the officers of the Coldstream, or Grenadier, Guards, who will be in command of the party of bearers, consisting of non-commissioned officers of their regiment. The officers in question will immediately precede the coffin and will be compelled to march backwards up the entire length of the vast church, thus keeping their faces to the royal remains. They will remain at the foot of the coffin throughout the entire service with their swords drawn and with their huge bearskins on their heads, being the only men present whose heads will not be bared.

When King Edward returned to Osborne from London the other day, after being proclaimed King, the keys of Portsmouth were presented to him upon a crimson cushion by General Sir Baker Russell, the Lieutenant Governor of that great maritime stronghold and chief naval arsenal. The King just touched the keys, and, after his departure to Osborne, the keys were returned to their case. This ceremony will be observed henceforth each time that the King passes through Portsmouth, and constitutes an interesting survival of feudal times which has escaped the obliterating finger of our utilitarian age. Among other things signified by this production of the keys for the sovereign's inspection is the return by the Lieutenant Governor of his authority into the royal hands during such time as the monarch remains in the place.

The keys themselves are something more than a mere symbol. It is still possible to shut off the one and only road which gives entry to Portsmouth by locking across it the big gates in Hilsea lines. The military and naval authorities will not permit any other road connecting Portsmouth with the outer world to be made, and the road that does exist and which alone connects Portsmouth landward can be closed at a moment's notice. Portsmouth is believed to be the only big town in England that can thus be locked in by a single turn of the keys on the part of the military authorities of the place.

For some strange reason the keys are confided to the care, not of the Governor, who is commanding Admiral of the port, but to the Lieutenant Governor, who is the senior military officer and invariably a Lieutenant General. It is difficult to account for this apparent slight placed upon the naval service by confiding the keys to a military subordinate rather than to his naval superior, and the only way in which the matter can be accounted for is that the crown has from time immemorial manifested a pronounced preference for the army.

Lord Drogheda, who is now in this country, is, as his name implies, an Irish peer and one of the representatives of the Emerald Isle in the House of Lords. He succeeded about eight years ago to the Earldom of his cousin, though not to the latter's Marquisate, which became extinct. The relationship was a remote one, as the present Lord had to go back to the middle of the eighteenth century in order to establish his connection with the senior branch of the House of Moore, which became extinct with the last Marquis. The Moores are of Kentish origin and have been in Ireland since the reign of Queen Elizabeth, established in County Kildare, and their country seat, Moore Abbey, has been in the possession of the family ever since the reign of the Virgin Queen.

WEIGHTS IN THE BIG HANDICAPS.

Kinley Mack Assigned Post of Honor for Next Brooklyn and Suburban.

IS ASKED TO CARRY 128.

Sidney Lucas Gets in at 110 and Beau Gallant Leads Three-Year Olds.

RESULTS ON WINTER TRACKS

Weights for the Brooklyn and Suburban Handicaps, the two great races of the spring meetings at the Brooklyn and Coney Island tracks respectively, were announced yesterday. In both events the top weight is assigned, quite naturally, to Kinley Mack, the horse which won both of the events last year, it being the first time in the history of the two handicaps that both were captured by the same horse. Ethelbert comes next in honor, followed by Prince of Melbourne, in the Suburban only, as the Realization winner is not in the Brooklyn. Then comes Banastar, the Brooklyn winner of two years ago, followed by High Order. The latter was a high class 2-year-old that ran on the Eastern tracks and won some races. He then either went lame or broke down and was turned out for a year. Mesmerist, in the Suburban only, is awarded 117 pounds, making it apparent that Mr. Vosburgh is overlooking the Featherstone colt's 4-year-old form.

Chicagoans will be interested in the career of Sidney Lucas, the American Derby winner. Those who remember the way in which he gave weight to everything at Washington Park last summer will feel sure he stands more than a good chance in the big handicaps with only 110 pounds, provided he recovers the form he displayed in this city. At the same time, Sidney Lucas' races in the East after he left here do not justify the handicapper in putting more than that on his back.

There is a bunch of American Derby entries of the present season in the handicap lists—Beau Gallant, Bonnibert, Bellario, Blues, Conroy, and Robert Waddell. Mr. Vosburgh thinks Beau Gallant is the best of the bunch and has assessed the Croker youngster with 104 pounds, which is a bigger honor than the Tammany chieftain probably cares about.

The weights assigned in the two big handicaps are as follows:

O'CONNOR THE STAR AT TANFORAN.

Outrides Mounce in Two Close Finishes—Astor Is Defeated.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The recent sequence of winning favorites at Tanforan was broken today and only two favorites got the big end of the purses. O'Connor was the only one of the star riders to pilot more than one winner. In the opening race Turner gave Alzura a gilt-edge ride and won by three lengths. Tom Ryan bet well on the winner and got an average of 8 to 1 for his commission. Montanic, favorite in the second race, faded away to nothing on the run in. Favonius, under a strong ride from Henry, had a length and a half to give away when they crossed the wire. Handicapper encouraged the favorite players in the third, but he would not have won had not O'Connor made Mounce look cheap at the finish. The talent got a hard fall in the fifth race. Scotch Plaid and Astor attracted nearly the whole play. The betting foretold the race Astor would run. The public stuck to him while his price lengthened from 5 to 2 to 18 to 5. Burns tried to cut out a pace that would have stopped Salvator, and pumped him out in the first part of it. When run off his feet, Castake, well ridden by Dominick, came on and won without much trouble. O'Connor again put it on Mounce in the last race. After getting away badly with Good Hope O'Connor finally got through, and putting up a grand finish discounted Mounce's ride on Torsina at the end. Dwyer's starting was good.

HANDICAP FOR HOOD'S BRIGADE.

Arthur's Horse Wins the Chief Event—Other New Orleans Races.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The feature of the card this afternoon was a handicap at a mile and seventy yards. General Mart Gary has come to be considered a chronic favorite. He was the choice in this, and he was beaten again. Two horses finished in front of him, Hood's Brigade and Lady Callahan. Hood's Brigade has had hard luck in his last two starts, principally because he is a slow beginner, and, although he dropped back to last place in the first sixteenth today, Cochran took him to the outside, where there was no chance of getting into pockets, and, by hard riding, got him into the lead in the last sixteenth and won in a drive by a length. Lady Callahan beat General Mart Gary by the same margin for the place.

The mile and three-eighths, which was second in interest to the handicap, had five starters, and was won by Gray Forge, a 5 to 1 chance. Pat Garrett, the favorite, was the victim of a bad ride by Dale, and finished third. He was in a pocket all down the stretch, and might have won with clear sailing.

CONTINUATION OF THE DALY SALE.

Pastorella Brings $10,000 — Whitney Makes More Purchases.

New York, Jan. 31.—The auction of the horses belonging to the Bitter Root farm owned by the late Marcus Daly was resumed this afternoon in Madison Square Garden. Spectators were few. J. B. Haggin of California and W. C. Whitney were active bidders.

The auction opened with the sale of Homeopathy to W. C. Whitney for $4,000. Sidney Paget did the bidding.

Pastorella was sold to W. I. Powers, as agent, for $10,000, the highest price of the afternoon. Pastorella is an imported chestnut mare. She won the Zetland Stakes at York and other races.

The only important purchaser by a foreigner under his own name during the afternoon was that of Sistrum for $4,000. Lord Clonmel of Ireland was the purchaser.

The imported chestnut mare Isis was bought in by W. C. Whitney for $8,500. J. B. Haggin bought the imported mares Isiac and Mrs. Delaney for $8,000 and $8,200 respectively.

Jockey Tully Still Unconscious.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The surgeons at the Charity Hospital have small hopes for the recovery of Jockey Tully, who suffered concussion of the brain in a fall on Eous yesterday. The boy has not yet regained consciousness and there is little chance for him.

BEATEN BY THE CHICAGO GOLFER.

Charles B. Cory of Boston Loses to J. H. Mathews of Midlothian Club.

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Charles B. Cory of the Oakley club, Boston, made the lowest score, 74, in the qualifying round this morning for the President's cup tournament. For leading the field he received a medal. There were thirty-seven entries. In the afternoon match play Mr. Cory was rather surprisingly defeated by G. H. Mathews of the Midlothian club, Chicago, two up and one to go. The players for the President's cup tomorrow will be Mathews, Black, Carpenter, Dutton, Tappin, Drummond, Livingston, Mulliken, Emmett, Phelps, Barnard, Madock, McCawley, Johnson, Rumsey, and Forrest.

New York, Jan. 31.—Dr. A. L. Ranney of the Billiard committee of the Amateur Athletic union today announced the entries in the tournament for the class A amateur championship of America at fourteen-inch balk line, which begins at the Knickerbocker Athletic club on Feb. 5. The contestants will be Charles Threshie, Boston; C. F. Conklin, Chicago; P. B. C. McKee, Philadelphia; and Dr. L. L. Mial and John A. Hendrick of the Knickerbocker Athletic club of this city.

Want College Games in Buffalo.

Dr. Hollister of Northwestern and Coach Huff of Illinois are formulating a scheme to take their baseball teams on an Eastern trip next summer. It is intended to write to the management of the Pan-American congress in Buffalo and propose a series of baseball games between two of the leading universities in the East and West.

POSTER FOR FOREST, FISH, AND GAME SHOW.

FIRST ANNUAL EXPOSITION
INTERNATIONAL FOREST, FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION
COLISEUM — CHICAGO,
FEBRUARY 27 TO MARCH 12.

Posters are out announcing the first annual exposition of the Forest, Fish, and Game association, which will begin in the Coliseum on Feb. 27 and continue until March 12. All kinds of live game will be shown, and great aquariums will contain fish from all the waters of North America, while a complete forestry collection has been allotted space. In addition, many of the railroads have arranged for individual exhibits. Preparations for the exposition have been under way for months and now are practically completed. James H. Eckels is President of the association.

As an incident, a live prairie chicken, a live 'possum, and a live fox were stored away amid a pile of baggage in the baggage-room of the Auditorium Annex last night. They came in the afternoon, and are intended for exhibition at the Coliseum show. The fowl and animals were consigned to Richard Follett, general manager of the show, and are declared to be fine specimens.

The chicken, fox, and 'possum are the second lot to be received, a consignment of wild ducks having reached Chicago a few days ago.

JEFF LIFTS THE WAGON.

COMES TO THE RESCUE OF A FARMER WHOSE RIG IS MIRED.

Champion Spends an Interesting Morning on the Road—Returns to Camp Carrying His Bicycle Companion Under One Arm and Wheel Under the Other—Injunction Proceedings Are Waiting on Attorney General Sheets—Martin Arrested.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Jeffries broke into the Sandow stakes today. He started out on the road this morning as usual for a spin of several miles, paced by a bicycle, but the snow and bad roads proved too much for the bike, and Jeffries returned to the training quarters carrying the bicycle under one arm and the rider under the other—at least, he performed the last hundred yards of the journey in this manner.

During his short trip he came across a farmer whose wagon had broken through the crust of frozen ground and sank in the mud, where it remained, despite the efforts of the horny-handed son of toil. Jeffries, seeing his predicament, put his shoulder to the wheel, gave a good, strong pull, and with the assistance of the horses brought the wagon out of the mud.

The monotony of Camp Jeffries was enlivened throughout the day by the arrival and departure of various peddlers who had liniment for sale, Jeff's recent sore knee serving as an excuse for pressing the merits of their various concoctions upon him, but Jeff would have none of it, and politely but quietly and firmly dismissed each vendor, until towards evening, when a man having cough sirup for sale made a call. Then Jeff lost his temper, and the "medicine man" beat a hasty retreat.

Denver Ed Martin was arrested this afternoon on the same charge as that which Jeffries and Ruhlin have to answer—namely: training for a prizefight. He will appear on Monday. The action against Jeffries and Ruhlin, alleging they are training for a prizefight, has been continued till Monday by Squire Roebling. Judge Moses Wilson, for them, consented to this today at the request of the County Prosecutor.

Gus Ruhlin is turning out his corkscrew punches in secret, and boring into the black body of Denver Ed Martin, who is counting on sending Frank Childs into the little buck town of the Land of Nod.

Ruhlin figured in an exciting episode just before dusk last evening. A runaway horse hitched to a buggy circled around the training-house a few times, and was finally brought up in the traces near Edgemont, at the foot of the hill, where he was stopped by Ruhlin, who, in an earlier attempt, had been knocked down. The pugilist escaped injury, but the buggy was wrecked.

The injunction proceedings are waiting on Attorney General Sheets. As soon as that official reaches Cincinnati the local attorneys who are pushing the case will appear with him before Judge Hollister and will ask for a temporary injunction.

There is some talk that the fight promoters, in case a temporary injunction is issued by Judge Hollister, may appeal from his decision, give whatever bond is required to lift the injunction, and proceed with the fight pending the appeal. Then, in case the injunction is sustained in the upper courts, they will fight in the courts for as small a verdict as possible against the bondsmen, claiming, no matter what the size of the bond, the damage to the State as a result of the prizefight will have been comparatively small.

BUDDY RYAN AND MOWATT MATCHED

Will Meet at Springfield on Feb. 13.—Other Pugilistic Gossip.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

"Buddy" Ryan and Young Mowatt were matched yesterday to box twenty rounds at 126 pounds at Springfield, Ill., on Feb. 13. This was the date set for Oscar Gardner and Mowatt, but Oscar requested to be excused. The match is undoubtedly the best Johnnie Connors, manager of the Springfield club, could have made, as the boys are pretty evenly matched, besides which they have a strong local following and will therefore be a good drawing card from this part of the State. Neither of the boys has been asked to go twenty rounds before, so they will be compelled to fight along careful lines when they meet. Paddy Carroll signed for Mowatt and Tom Hanton for Ryan.

Hanton returned from Pittsburg yesterday, where he had been to look after Eddy Santry's interest in his fight with Jack McClelland. In speaking of the contest Hanton said: "Eddy had all the better of the milling during the first two rounds, but a terrific body blow delivered in the third round weakened him and turned the tide of battle in favor of McClelland. By a fusillade of body and head punches he won out in the fourth."

M. M. Moore of the Appleton club may experience some difficulty in arranging his next athletic entertainment, which he contemplates giving on Feb. 20. He would like to secure Martin Duffy, who won so handily over Perry Queenan at his last show, and had in mind Ed Johnson as Duffy's opponent. Johnson notified Paddy Carroll yesterday to secure the match, but as the Duffy party is holding out for a larger purse than was offered by Moore the affair may not materialize.

PRIZE FIGHT BILL IN INDIANA.

Report That Chicago Sporting Men Are Behind Movement for a New Law.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—A number of the Roby Athletic association emissaries are loafing about the legislative halls ready to introduce a bill to allow greater license in Indiana in respect to prizefights. The members of the Legislature have been consulted on various points, and modifications consequently made in the bill, which thus far has been kept under cover. It was about to be introduced yesterday, but a prize-fight given in this city, in the armory of one of the State militia companies, stirred up so much feeling that the Roby fight promoters discreetly refrained from presenting their measure. The promoters say they will have no trouble in getting their bill through the Senate, although they anticipate opposition in the House. Representative Cotner has been asked to introduce the bill. If it should pass the Chicago sports propose to open a new arena at Hammond. The bill permits fistic exhibitions before regularly incorporated athletic clubs that have a gymnasium in their clubhouses.

"ANTIS" ARE AT WORK IN NEVADA.

Bill Introduced Repealing the Present Law Legalizing Prize Fights.

Carson, Nev., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Senator Flannigan of Washoe County introduced a bill in the Senate today to repeal the law allowing glove contests in this State. This bill also calls for the repeal of the law under which Corbett and Fitzsimmons fought in this city for the championship of the world. Parties are here already on the ground fighting the passage of such act, and if it does pass it is said Governor Sadler will veto it.

Tommy Ryan Knocks Out Judge.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 31.—Tommy Ryan tonight knocked out Martin Judge in the fourth round.

It was an easy victory for Ryan. In the first two rounds he had matters his own way, but accomplished nothing effective. In the third he swung on Judge's neck and sent the Philadelphia man to his knees. Later Judge went to the floor from a left and then a left and right to the jaw put him down again.

Judge came up groggy in the fourth and Ryan went at him hard, a right hook to the jaw sending him to the floor. He arose, and, after a few more blows, another right hook sent him down for the count.

Leon and Munroe Draw.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 31.—A twenty-round draw was fought tonight between Casper Leon and George Munroe. Munroe was the aggressor, but Leon inflicted considerable punishment. Referee Thomas Sharkey repeatedly warned Munroe against foul fighting. Both men were strong at the close of the twentieth round.

BALL PLAYERS TO PLAY FOOTBALL.

Novel Scheme Is Proposed by C. W. Daniels of St. Louis.

Association football played by professional baseball players is the latest scheme of a St. Louis promoter. C. W. Daniels of that city was in Chicago yesterday and submitted his plans to Clarke Griffith and Charles Comiskey. The former thinks well of them and has promised to submit them to the delegates of the Players' National Protective association when they meet at Cleveland tomorrow. Any plan which will afford income to the baseball players through the winter will assuredly be welcome to the majority of them, and the proposition made by Daniels has this end in view.

In brief, it is the formation of a football league composed of the bigger cities of the country, the players to be made up of baseball players. While the promoters realize it will take some time to perfect such a league and also that it has a number of obstacles, yet they intend to give the plan a trial in a small way.

Should it prove successful it is the intention of the promoters to gradually extend the league to other cities.

WILL ENFORCE RESERVE CLAUSE.

Soden Thinks the "Slave" Section in Baseball Contracts Will Hold.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—President A. H. Soden of the local National league club says regarding Duffy's signing a Milwaukee contract and apparently bolting the National league: "Mr. Duffy has not broken his contract with us, for the reason that his services are not required by Boston until April 15. In due season we shall notify our players to be ready for duty on that date, and if Mr. Duffy is then playing in Milwaukee or elsewhere he will be considered as having broken his contract with us, and legal proceedings will be a possibility. I cannot say we shall bring action against him until then, until it is manifest he has broken his contract. We cannot prevent him from affixing his signature to as many documents as he likes. This is his privilege, and I will not say that he has deserted us until I have official knowledge to that effect."

LANGE MAY PLAY BALL ONCE MORE.

Offered a Good Salary to Captain the San Francisco Team.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—If Bill Lange can secure consent of his wife he will be seen next season on first base in the uniform of the San Francisco team.

This is no idle rumor, for Lange himself has said it. Manager Harris wants Lange to captain his team and play first base, and Lange has his proposition under consideration. Lange said today: "Harris has made me a fine offer and I am to give him an answer in a week. The offer is tempting, and I have made up my mind that if I return to baseball at all I will accept it."

Manager Harris said tonight that he thought his proposition would bring the ex-Chicagoan back into the game. "Lange has been offered a salary of $2,500 to don a uniform four times a week," he said, "and this would in no way interfere with his real estate and insurance business. If his relatives do not object to his reappearance on the diamond I feel sure he will accept."

BUFFALO ENTERS EASTERN LEAGUE.

Takes the Place of Springfield — Pat Powers the President.

New York, Jan. 31.—The Springfield (Mass.) baseball club has been dropped from the Eastern league and the Buffalo club has been made a member in its stead. This action was taken at a meeting of the Eastern league, held in this city today. It was also decided that the season would open on Thursday, April 21, the schedule to be made out by President Powers and submitted to the league at its March meeting. President Powers has declined the offer of the Presidency of the American association and will remain with the Eastern league.

Garvin Held to the Grand Jury.

Virgil Garvin, baseball pitcher, was held to the Criminal Court in bonds of $300 yesterday by Justice Bradwell, before whom he had been arraigned on two charges of assault on Player Daley. When the men confronted each other in the justice court Garvin towered above his alleged victim by over a foot. After hearing the evidence Justice Bradwell dismissed the charge of assault with intent to kill, but on the charge of assault with a deadly weapon he held Garvin to the grand jury.

FRESHMAN BLISS BREAKS RECORD.

Stagg Finds a New Star for His Track Team—Work of Moloney.

E. B. Bliss, a freshman at the University of Chicago, broke the indoor track record for the mile run yesterday, making the distance in 4:47 3-5. The former record was 4:48 2-5, and was held by B. B. Smith. Coach Stagg was vastly pleased with the performance of the youngster, and warmly congratulated him on his fine achievement.

Bliss came to the university from the Calumet High School last fall. He is small and slight, but shows splendid form in running, while his wind and endurance are apparently unlimited.

W. A. Moloney is cutting down the seconds every day in the sprints. Yesterday he did one lap on the indoor track in :15 3-5, equaling Claude Smith's record for the distance. Moloney has been noted as a middle distance runner in previous seasons, but he now aspires to win honors as a sprinter, and is probably the fastest man in the university in this line.

DRAW UP RULES FOR TRACK MEET.

Meeting of the Graduate Committee of the Colleges.

The Graduate Executive committee of the Western Track and Field association met at the Union Restaurant last night and drew up a constitution and bylaws to govern the annual athletic meet to be held by the nine colleges composing the association. The constitution will be sent to the members of the conference for approval. Until then its specific provisions will be withheld by the committee. It is believed, however, provision has been made for the admission of other colleges to the conference, as most of the members of the committee are known to be in favor of such action. The following delegates were present: H. M. Bates, Michigan; J. E. Pfeffer, Illinois; H. K. Clark, Wisconsin; A. M. Belfield, Purdue; E. P. Bicknell, Indiana; A. D. Mayo, Minnesota; R. C. Butler, Iowa; Scott Brown, Chicago; A. H. Culver, Northwestern.

Evanston Beats North Division.

In the most even basketball match of the high school season Evanston defeated North Division by a score of 10 to 8. Four men made all the baskets—Baker and Stults for Evanston and Johnson and Engstrom for North Division.

BIG COCKING MAIN AT KENOSHA.

Chicago and Milwaukee Sports Win—Warrants for the Participants.

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Cock fighting was given a revival in this city last night and this morning in a hall within half a mile of the police office. Chicago, Milwaukee, and Kenosha sports pulled off a main the like of which has not been seen in this part of the State in many years. Fully 300 people were gathered around the pits. Fifty birds were entered, and every fight was to the finish. It is reported the Chicago and Milwaukee contingents carried away large sums of money. Early this morning the District Attorney began an investigation of the matter, and it is stated warrants will be issued tomorrow for the arrests of 100 of the Kenosha men who took part in the affair. The names of many well known sporting men have been given to the District Attorney, and he declares all will be arrested. Among those slated for arrest are several city officials.

SOUTH SIDE "L" ANNUAL.

INCREASE IN DIVIDEND TO 4 PER CENT LIKELY SOON.

Net Earnings for 1900 Are $538,235, a Gain of $37,787 Over 1899—Substantially 5 Per Cent on the Stock—President Leslie Carter's Statement—Bondholders' Committee of Northern Connecting Road Will Foreclose and Take Possession.

In response to the question of a stockholder regarding dividends at the annual meeting of the South Side Elevated road yesterday President Leslie Carter said that the desire of the directors plainly is to increase the rate to 4 per cent at an early day if business continues good. Net earnings for the year 1900 amounted to $538,235, as shown by the statement submitted. This compares with $500,448 for 1899, and is a gain of $37,787. After providing for the bond interest the profits were substantially equal to 5 per cent. Gross earnings amounted to $1,286,638, as against $1,170,380 for the preceding year, or an increase of $116,258. Speaking of the dividend, in answer to a query, Mr. Carter said:

"The Board of Directors will not act on the question of the quarterly dividend until the meeting to be held on Feb. 28, until which time it will not be possible to tell accurately what will be done. There have been informal discussions in the board on the question of increasing the rate to 4 per cent per annum. The desire of the directors is plainly to increase the rate at an early day, providing the business continues as good as in 1900.

"As you know from the annual reports all repairs are scrupulously charged to operating expenses. Such net earnings as have not been divided to the stockholders have gone, not into repairs, but into entirely new and additional equipment, new machinery, and new cars, to add directly to the earning capacity. No further additions of this character are now in sight. With a little more patience you will surely find the dividends increased.

"The directors appreciate the confidence which has been placed in them by the stockholders and the support that has been accorded them in using the earnings to develop the business without increasing the bonded obligations of the company, and they believe that the results are and will be satisfactory to the stockholders. Those who have watched the operations of the company the closest have shown their confidence in this policy by adding to their holdings."

President Carter's Address.

In his address to stockholders President Carter said: "The passenger traffic for the year 1900 shows an increase of 10.4 over the traffic for 1899. This is a satisfactory result, when considered in connection with the rapid growth of the preceding years, and with the fact that conditions were unfavorable to increase during the last four months of the year 1900. These conditions were fair weather, the political campaign, and the building troubles. There is reason to expect a fair gain in traffic this year.

"The operation of the road was uneventful and successful. Almost 25,000,000 people were safely carried, without any delays of more than trivial importance. The percentage of cost of operation to receipts varies little from the preceding year. In the operating expenditures, however, have been included a considerable sum of money—$55,000—used in renewing the older cars. A substantial increase in taxes and car licenses also contributed to the enlargement of the operating expenses.

"During the year two large new engines have been put in operation in the power-house, doubling the engine power, which is now 10,000 horse power. Thirty new cars have been purchased, received, and placed in service. The expenditures for improvements and additions are met out of the net income of the property, without any increase of the bonded debt. No further additions of this character seem to be necessary in the immediate future."

Chauncey J. Blair, George E. Adams, and George D. Boulton were reëlected as directors for four years. In all 59,707 shares of stock were represented.

Northern Connecting Road.

The bondholders' committee of the Kansas City and Northern Connecting railroad announces that it will foreclose the mortgage and take possession of the property. The committee, consisting of William M. Ivins, Hermann Kuhn, Herbert C. Wright, and T. L. Chadbourne Jr., says in a circular to bondholders that it has been endeavoring to bring about some agreement with the Missouri Railway Construction company, with which the Omaha interests are identified, and the bondholders of the properties with which the Kansas road is allied. From the Missouri Railway Construction company the committee was unable to obtain admission of what it deemed a fair value for the bonds, and, owing to the differences existing between that company and the bondholders of the Omaha and St. Louis road, it will foreclose. A decree is expected early this month, and the sale will be set from sixty to ninety days thereafter.

At the conference with the representatives of the Missouri Railway Construction company the committee tendered one-half of all the underwriting necessary to effect the reorganization of the four properties. This the company refused, owing, in the opinion of the committee, to the fact that it was endeavoring to obtain value for its stock at the cost of the first mortgage bondholders of the railroad properties.

New Record in Bank Clearings.

Chicago bank clearings in January were the largest in the history of the clearing-house. This record denotes good business conditions in the city. The total was $619,062,911, as compared with $589,231,063 for the corresponding month of last year, or an increase of $29,831,848.

Hopes of an increased dividend on Union Pacific common were destroyed yesterday when the directors declared the regular 2 per cent semi-annual rate on both the preferred and common. The dividends are payable on April 1.

The Norfolk and Western railway declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent on its preferred stock, payable on Feb. 23.

The Bank of England, contrary to expectation, did not reduce its minimum discount rate yesterday from 5 per cent.

GAINS IN RAILROAD STOCKS.

New York Market Strong, with Advances Shown by Almost Every Security Quoted.

[BY E. W. HARDEN.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—Sharp gains in the quotations for railroad stocks, with substantial advances in a majority of the industrials, marked the course of today's trading in the stock market. The market opened strong, and, while some weakness developed around the noon hour, the loss shown in some of the stocks at that time was regained before the close, and practically every security in the list showed a substantial advance figured on last prices.

The railroad issues were bought in the best volume. The most active stock in the list was Southern Pacific, in which sales reached 188,000 shares, and in which there was a net gain of 2¼ points. Union Pacific, on sales of 88,000 shares, showed a gain of 1¼ points, and Northern Pacific was marked up 1 point on sales of 23,000 shares. The Atchison issues were also strong, the common gaining 2⅛ points on sales of 58,000 and the preferred 1⅛ points on sales of 17,000 shares.

J. P. Morgan has again demonstrated his ability to carry through important railroad deals. There is no doubt that the acquisition of Mobile and Ohio was essentially Mr. Morgan's plan, and Wall street believes that it largely enhances the earning power of Southern railway and at the same time is of distinct benefit to the holders of Mobile and Ohio stock. Some evidence of this was seen in the course of Mobile and Ohio in today's market. There was a net advance of 7¼ points and the closing figures were more than 1 point off from the high price of the day. Southern railway was active, gaining 1¼ points in the common and 1⅜ points in the preferred.

It is notable that all of the recent deals in the way of railroad consolidations have come through Mr. Morgan's office. The fact that he is practically in control of the Northern Pacific and is largely interested in Great Northern is the principal basis for the present belief in the St. Paul deal being carried through.

The buying of the steel stocks was particularly good today, and Chicago was credited with leading this movement. Heavy orders were executed during the day for Chicago account in Steel and Wire and Federal Steel, both of which were marked up, though in the case of Federal Steel the net advance amounted to only ¼ point. Steel and Wire common gained 1⅝ points and the preferred 1¾ points.

Some evidence of the business being done by Steel and Wire is shown in the announcement made late today that the company's big mill at New Castle, Pa., is to be put in operation at once, after having been idle for nine months. The fight against John W. Gates in Steel and Wire is still being carried on, but the impression now prevails that it will prove unavailing. The books are closed for the transfer of stock, but deliveries of stock are made now in most instances with proxies attached.

Even if Mr. Gates' opponents should succeed in getting enough proxies to gain all the directors to be elected at this meeting, Mr. Gates would retain control through the holdover members.

IN THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash and Securities in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The stock market continued largely given over to manipulation by speculative cliques and operations by professionals. There was a constant shifting of activity from one group of stocks to anther, and successive advances developed here and there all day. Prices of the favored issues were inclined to drop back as soon as the manipulation was shifted from them, but the final outburst of activity and strength in the Pacifics and Southwesterns lifted many stocks to near the best again.

The central figure in the day's market was Southern Pacific. The dealings in the stock were on an enormous scale, and the extreme advance was 2⅞. Atchison was pushed vigorously upward an extreme 2¼ through heavy offerings. The announcement of the plan for the absorption of Mobile and Ohio by the Southern railway company caused a jump in the former stock of 8⅞ on comparatively light transactions. Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville rose 6 and the preferred 10 points. There were gains of from 1 to 3 points in the Chicago Great Westerns, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis stocks, the Iowa Centrals, Des Moines and Fort Dodge, St. Joe and Grand Island first preferred, and the Wisconsin Centrals, all of which were caused by the idea that they might be affected as feeders for the Mobile and Ohio.

Today's Subtreasury statement reflects the payments for the gold withdrawn for today's shipments, and makes the net loss by the banks to the government institution for the week thus far $2,950,000. The money market, however, continues so extremely easy that not much attention is paid to the bank statement.

Business in railroad bonds continued large, the Central of Georgia and Southern Pacific issues being prominent. Total sales, par value, $5,225,000.

Close: Money on call steady, at 1¾@2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 3½@4¼ per cent. IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash and Securities at London, Paris, and Berlin.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram says: Business on the Stock Exchange was good today. The tone was much more satisfactory, now since the settlement has been concluded without any fresh outbreaks of the troubles from the West Australian smash. The failure of the bank to reduce the bank rate had no effect whatever. The American department was cheerful at the opening, trading grew more and more brisk, and after a session which was active throughout, closed at the liveliest, with prices at the best.

Money continued to be stiff on the end of the month demand and requirements for settlement. Call loans were made at 4½. The bank lent large sums at 5½. Bills were 4 1-16 on the strength of Paris exchange. The bank declined to make a special offer to New York for gold on the ground that there is such a limited market for eagles they have to be melted down to be sold.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Money was in strong demand today and discounts were slightly easier, owing to favorable foreign exchanges. The Stock Exchange was busy with the conclusions of the settlement. Otherwise business was mostly stagnant and prices irregular, but generally better than might have been expected. The fact that there were no troubles with the settlement is causing confidence. Consols for the new account were firm. Home rails were dull. Among foreigners attention centered in Argentines, which were firm. Americans opened with a slight relapse, but grew firmer, especially Southerns and Southern Pacifics. West Australians were cheerful, owing to the better outlook.

Closing—Consols for money, 96¾; consols for the account, 97 1-16. Atchison, 48⅞; Canadian Pacific, 91½; St. Paul, 154½; Illinois Central, 130, ex. div.; Louisville, 90⅝, ex. div.; Union Pacific pfd, 82½; New York Central, 147¾; Erie, 28¼; Pennsylvania, 74⅝; Reading, 16¼; Erie 1st pfd, 64¼; Northern Pacific pfd, 88⅝; Grand Trunk, 7; Anaconda, 8¼; Rand Mines, 36⅝. Bar silver, steady, 27⅞d per ounce. Money, 4½@5 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 4 1-16@4¼ per cent; do, three months' bills, 4⅛ per cent.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes: Total reserve, increase, £178,000; circulation, increased, £188,000; bullion, increased, £366,182; other securities, increased, £937,000; other deposits, increased, £577,000; public deposits, decreased, £183,000; notes reserve, increased, £173,000; government securities, decreased, £745,000. The proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liability is 44.55 per cent. Last week it was 44.53 per cent. Rate of discount unchanged at 5 per cent.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Prices on the bourse today had a weak tendency, in spite of the settlement money being easy, on the rumor of forced sales of tractions being executed. Sosnovice was again attacked and was agitated most of the day, though Metropolitans rose sharply. Internationals were dull, Turks excepted. The market closed with prices all round slightly firmer.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes: Notes in circulation, increased, 150,575,000 francs; treasury accounts current, decreased, 31,575,000 francs; gold in hand, increased, 8,380,000 francs; bills discounted, increased, 201,675,000 francs; silver in hand, decreased, 2,400,000 francs.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—Home funds were in good demand and animated on the ease of money. Americans were maintained. Locals fluctuated and closed harder.

Condition of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 31.—Today's statement of the Treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $142,367,715; gold, $71,421,421.

In the New York Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The demand for cotton goods of staple character has been almost entirely for quick delivery, little interest shown in forward business in brown bleached or coarse colored varieties. Prints and ginghams unchanged. Print cloths dull at previous prices. Cotton linings quiet and unchanged. No changes in the woolen goods division. Silks quiet and without special feature.

Oil and Oil Certificates.

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 31.—Credit balances, $1.17; certificates, no bids or offers. Runs, 105,831 brls; average, 88,963 brls; shipments, 84,077 brls; average, 95,263 brls.

WHEAT LACKS SUPPORT.

UNDER SHORT SELLING PRICES DECLINE FURTHER.

Liverpool Is Steady, Indifferent to the Previous Break Here, but Continued Heavy Receipts in the Northwest, with Disappointing Cash Demand, Prove Too Much for Holders—Corn Closes Strong as Result of Big Sales for Shipment.

Wheat declines continued yesterday in spite of steadiness at Liverpool. The local trade always professes surprise at the failure of the leading English market to follow the fluctuations in their pit and foreign indifference yesterday was accounted a bull factor, but commission demand was so light at the opening that 76⅛c for May, a split above the previous close, was the utmost advance hopeful bulls could achieve. The market sold off, under pounding by professional traders, to 75½c, but there were enough resting orders in commission hands at that figure to absorb the offerings, and on this buying and moderate covering there was a reaction to 75⅝-¾c at the close, a loss of ⅜c for the day. The main factor against holders was continued heavy receipts. In spite of predictions made with a perseverance and persistence worthy of a better cause, that Northwest receipts were going to fall off permanently, any and all times for several months back, wheat keeps coming to Minneapolis and Duluth in large quantities. There were 362 cars yesterday, compared with 216 cars the preceding Thursday, and 314 a year ago. Primary receipts were also heavy, 502,288 bu, compared with 362,474 bu a year ago. Foreign consumers were apparently much less anxious to buy American wheat than farmers and dealers were to sell it. One exporter had a cable from England that this would be the case for some time, on account of free offerings of Danubian, Australian, and Argentine wheat at lower prices. There were sales of 121,000 bu here, including 80,000 bu hard winter for Galveston shipment, and bids for more for May shipment which were 1c to 1½c out of line. Minneapolis reported sales of 200,000 bu ungraded, and the seaboard reported sales of 328,000 bu. Clearances were light. More mills were running at Minneapolis, 90 per cent, and sales exceeded the week's output of 300,000 bu, but business has been dull since Saturday. The best commission buying was by Irwin-Green, thought by some to be for Armour. Wrenn and Gifford were buyers, and the Phillips selling continued. The Price Current was bearish on crop conditions. Some bullish significance was given to the official estimate of the Spanish crop, fixing it at 88,721,000 bu, compared with an earlier estimate of 118,000,000 bu. The crop of 1899, however, was only 92,000,000 bu. Liverpool futures were steady to ⅛d higher, spot unchanged, and London steady to ¼d higher. Paris came ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower, and Antwerp ⅝c lower.

Corn Rallies on Cash Sales.

Short selling of corn continued yesterday and the May price was beaten down to 38⅝c, but the market held stubbornly there and in the last hour reports of a big cash business, 520,000 bu at a better price, less than 2c under May, caused a rally to 39c, with the close a split lower, unchanged from Wednesday. January closed a split higher, 2c under May. The conspicuous selling was through Geddes, thought to be for Phillips. The provision crowd bought and Patten, the bull leader, helped the rally by bidding for round lots, but took only 50,000 bu. Receipts were 295 cars, none contract, with 345 estimated for today. Primary receipts, while still heavy, begin to show a falling off, compared with those of a year ago, the figures being 774,211 bu and 855,753 bu, respectively. Clearances were small at 245,322 bu. The seaboard reported sales of 360,000 bu. Liverpool quotes spot ¼d lower, futures unchanged.

Provisions were easy in tendency, like grains, helped by heavy receipts of hogs and prices 5c to 10c lower. A line of about 3,000,000 lbs ribs, thought to be Cudahy property, was sold through Harris and other houses. Some of the packers bought stuff. Pork lost 7½-10c, lard 2½-5c, and ribs 5c. Shipments of lard were fair, 1,581,000 lbs, compared with 1,009,000 lbs a year ago. Meat shipments were 1,511,000 lbs, against 1,544,000 lbs last year. The local run of hogs was 37,000, or 5,000 above the estimate, and 25,000 are scheduled for today. The West had 80,100, compared with 56,100 last year.

There was little in oats; a range of only ¼-⅛c and no special pressure on either side. During the bulk of the day the tone was easy on professional selling. Armour and Ware-Leland were more prominent in this than other houses. The close was at a loss of 1-16c, as compared with the day before. The cash market was only moderately active, sales for shipment being limited to 50,000 bu. The seaboard reported clearances of 70,000 bu.

Rye was about steady, though trade was dull. Inspection was two cars, while 3,994 bu were withdrawn from store. In the cash market some choice No. 3 free on board sold at 50½c. May was quoted all day at 50c bid and 50⅛c asked. February-May changed at 2c.

Barley continues steady without quotable change in price. Receipts were 19 cars, with 4,169 bu withdrawn from store. The best demand is for the lower grades. Little choice barley is either arriving or is wanted by the trade. Common ranged 43@47c, fair to good 50@57c, and choice nominally 58@60c.

Timothy seed was steady and about unchanged at $4.60 for contract and $4.70 for March. Clover seed continues steady and firm at $11.00@11.25 for contract and from $11.30@11.40 for March.

Flaxseed was steady but dull, offerings and demand both being light. No. 1 Northwestern sold at $1.76. Choice rejected brought $1.74. Sales of March were at $1.75. May was $1.74 bid, with sellers at $1.75. Receipts here were 14 cars (10,500 bu). Minneapolis had 19 cars and Duluth 2 cars.

Trade Gossip on 'Change.

Estimated receipts today: Wheat, 45 cars; corn, 345 cars; oats, 180 cars; hogs, 25,000.

As an outcome of Wednesday's meeting of receivers and receivers' agents, the following has been prepared for submission to the Committee on Grain Inspection, and later for consideration by the directors: "Application for appointment of official Board of Trade samplers may be made in writing by any member in good standing, and must receive the indorsement of not less than twenty-five members in good standing, which application shall be submitted at a meeting of the Board of Directors, and before final action is taken such application shall be posted for examination by the members of the association on a properly designated bulletin board for one week. No sampler shall be appointed against whom approved claims remain unsettled, nor one who refuses to arbitrate a claim for damage or loss growing out of difference between samplers, nor one who has been found guilty of neglect, or incompetency or dishonesty. All samplers now classified as 'receivers' agents' must qualify for appointments as official Board of Trade samplers or be disqualified as samplers. Negligence, incompetency, and dishonesty shall be sufficient cause for cancellation of any appointment." The suggestions, which the receivers hope eventually to have incorporated as one of the rules of the board, are believed to reflect the views of a majority of the receivers on the subject of private inspectors.

Cables were received by the board yesterday from Bridges Webb, President of the London Corn Trade association, and S. J. Glover, chairman of the Baltic, acknowledging the courtesy of the Chicago board in adjourning on Saturday.

David A. Noyes, who has been with J. F. Harris for the last three years, will represent Finley, Barrell & Co. after today.

Louis J. Bowman, who came to Chicago four years ago from Peoria, bringing a valuable cash grain trade with him, and has since been with Rumsey-Lightner, leaves that concern today, and will hereafter be associated with the George H. Phillips company.

J. C. Wood and George Earhart had no difficulty in securing some 300 signatures to a petition to the directors not to submit to a vote the proposed amendment to the commission rule raising the commission rate on pork and ribs from $6.25 to $10.00 a lot, and reducing the brokerage from $1.25 to $1.12½ a lot. Some commission houses think the present brokerage too high in proportion, but the canvass, it is claimed, showed the sentiment of the provision trade, including commission houses, almost unanimous against any change in the rule.

The Cincinnati Price Current says: "Growing wheat continues promising now under snow. Marketing becomes light. Corn movement moderate. Available supplies of both appear ample for requirements. Hog packing, 510,000, against 465,000 last year."

PRODUCE PRICES RULING STEADY.

Little Doing Except in Staples and Quotations Little Changed.

Only a moderate business was done yesterday in produce lines. Prices continue steady. In game the season ended on everything except ducks, geese, snipe, plover, rabbits, and opossum. Snipe and plover from Illinois may be sold until April 25 and ducks, geese, and brant until April 15. Receipts are generally small.

It was another red letter day for the bears in the cotton market. Prices suffered severely from the pressure from both sides and fell to the lowest point reached since the late shrinkage set in. Trading was brisk most of the day, but it was evident the greater part of the business done consisted of settlement. On the first call the market was steady, with prices 7 points higher to 1 point lower. The stability was of short duration, as selling soon caused prices to crumble sharply, and during the balance of the forenoon there was practically no change in the course of values. It remained for the early afternoon to record the weakest interval, prices then tumbling sharply under selling for Southern account, chiefly New Orleans account.

In mid-afternoon a struggle of the January clique to support the current month price, as well as sustain the spot cotton quotation, was a prominent feature.

The decline of 1c in the price of spot cotton did not appreciably affect the general market, having been fully discounted. There was a sharp rally at the close on room profit taking. The market was finally quiet and steady at 2 points higher to 4 points lower.

Thus far this week	103,000	206,000	93,000
Same period last week	121,000	249,000	93,000
Same period 1900	92,000	197,000	99,000
Same period 1899	88,000	224,000	98,000

Today's receipts are estimated at 3,000 cattle, 25,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep.

Unofficial receipts at the Chicago Stock-Yards last month, 252,200 cattle, 784,000 hogs, and 311,300 sheep, against 226,649 cattle, 816,508 hogs, and 336,599 sheep for January, 1900.

Eleven markets received 86,000 hogs, against 75,000 a week ago, and 57,000 a year ago. Total for the week thus far, 315,000, against 385,000 a week ago, and 284,000 a year ago.

Packers purchased 26,700 hogs and shippers 6,000, leaving 2,000 in the pens. Armour bought 6,500; Anglo-American, 4,500; Boyd & Lunham, 2,200; Continental, 1,100; Hammond, 800; Lipton, 2,100; Morris, 1,500; Swift, 6,500; and butchers, 1,500. Droves averaging 160@172 lbs cost $5.20@5.22, and 234@285 lbs, $5.22@5.25.

Cattle—There was a small run of cattle, and, with a good demand, prices ruled firm to 10c higher, with export and well-finished light steers showing the most strength. Good native cows and heifers sold about 10c higher. Native steers sold at $3.40@5.90, bulk, $4.90@5.40, with export steers at $5.20@5.50. Some 1,276-lb yearlings sold at $5.85, with 1,500@1,698-lb steers at $5.35@5.50, and 1,570-lb at $5.00. A good many thin steers sold at $3.75@4.25. About 500 straight Texas steers averaging 938@1,152 lbs sold steady at $3.90@4.20. Cows sold at $1.75@4.25; heifers, $2.50@4.50; bulls, $2.50@4.37½; stags, $3.75@4.60; calves, $4.00@5.75; and stockers and feeders, $2.70@4.50.

Hogs—Prices declined 5@10c. The market was weak most all day, and yet the finish was comparatively steady, with only 2,000 left in the pens. Packers were slow to commence operations, and they acted bearish most of the day. Country shippers have lost a good deal of money this week on hogs, which were contracted for some time ago at $5.00. It takes about 30@40c per 100 to run hogs from many Illinois and Iowa shipping points, so that with the bulk of sales in Chicago yesterday at $5.20@5.25 shippers required wide margins to let them out. Receipts were the largest of the week, being estimated at 37,000, including about 4,500 direct to down-town packers. One load averaging 322 lbs sold at $5.32½, with 248@484-lb averages at $5.30. Little pigs were fully steady, selling largely at $5.10@5.20. Quotations follow:

Bulk of sales	$5.20 @5.25
Selected butchers', 220@270 lbs	5.22½@5.30
Selected bacon, 150@190 lbs	5.15 @5.25
Mixed grades, 180@240 lbs	5.15 @5.30
Heavy shipping, 260@350 lbs	5.20 @5.32½
Heavy packing, 280@400 lbs	5.15 @5.25
Rough heavy grades	5.05 @5.12½
Poor to choice pigs	4.75 @5.20

Sheep—The demand for sheep was good and prices ruled steady, while lambs were weak to 10c lower. Sheep sold at $2.50@4.50, including 103@110-lb Westerns at $3.80@4.00, and 72-lb cull Montana stock at $3.00. Yearling sheep sold at $4.55@5.00, with 74@90-lb Mexicans at $4.60@5.00, and 97@123-lb Westerns at $4.55@4.65. A lot of 798 exporters averaging 123 lbs sold at $4.65. Lambs sold at $4.00@5.35; bulk at $5.00@5.35, including 74@84-lb Westerns at $5.15@5.35.

In the New York Metal Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Speculative dealings in the local metal market were conspicuous by their absence. Tin was easy in tone, with the nominal figure at the close $26.25. At London quotations were a shade lower to £121 5s. Copper in London declined 7s 6d. This factor increased the weakness of the local market materially. Sales of 300,000 lbs Lake Superior were made at $16.85, but at the close of business prices were nominally quoted at $17.00 for Lake Superior and $16.62½ for casting and electrolytic, but concessions were freely offered on large lots. Lead was 2s 6d lower abroad to £15 5s, but was without important feature locally, closing dull at $4.37½. Spelter was inactive, but easy in tone at $4.00@4.05. Domestic iron markets remain dull and featureless at $9.50@10.50 for pig iron warrants; Northern foundry, $15.00@16.50; Southern foundry, $14.50@15.75; and soft Southern, $13.00@15.75. English markets closed lower, Glasgow at 52s 6d and Middlesboro 46s 9d.

FOR MUNICIPAL GAS PLANTS.

Federation of Labor Legislative Committee Agrees on a Bill to Be Considered Sunday.

The Legislative committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor at a meeting held yesterday agreed upon a bill to be brought before the federation at its Sunday meeting providing for the municipal ownership and operation of gas plants. The bill is to be introduced in the State Legislature provided it receives the approval of the federation, of which there is little doubt. The committee in its report will also recommend the holding of mass-meetings in various parts of the city under the auspices of the federation for the purpose of informing the people as to the purposes and scope of the bill and arousing sentiment in its favor. The bill provides for cities acquiring by purchase gas plants as well as for constructing the same.

NEW YORK HAS CORNER ON CORN

Small Imitation of the Real Article Engineered on the Chicago Board by Phillips.

New York had a corner on corn yesterday, but it was a feeble imitation of the genuine article as it is known in a big, broad market, like that in Chicago. Some languid interest was aroused on the Board of Trade when brokers saw the New York quotation jump up four cents in jumps of a cent at a time, from 49 cents to 53 cents a bushel, as fast as the quotation clerk could note the changes on the blackboard. Still more interest and some smiles were occasioned when the diminutive character of the corner was learned from the following message to J. F. Harris from his New York correspondent:

"We have no stock of contract corn here except 15,000 bushels held by one party. Some other man was short 10,000 bushels and had to pay for it."

LINSEED OIL PRICE JUMPS.

Advance Yesterday Was Seven Cents a Gallon in Chicago and Nine Cents in the East.

Linseed oil prices were marked up seven cents a gallon yesterday, making the quotation 65 cents raw and 66 cents boiled in carlots, free on board Chicago. An advance of nine cents was ordered by the American Linseed Oil company in cities east of Buffalo. Spot seed in this market is now about $1.75, which is within 10 cents of top price on the crop.

Age Limit in Shipmasters' Organization

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 31.—[Special.]—The grand lodge of the Shipmasters' association today enacted an amendment to its laws fixing fifty years as an age limit for beneficiary members.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

MORE RUMORS AND THE TRUTH OF SOME OF THEM.

Wall Street Continues to Send Out Reports of Deals, in Many Instances for Stock Jobbing Purposes—Morgan and Harriman Interests Are Active, However, and Undoubtedly Control Chicago Terminal and Mobile and Ohio.

Rumors regarding new railroad deals and consolidations continue to be sent out from Wall street, and it is hard to separate the wheat from the chaff. While some of the reports regarding acquisitions by the Morgan and Harriman interests undoubtedly are true, many evidently are for the purpose of booming the stocks of certain roads. No doubt, however, is entertained as to the acquisition of a controlling interest in the Chicago Terminal Transfer railroad by the Harriman syndicate. But, as stated in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, it was not done to get all the railroads in this city to use the Terminal company's Grand Central depot, but to avoid the payment of about $100,000 a year, an obligation assumed in the form of a rental guarantee by the St. Louis, Peoria and Northern railway, which was bought about two years ago by the Harriman interests and divided between the Alton and Illinois Central.

It was also deemed important that the Belt Line, which is controlled by the Chicago Terminal Transfer company, be brought under control of either Harriman or Morgan interests so as to prevent the Belt Line, which facilitates the interchange of traffic, from being used for the manipulation or cutting of through rates.

It is also true that the Mobile and Ohio railroad, a line running from St. Louis, Mo., to Mobile, Ala., which has been a great rate disturber, has been acquired by J. Pierpont Morgan to be made a part of the great Southern railway company—Morgan's pet road. This acquisition rounds out the Southern railway system and gives Mr. Morgan a firmer hold on the Southern railway situation.

General Passenger Agents of all the Western roads, parties to the immigrant rate agreement, were in session here yesterday for the consideration of various subjects, but it was found necessary to have the steamship companies represented, and it was decided to refer all of the subjects to a meeting to be held in New York on Feb. 8. Another meeting will be held here today, at which the relations of the Canadian Pacific with the Western and Northwestern lines on both the immigrant and regular passenger business will be discussed.

The Rock Island and Southern Pacific railroads are reported to have made arrangements for a close traffic agreement, embracing both freight and passenger traffic, to go in effect when the extensions which the Rock Island is building to connect with the Southern Pacific at El Paso are completed next summer. The agreement is said to provide for an exchange of all traffic between California points and points in the West and Northwest.

H. B. Spencer, Assistant General Manager of the St. Louis-Louisville lines of the Southern railway, has been appointed General Manager, vice George C. Smith, resigned.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

The Beer Trust.

Wallace, N. M., Jan. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It seems the English beer trust is stronger at Washington than elsewhere throughout the country. Against the wishes of the army and the people generally it has induced Congress to wipe out the post exchange, so conducive to temperance, in order to increase its sales of beer, etc., to outside dives and doggeries. And now it makes Congress wipe out its share of war taxes, or nearly all, so the profits will be greater and the British directors will have more money to pay for subduing the Boers. Will the American people stand this? B. G. HENRY.

The Congressional Apportionment.

Eureka, Ill., Jan. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your correspondent at Springfield says that "Knox, Fulton, Henry, and Schuyler would make a district for Prince." That district would contain only 146,000 population, almost 50,000 short of a ratio. Add Warren and McDonough, with 51,000, and you have a proper (compact and contiguous) district, and one that will also give Speaker Sherman a chance of succession. Now, what is to be done with Colonel Marsh? Make a river district of the Counties of Rock Island, Mercer, Henderson, Hancock, and Adams, with 186,000 population, and not subject to the charge of gerrymander, because it does not make any less number of Democratic districts, and is only for the purpose of giving a separate district to some of our best Representatives. These river counties are of easy access to each other and their interests identical; besides, there are a large number of Democratic soldiers at the "Home" who like to vote for Colonel Marsh and ought to have the opportunity. Mr. Graff would undoubtedly be well satisfied with Lee, Bureau, Putnam, Marshall, Stark, and Peoria, with 188,000 population. That leaves the way clear for Chairman Stubblefield and McLean County, Tazewell being exchanged for Logan.

And now, shall Cook County have ten members? Yes? Why? Because the State outside of Cook County divides to best advantage for the Republicans with fifteen districts. Sixteen districts will surely make one more Democratic district without any corresponding benefit, and, further, because Cook County will have at the time of the first election under the new apportionment a larger ratio of population than the counties outside, and is justly entitled to that number. "KNOX."

True Bills for Jury Bribing.

Indictments charging attempted bribery were voted by the grand jury yesterday against Jeremiah Cremin, James Connors, and Eddie McNichols. They were indicted on the testimony of Charles Willard, who claimed that he had been approached by the men in an effort to get him to acquit Thomas Barry, on trial before Judge Baker and a jury, of which Willard was a prospective member. The men are alleged to have called at Willard's house and offered him $50 to be lenient with Barry.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

Peckham, Flag & Peckham have been selected to adjust the loss in the Frankel fire at Des Moines.

Advices from Springfield say that the Insurance department may investigate the tax returns of all the companies in the State to ascertain how many agents have failed to make returns.

The Fidelity and Deposit company of Baltimore is about to open a London office. President Warfield is sailing this week to make arrangements to do business throughout Great Britain.

Hiram Baldwin, formerly with the National Mutual of Minneapolis, has been selected by the National Reserve as the manager of its business for Illinois and Wisconsin. Offices have been opened in the Stewart Building.

Local agents in Springfield say that the local board and the State board are in a fair way to come to a satisfactory agreement over the differences under discussion. The local board has agreed to accept the State board's rule regarding dwellings and removing exposure charges.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Underwriters' association yesterday to take action on the death of T. H. Webster. Remarks were made by R. S. Critchel, Thomas Goodman, E. N. Wiley, and others. The following resolutions were presented and passed by a rising vote:

"Resolved, That in the death of our esteemed associate, Thomas H. Webster, we, as an association and individually, have sustained a severe loss and that we shall ever hold his memory in affectionate remembrance.

"Resolved, That we tender to his sorrowing widow and children our most sincere sympathy as well as our congratulations upon the noble life which our friend has always lived."

On motion the Secretary was instructed to send an engrossed copy of the minute to the family of Mr. Webster, and to provide a suitable floral tribute to be sent to the residence of the deceased.

New York, Jan. 31.—[Special.]—At the monthly meeting of the Eastern union held today the proposed new New York tax law was informally discussed with considerable interest. The association's Committee of Fifteen gives no hint as to its reform program, merely reporting "progress" in its preparation.

STARTLING, WEIRD, ASTONISHING.
How can I tell you what you did at a given hour, time, or place? WHAT you will do next week, month, or year? Even before you speak can tell business you call for, call you by name, TELL you your age, your mother's maiden name, who and when you will marry, NAME your past or present lover, and if friends, husbands, wives, or sweethearts are true or false; if you will be happy, disappointed, or successful in life, without asking you a question, nor need you speak during the reading; from childhood to old age and the grave, and so startling and to the point are my readings and predictions that you are startled and mystified at the marvelous revelations contained in them, the like of which cannot be equaled by any other MAN, WOMAN, or CHILD.
All business sacred and confidential; fee reasonable. Parlors arranged so you see no one but Prof. Mason himself.

DISPUTES CLAIM OF GROSS

COQUELIN TAKES THE STAND IN "CYRANO DE BERGERAC" CASE.

Declares That Rostand's Play Was Outlined to Him in Detail Before "The Merchant Prince of Cornville" Could Have Come to the Notice of the French Dramatist—Player Makes an Alert Witness and Readily Answers Questions Involving Dates.

Against the argument of depositions made by S. E. Gross to prove M. Rostand could have seen "The Merchant Prince of Cornville" before he wrote "Cyrano de Bergerac," M. Coquelin yesterday advanced his word that the latter play was outlined before the Chicago man's product could have found its way to Paris.

Mr. Gross has spent time and money in finding out and putting in legal form the fact that "Cyrano de Bergerac" was written late in 1897. He also has shown that his own handiwork was given a copyright presentation in London in November, 1896, and that soon afterwards copies of it were distributed among English universities and one placed in the British Museum. His contention from these facts of time and place has been that M. Rostand either saw the copy at the museum or attended the copyright performance, or secured one of the university copies. Upon that contention he has rested his charge of plagiarism against the French poet-dramatist.

M. Coquelin before Master in Chancery Sherman in the Monadnock Building swore that M. Rostand told him the story of the intended play in detail early in the year 1896. The actor did not enter the court to make willing deposition, but in response to summons made for his presence at the request of Mr. Gross. The real estate man's attorneys, Luther Laflin Mills and Frank Reid, conducted the cross-examination which elicited the statement derogatory to their case. M. Coquelin was accompanied by the French Consul to Chicago, M. Merou, who acted as interpreter for both the actor and the court.

Tells of Meeting Rostand.

M. Coquelin testified that he never had met M. Rostand prior to the beginning of the year 1896, and said that Mme. Bernhardt brought about the meeting between them. The actress, he said, invited him to be present at the reading of a play, "The Princess Lointaine," which M. Rostand had written for her. The acquaintance led soon to friendship, and a short time later, the actor continued, M. Rostand came to him with the framework of the play, which afterwards was known as "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The idea was that of an ugly man of great charm of mind falling in love with a beautiful woman, who herself loved another man whose only graces were those of appearance. A seeming perfect lover was then to be evolved by giving the stupid, handsome man the use of the acute brain of his hopeless rival. The theme, said M. Coquelin, was developed in detail before a word was written. Night after night M. Rostand came to his dressing-room at the theater before the performance began and unfolded the story, scene by scene, situation by situation, and incident by incident.

An effort was made to confuse M. Coquelin by asking him the year the meetings took place.

Coquelin Deals in Date.

"The same year," he retorted briskly, "in which Mme. Bernhardt introduced us, 1896. I was playing 'Thermidor' at the time."

The actor was an alert witness, and one of unbounded good humor, smiling urbanely, and answering the queries in the most polite manner. Mr. Gross did not do any of the questioning himself, but sat close beside his lawyers and kept his eyes fastened upon the occupant of the witness chair. M. Coquelin did not bestow any answering attention, and did not seem to be aware of his watcher's identity.

RECORD LOAN OF $15,000,000.

Grand Trunk Western Railway Company Borrows That Amount, Secured by First Mortgage.

The loan of $15,000,000 made by the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of New York to the Grand Trunk Western railway company was put on record yesterday. The loan is secured by a first mortgage on all the property of the railroad company.

A second mortgage for $1,500,000, in favor of the Colonial Trust company of New York, was made by the Grand Trunk and Western in the form of gold income bonds. The interest and time of the loan are the same as in the first mortgage.

George A. Seaverns has obtained a loan of $80,000 from the Connecticut Fire Insurance company of Hartford for the purpose of refunding a loan of $100,000. Mr. Seaverns has given the Connecticut a trust deed on the property, bounded by Twenty-second street on the north, the South Branch on the west, Grove street on the east, and Archer avenue on the south.

The United States government has leased from P. H. Joyce the property at 3475 and 3477 Archer avenue for five years for $1,800 a year for the purpose of establishing a postoffice.

STAMPS TEXT ON ENVELOPES.

Postal Authorities Looking for Religious Enthusiast Who Has Adopted Original Methods.

The postal authorities are looking for some enthusiast, presumably an employé of the department, who has taken upon himself the task of spreading biblical quotations by stamping them on envelopes. Various Chicago firms have protested and the manager of a large wholesale house has asked why the Postoffice should be so interested in his salvation as to stamp these texts on an envelope addressed to him:

> Ye must be born again.—Jno. 3-7. How? Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God (I. Jno., 5-1), and doth not commit sin (I. Jno., 3-9).

Investigation in the local office failed to reveal the enthusiast and decoy letters were sent out. It was learned that in December a traveling preacher passed through a big Chicago office building and stamped everything in sight with scriptural texts, but it is thought hardly possible that he can be the offender. There is said to be no law which applies to the case in question.

POOR CARS ON INDIANA AVENUE.

Patrons Complain of Wretched Equipment, Flat Wheels, and Antiquated Rails.

The old T rails in use on the Indiana avenue street car line are causing numerous complaints from its patrons, who insist that the company has about the roughest riding cars in the city on this line. Half of them have flat wheels, so that they make more noise and shake up the passengers more than is necessary for a line which is operating under favorable conditions.

The Indiana avenue cars make good time, and this, added to the poor condition of the cars, increases the discomfort of the patrons. The cars go bumping along in a manner that makes it impossible for standing passengers to retain their equilibrium with the assistance of straps or by leaning against the doors.

It is urged the laying of a grooved rail would add materially to the smoothness of the line, and patrons of the road are anxious to see a change made. Quick service has been given them in place of better cars.

CAPTAIN REHM IS TRANSFERRED

Is Sent from East Chicago Avenue to Desplaines Street—Revere on North Side.

By order of Chief Kipley, Captain John Rehm of the East Chicago Avenue Police Station has been transferred to Desplaines street, Captain John Revere exchanging places with him. "This is simply the result of an understanding," Chief Kipley said. "When Captain Rehm went to East Chicago avenue it was with the understanding that he was sooner or later to be put back in Desplaines Street Station, near his home."
